

Feilbach, Raymond

COMMISSIONED

Wearing his wings and newly acquired lieutenant's bars, Raymond Feilbach is a full-fledged officer in the U. S. Army Air Force. He has been graduated from the advanced school of navigation at Selman Field, Monroe, La., and is an aerial navigator.

JUN 16 1943

Lieut. Feilbach is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Feilbach 522 Second Avenue, Bethlehem, attended Bethlehem High School and was graduated at Lehigh University with the class of 1938. While at Lehigh he was on the staff of the Brown and White, a member of the Robert Blake Society, of the Glee Club and was voted Phi Beta Kappa. He is a member of St. Peter's Lutheran Church.

Home at present on a ten-day leave, Lieut. Feilbach will move on to Texas for a course in bombardier school there.

The young officer was employed for a short time by the Morning Call in Allentown after leaving college. He then took a position with James Kemper Company, insurance brokers, in New York City, and was employed over a number of years in their New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Baltimore offices. He was an underwriter for the firm when he entered the Army in August, 1941.

Lieut. Feilbach will celebrate his 27th birthday anniversary July 16.
