State budget addresses student mental health, school safety

BY DAVID HEIN
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Negative trends in youth anxiety, depression and other mental health challenges in recent years are troubling. With children spending much of their day at school, districts are uniquely positioned to identify issues and offer services that promote wellbeing and mental health.

While the mission of public schools will always be focused on student academics and life skills, mental health challenges present a crippling impediment to student success. Therefore, in order to accomplish our core mission, public schools find that we must focus on the student as a whole in hopes that children will thrive and not just survive their educational experience. Prior to the pandemic, the U.S. surgeon general shared that "from 2009 to 2019, the share of high school students who reported persistent feelings of sadness or hopelessness increased by 40 percent, to more than 1 in 3 students."

While this statistic is alarming

Airport is getting $5M federal grant

BY DOUGLAS GRAVES
 tneditor@ttonline.com

U.S. Secretary of Transportation Pete Buttigieg and U.S. Rep. Susan Wild teamed up to visit Lehigh Valley International Airport in Hanover Township and Lehigh Carbon Community College in Schnecksville Aug. 2.

The two federal officials visited to bring attention to two different programs that are bringing money and jobs into the Lehigh Valley.

Airport officials gave Buttigieg and Wild a tour of the ongoing construction of an expansion that will house Transportation Security Administration's new security passenger check-in facility.

from two lanes to four. This will more than double the current passenger screening rate, from 300 per hour to 740 per hour.

This expansion will result in increased passengers and "competing airlines will have greater access to peak hour departure times," officials said.

The project replaces infrastructure in "poor condition" and dating back to 1974. It also expands the infrastructure.

The $5 million grant comes from the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law. This law is included in the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act, which authorizes up to $108 billion for public transportation. This, according to the Federal Transit System's website, is the largest federal investment in public transportation in the nation's history.

POLICE

COMPILED BY NATE JASTRZEMSKI

Homicide

Terri Hodel, 41, of Allentown, is charged with criminal homicide following an investigation of a July 31 killing.

Around 4:45 p.m. that day, Salisbury Township police were called to 715 E. Federal St. for a request to check on the welfare of Hodel, one of the occupants of the home. Police had received a report of concern from a member of Hodel's family. Officers were not able to make contact with the occupants of the home and entered through a door while continuing to announce their presence.

Hodel exited a bedroom and told the officers she was okay and asked them to leave. Officers asked about the other occupant of the home, Tracy Lynn Hoffman. Hodel told officers she had not seen Hoffman and the officers left, but noted that Hoffman's car was parked in the driveway. Police notified Lehigh County Crisis and caseworkers again checked on the welfare of the occupants of the Federal Street home and heard dogs barking, but received no response and made no entry.

On Aug. 1 Salisbury Township Animal Control received an email from Hodel asking that they take care of the dogs at the home at 715 E. Federal St. and the door was unlocked.

That same day at approximately 8:47 a.m., because of additional concerns raised by the email, Salisbury Township Police returned to the Federal Street home to check on the occupants' welfare. Officers found a note from Hodel and found Hoffman's body in a bedroom. The Lehigh County Coroner's Office determined Hoffman had been shot and her death was ruled a homicide.

Hodel was later found by police and taken into custody without incident. She was arraigned and committed to Lehigh County Jail.

Buttigieg on truck driver shortage

BY CHRIS REBER
creber@tntonline.com

Lehigh Carbon Community College hosted U.S. Secretary of Transportation Pete Buttigieg Tuesday to discuss the nation's shortage of truck drivers.

"Truck drivers are finally well-understood to be the essential workers they have always been in our supply chains and our economy," Buttigieg said.

Buttigieg and U.S. Rep. Susan Wild, D-Pa. 7, observed the college's Commercial Driver License training program and talked with students, before announcing funding for the college to teach veterans interested in a career in trucking.

LCCC will receive $193,677 from the Commercial Motor Vehicle Operator Safety Training Grant this year, enabling veterans, their spouses, and underserved groups to get the cost of their CDL training covered 100 percent.

The country has an estimated shortage of 80,000 truck drivers, and more leaving the industry each year, Buttigieg said.

The Biden administration wants to recruit some of the quarter-million veterans returning to civilian life each year to help close that gap.

"We owe it to them that when they come home, they can get the training they need to get good-paying civilian jobs," Buttigieg said.

The bipartisan infrastructure act included $3 million for the grant program. Wild said it is important to support veterans transitioning back into civilian life, and use the knowledge they've gained.

"Programs like this are essential to ensuring that we serve those who have served us," she said.

Veterans currently make up about one-sixth of the 120 new truck drivers trained each year at Lehigh Carbon Community College. The college is in the process of increasing how many students it can train during each four-week session.

Through a contractor, CC Training, LCCC trains students from Lehigh, Carbon and Tamaqua to get them ready for their Commercial Drivers License test.

"Once you've got that license, you've got the ability to go to work," said Mike Glanz, Director of CC Training.

The college has received grants to help veterans get their CDL in the past. The new funding helps cover the rising cost of CDL training, which has been driven by the cost of diesel fuel.

Matthew Marciano is one of the military veterans who have gotten a CDL through LCCC.

He said the grant helped him to find a way to use the skills he learned while serving in the Navy.

"I have a new opportunity and chance to provide for my family," he said.

The grant helped Russell Lande, a Coast Guard veteran and driver for FedEx. He spoke with pride about having the chance to help transport baby formula to the Lehigh Valley during a recent shortage. He said he wouldn't have taken the chance of becoming a truck driver if not for the grant program.

"That grant is not just about the veterans, it affects so many others," Lande said.

enough, the COVID-19 pandemic intensified the decline of mental health among students. In the 2022 Pennsylvania School Boards Association's State of Education report, which examined the impact of the pandemic on public education, nearly 86 percent of districts identified addressing mental health issues as one of their biggest instructional challenges.

Although the pandemic exacerbated mental health concerns among Pennsylvania's youth, it also spurred the provision of additional federal funding to facilitate mental health services and supports. Through federal pandemic relief funding, districts received one-time emergency money to address their needs. A large number of districts, about 87 percent, reported using this funding to address mental health - but these funds will be depleted in the near future, leaving schools and students without the resources to continue providing these much-needed and successful supports.

However, in the recently passed state budget, the general assembly rightfully recognized the significant student needs in this area and provided schools with $200 million in state funding to address student mental health and school safety. Of this $200 million, $95 million will be distributed to districts

Southside II Local Economic Revitalization Tax Assistance Program was unanimously approved by a vote of 7-0.

Slightly different from the original version, this new LERTA will not only hold developers accountable for delinquent payments with penalties, but it will also require the much debated new fee from developers of $52,320 from those who do not meet the affordable housing criteria. This is expected to help revitalize the economy of former Bethlehem Steel properties.

Mayor William Reynolds' office provided this response: "LERTA has been a remarkably effective economic development program for the City of Bethlehem over several decades, and the administration hopes the Southside LERTA II can continue that success. With this ordinance, we aimed to incentivize the development of remaining former Bethlehem Steel properties and targeted business and commercial properties while also promoting investment in affordable housing. We crafted the LERTA to achieve maximum benefit for the city based on the significant research, analysis and expertise of our professional staff, so we are of course disappointed that members of city council amended the ordinance against our advice to placate their preference for a higher payment-in-lieu fee without the support of legitimate market data."

Backyard Chickens

Food insecurities and teaching responsibility to younger family members were mentioned by numerous residents in favor of the Ordinance of Backyard Chickens.

To alleviate concerns, Dr. Paige Van Wirt had submitted an amended version of her ordinance days prior to the meeting. She said the amendments and the issuing of 40 permits would give the city's animal control officer time to learn the pros and cons of this initiative within the first year of the ordinance coming into effect.

Echoing concerns first raised at the July 19 meeting, Reynolds once again criticized the process and deliberation of the backyard chicken ordinance. He reminded council members that they "are not in a vacuum" and that people are reading what is being published in the press.

Reynolds went on to explain how his office had been inundated by calls from residents with numerous questions, including from some falsely under the impression that they could already obtain permits to have chickens in their backyard. He said city staff, already busy with Musikfest, are now dealing with an ordinance that is still under discussion.

The ordinance vote was postponed until Aug. 16.

ArtsQuest Banana Factory

Shortly after 11 p.m., council passed, by a 5-2 vote, a request by ArtsQuest to tear down all six Banana Factory buildings. ArtsQuest's plan is to consolidate everything from studios to offices into a proposed five-story cultural building.

The plan had been denied by the Historic Conservation Commission last month.

The next meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Aug. 16 at city hall.

through a new program of School Mental Health Grants, which Pennsylvania School Board Association, in partnership with Representative Jason Ortitay, fought hard to include in this year's state budget.

Districts that apply for these grants will receive a base of $100,000, with an additional amount allotted based on student enrollment, and other school entities - such as career and technical centers and intermediate units - will receive $70,000. Grant funds can be used for a variety of purposes to meet the unique needs of each school community.

At Parkland, school-wide social-emotional programs are taught at the elementary, middle and high school levels. Learning social-emotional skills can improve students' emotional well-being. Parkland elementary schools teach students social-emotional skills through the MindUP program. MindUP teaches skills such as mindful awareness, which help students cope with stress. Parkland's middle schools use the Olweus Bullying Prevention Program to teach skills such as identifying feelings, empathy and building a positive school community. Parkland HS uses Character Counts to teach self-awareness, social awareness and responsible decision-making. In seventh and ninth grade, school counselors present the More Than Sad Program to help students recognize the signs of depression and how to get help.

Each school in Parkland has at least one certified school counselor who provides services such as brief counseling sessions, risk screening and consultation with school staff and community mental health professionals to support students' emotional well-being. Certified school psychologists in Parkland provide consultation and evaluation services for students who have significant emotional difficulties. All of the Parkland schools have a Student Assistance Program (SAP) team. This team assists parents in securing community-based mental health services when their child is experiencing emotional difficulties. As part of the Parkland HS SAP team, a school counselor runs groups to teach skills such as conflict resolution, mindfulness, managing test anxiety and coping with trauma.

Parkland's middle schools and high school have the St. Luke's YESS program (Your Emotional Strength Supported). Through the YESS program, middle school and high school students with emotional difficulties may receive psychotherapy in the school setting from a master's level therapist. When indicated, the YESS therapist can refer students to psychiatric services in the St. Luke's University Health Network. Parkland School District is thankful for additional funds to support students' mental health and appreciates that the Legislature and Governor worked together to provide these much-needed resources.

I believe that public schools want to ensure that every learner receives a world-class education that academically prepares our students to succeed as productive citizens. The mental health of our students can act as an impediment or a benefit to their future success. That is why the current focus on mental health is not only a response to the current crisis we are in, but also critical to the development of successful students. I am positive this need will not be going away any time soon.

Smoke Alarms at Home

Smoke alarms are a key part of a home fire escape plan. When there is a fire, smoke spreads fast. Working smoke alarms give you early warning so you can get outside quickly.

SAFETY FIRST

- Install smoke alarms in every bedroom. They should also be outside each sleeping area and on every level of the home. Install alarms in the basement.
- Test all smoke alarms at least once a month.
- Current alarms on the market employ different types of technology including multi-sensing, which could include smoke and carbon monoxide combined.
- Today's smoke alarms will be more technologically advanced to respond to a multitude of fire conditions.

- A smoke alarm should be on the ceiling or high on a wall. Keep smoke alarms away from the kitchen to reduce false alarms. They should be at least 10 feet (3 meters) from the stove.
- People who are hard-of-hearing or deaf can use special alarms. These alarms have strobe lights and bed shakers.
- Replace all smoke alarms when they are 10 years old.

39th Musikfest debuts

Musikfest 2022 officially kicked off at Festplatz Friday evening under a sweltering tent and threatening storm clouds.

Officials, visitors and residents were eager to begin the 10-day music and food celebration that had been relegated to low-volume and virtual events during the worst of the pandemic.

Despite this, ArtsQuest estimates more than $2.2 million people managed to participate in the 2020 event, with a more conventional 1.1 million in real-life attendance in 2021.

Officials also announced D.G. Yuengling & Son, Inc. Heaven on a

Penn Center resolution passes 5-0

BY MARIEKE ANDRONACHE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

"We are tied. If the project fails, the township fails" Bethlehem Township Commissioner John Gallagher told attorney Marc Kaplin, of Kaplin/Stewart, in regards to the proposed Penn Center 33 development. This statement came as a clear effort to try and ease growing tension over Resolution R069-22 pertaining to the proposed Penn Center 33 (formerly Mill Creek Business Park) on a 62-acre site, to be located by William Penn Highway and Route 33.

Kaplin, attorney for developer Lou Pektor, tried for nearly an hour without success to convince Bethlehem Township Commissioners to waive a condition of final land approval of the Penn Center 33 project during the August 1 commissioners' meeting.

Commissioners had agreed July 5 to grant final land development approval as long as 24 conditions were met.

Kaplin argued for the relief of one those conditions: pertaining to the Highway Occupancy Permit from PENNDot, which has not been finalized yet. Without this, the plan cannot presently be recorded with the township, which in turn means that a building permit cannot be issued.

With two perspective tenants for this development, Kaplin argued that the longer the wait for the issuing of the building permit, the greater the potential lost in revenue for everyone. He ended his presentation with a litigation threat should this development plan fail.

Commissioners were not swayed by Kaplin's arguments or threat, unanimously passing the conditional final land approval resolution by a vote of 5-0.

Commissioners did approve resolutions to authorize two police officers to attend crime scene processing training; a resolution in support of preserving abortion rights in Pennsylvania; and Resolution R071-22 authorizing an application to a state transportation grant program.

A motion to approve a School Resource Officer agreement with the Bethlehem Area Vocational Technical School also passed by a vote of 5-0.

The Historical and Architectural Review Board tabled a proposal for a double-sided "halo lit" hanging sign proposal for 516 Main St. at the July 20 meeting held at the Rotunda.

Representing SWBR Marketing & Media, Evan Blose from Fast-Signs had difficulty explaining the new technology behind the internally-illuminated white acrylic and aluminum signage to the commissioners. While modern internally-lit box signs are not allowed under historic guidelines, Blose explained that the design he represented works differently.

He said there is "no direct lighting involved." The entire panel does not light up, just the edges of the routed push-through letters, which create the "halo" effect.

The board studied a few printed examples of this type of signage for other businesses, but none that were of hanging signs.

Mike Simonson and Diana Hodgson expressed concerns about possibly setting a precedent with the new technology that all would regret in future. The commissioners also balked at the 6-inch thickness of the frame of the LED sign. Most hanging signs are much thinner.

The applicant was asked to return with more details, including a model, if possible, as well as a "Plan B." In the meantime HARB members will observe examples of these types of signs in the field from a list Blose is to provide.

Successfully representing Amy Santanasto at 402 High St. and her neighbor Kenneth Weidner at 404 High St. was Sal Basile from Paul Wright Roofing. The two families live in attached older red brick twins.

Homeowner Robert C. Marshall scored a COA for replacing the shingles on his house at 54 E. Wall St. and carport behind it. The stone facade home is part of a row of attached houses built circa 1977 on the former site of the 1892 George Neisser Public School.

All voting was unanimous at the meeting chaired by Connie Postupack.

The HARB regularly meets the first Wednesday of every month to review all exterior changes proposed to buildings in the Bethlehem Historic District north of the Lehigh River. When a proposed project receives a certificate of appropriateness from the board, applicants must wait for city council to vote on it before proceeding. Meetings can be viewed on YouTube.

Hearing planned on vacant Dixie site

BY CHRISTINA SANTO
Special to The Press

Northampton County Council met July 21 to discuss Local Economic Revitalization Tax Assistance Act exemptions for deteriorated areas in Wilson Borough.

The Dixie Cup Factory, located at 1610 Van Buren Road, has sat "largely vacant" for many years, Joseph Reibman, one of the building's owners, said. Currently, there is a potential developer for the building.

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

In order to make the building an asset to the borough, it requires many renovations, including new windows, roofing and elevators; further, there is lead paint and asbestos in the building. The high costs of these necessary renovations have led Reibman and Wilson Borough to ask for LERTA exceptions.

The LERTA Act, passed in 1977, allows

"local taxing authorities to provide tax exemption for certain deteriorated industrial, commercial and other business properties."

Essentially, the taxes would be frozen for five years, then doubled for the following five years.

Wilson Borough Council and Wilson Area School District have both approved the exceptions.

However, resident Armando Moritz-Cha-pelliquen spoke out against approving the exceptions because of increased truck traffic deteriorating local roads and introducing safety hazards near homes and schools.

County council was to hold a public hearing and possible vote regarding the LERTA exemptions at its next meeting, Aug. 5 at the county building, 669 Washington St., Easton, and streamed on the county's YouTube page.

LIBERTY HIGH SCHOOL

Gilhool a three-time state champion

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

A state championship is the highest achievement a high school athlete can attain, and Patrick Gilhool, Bethlehem Press's Male Athlete of the Year from Liberty High School, earned it three times this year.

Gilhool was a four-year swimmer for the Hurricanes, and with that time, became a leader, record-breaker, and champion.

Gilhool won his first individual state gold medal on March 16 at Bucknell University where he clinched first place in the 100 butterfly with a time of 47.69.

"I wanted to win, I was seeded first by a good margin, I knew I could do it, and I knew I needed to drop time to win," said Gilhool. "I knew everyone was coming for me, so I took it out fast, and then I could sense I was ahead on that last 12 1/2 and then put my head down and rode it home as fast as possible."

Gilhool had barely enough time to let his victory sink in, though, because his next event, the 200 free relay, would start soon.

"I finished, I had my excitement, I was a state champion, but I knew I had to get back in the zone for this 200 free relay because I had to be there so we could all be state champions," Gilhool said.

Addison Collins, Danny Lehr, and Malcolm Collins were the state champions along with Gilhool in the 200 free relay with a time of 1:23.18.

The following day, Gilhool won his third state gold medal in the 100 backstroke with a time of 47.57.

The Hurricane senior was also named the 2022 PIAA Swimmer of the Meet after having been named the Outstanding Boy Swimmer of the District XI Meet and the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference Swimmer of the Year 10 days earlier.

Gilhool's efforts began to pay off exceedingly in his junior year when he set new pool and school records, and ultimately won district gold in the fly and the back.

"I don't know if he expected that, but he worked hard enough, and we weren't surprised by it," said Liberty head coach Reik Foust.

In fact, Foust knew Gilhool would eventually be breaking his own records.

"He's going to get even faster because once you do that, you kind of turn a corner there. You kind of see you're capable," Coach Foust said. "When you're always chasing it, it

Tereska concluded career with state medal

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Brylee Tereska, Bethlehem Press's Female Athlete of the Year from Liberty High School, had the number 130 in mind all year, a number she wanted to hit, then surpass in the javelin throw as a member of the Hurricanes track and field team.

"That was my goal this whole season. All my throws were consistent, above 125, so I knew it was coming," said Tereska after she reached 131-07 at the District XI Track and Field Championships this spring when she won the bronze medal.

That distance also qualified Tereska for the PIAA Track and Field State Championships where she reached 133-01 on her third and fifth throws on May 28 at Shippensburg University and won a state bronze to go along with her district medal.

Nicole Capuano, who helped coach the javelin throwers along with head coach Chris D'Emilio, had an inside view, having been a javelin thrower for Liberty from 2012-2014.

"I saw Brylee's first three throws [at states], and they were phenomenal," said Capuano. "I was absolutely thrilled because she's a kid who has so much dedication to the sport. The amount of work she put in every day, even on Sundays... She knew she was capable of succeeding."

Another key to Tereska's success is her coachability.

"This year my coach took us to the Shippensburg Invite so I could get a few throws on the runway and feel comfortable with the place," Tereska said after winning her state medal. "Nerves are always present, but I felt confident on the runway compared to last year, so I'm very glad my coach decided to sign me up for that. Throughout the throws, I knew I needed to be faster because if you go faster, the further it's going to go and my technique was there and my speed was on my side today."

Tereska was also an outside hitter and defensive specialist for Liberty's volleyball team under head coach Connor Swigart.

Named to the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference Second Team and the District XI Second Team, Tereska had 235 kills, 205 digs, 45 aces, and 11 blocks.

"Safe to say, I am sad to see her go," said Coach Swigart. "She is

Yesterday: Preseason games and collecting football cards

BY JEFF MOELLER
tnsports@tnonline.com

Did the NFL ever play more than four preseason games before the regular season? Unbeknown to many, they did back in the 1970s.

There is a twist, and many may have forgotten the season back then.

This week's version of my Yesterday column a — trip back in time to the 1960s, 70s, 80s and sometimes beyond — will look back at some of the standards of the football preseason as well as notable events and situations.

Six-Pack: From 1961-77, the NFL played 14 regular season games and six preseason games. It wasn't until 1978 that the league changed its format to 16 regular games and four preseason contests.

The six preseason games weren't always at the team's home sites. The Eagles played the Giants during the preseason for several seasons during the early 70s at Princeton's Palmer Stadium, and they then played them twice during the regular season.

Other sites that were common back in the 70s for preseason games for many teams were the Yale Bowl, Memphis, Tampa, and Tennessee. Another common trait back then was the small number of assistant coaches.

It was common for any club to usually have only four to six assistant coaches on the sidelines.

The Eagles' first game at the Vet was against Buffalo in a preseason game Aug. 16, 1971. Philly posted a 34-28 victory and managed to handle Bills' stud back O.J. Simpson.

During that year, fans may have forgotten Penn State alum Pete Liske, who guided the team to an overall 6-7-1 mark. Liske, who came over from Denver the previous season, had a 5-5-1 mark as a starter and shared some time with Rick Arrington.

Liske struggled the next season, as the Birds managed just a 2-11-1 mark. Liske recorded both wins in his starts, with his line 2-4-1 as a starter with top pick John Reaves.

Who was the Eagles' leading rusher in 1972? Try Po James, a fourth-round pick who accumulated 525 yards and played three more seasons in Green and White.

Another interesting point back in the 70s was the number of overtime games every season. The league finally moved to add an overtime period in 1974.

Those Cards and a Giant: I have a scrapbook with many pages of 1969, '70, '71, '72, and '73 Topps football cards that were classics.

Some versions had the team in bold letters at the top of the card, and other years had the player's name in the lower left hand corner with his team and position on the other side. Some years had the player's name at the top.

It always was a treat to see the cards finally on sale during the early part of the summer. Then, it was a challenge to collect as many of your favorite players as you could, taking a gamble every time you bought a pack. And who could forget the single sleeve of pink chewing gum that had the light white powder on it.

In 1970, the New York Giants signed tight end Bob Tucker from Bloomsburg State as an unrestricted free agent. Tucker was the fourth Huskie in the NFL, and the first since 1950. Tucker, a Hazleton High grad, played for the Giants from 1970-77, and the Vikings from 1977-80.

Life's A Beach: Growing up, all of us seemed to spend some time at the Jersey Shore in August before our next elementary or high school year started. If you played football in high school, this was the time you were there before practice began. There weren't workouts months before the season started in your high school years.

In terms of preseason games and football cards, it was a custom for me to get the Street and Smith Pro and College Football Yearbook. This was your internet source back in the day.

To me, and hopefully for some of you, there wasn't anything better than laying on a blanket on the beach peeling through my Street and Smith yearbooks to get a feel for the upcoming season. It had previews, rosters, stats, and full schedules.

A real bonus back then in the pro yearbook was a section on the Canadian Football League, and some of the former NFL players in the league.

As far as the college yearbook, do you remember Sonny Sixkiller? The former University of Washington player was on the cover of the college yearbook, and he set 15 records between 1971 and '72. Sixkiller, an American Indian, was undrafted in 1973, but saw time with the WFL Philadelphia Bell and The Hawaiians.

New Football Makes the Scene: Long before Nintendo released the Game Boy, Mattel had one of the first successful portable gaming devices.

Mattel Classic Football, released in 1977, had a simple concept in which you would navigate your running back around defenders (red LED blips) to score.

Even though it may have gotten boring after a while, it was the inaugural football video game on the market. At the time, you could always revert to Tudor's Electric Football Game, which was your other option.

Meet George Jetson: On July 31, TV critics surmised that cartoon character George Jetson would have been born. In the cartoon, Jetson said he was 40 years old and born on that day. The cartoon series was set in the 2060s, 100 years after it debuted in 1962.

"The Jetsons" was a long-running favorite with its futuristic theme, and we all believed back then that we would have space cars sometime past the year 2000. The series' theme song is one that we don't forget.

Those Laughs and Chuckles: With the recent passing of Bill Russell, I can recall the days when he teamed with Chris Schankel and Keith Jackson on the ABC pro basketball telecasts in the early 70s.

Russell became noted for his laughs and chuckles during the broadcasts, as well as his fast-speaking comments about players and plays. It may have been glossed over, but Russell also was a commentator for CBS and TNT golf in the late 70s and the 80s.

Do You Remember?

Every week, I'll mention a possible forgotten player or manager from yesterday. Do you remember Eagles' kicker Horst Muhlmann? The German-born kicker spent the 1975-77 seasons with the Birds after spending the previous six seasons with the Bengals.

With the Eagles, Muhlmann connected on 34 of 53 field goal attempts. In a controversial move at the time, Muhlmann was placed on waivers after he missed a 31-yard field goal in the final seconds of a 17-14 loss to Washington Nov. 14. Head coach Dick Vermeil stated that he was "fired," and the team signed Ove Johansson. The Eagles later signed kicker Nick Mike-Mayer.

Terenzio steps down as FHS wrestling coach

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Freedom's wrestling program is in search of a new leader, as head coach Dante Terenzio resigned last month from the position.

Terenzio, who took over the program four years ago, led Freedom to a 52-19 record during his tenure, including an 18-5 campaign this past season.

"I've decided to step away from coaching to pursue a career opportunity that will allow me to be with my family more," said Terenzio. "I've accepted a managing editor position at The Daily Review up in Bradford County.

"I'm happy I can say I'm satisfied with what we've accomplished over the past four years. It wasn't easy in the early going, but no transition ever is. I think we eventually got to where we wanted to be. The kids came a long way as far as becoming tough kids and successful wrestlers."

Before coaching at Freedom, Terenzio was the head coach at Western Wayne in District 2 for 10 seasons. With two young sons, Roman (2) and Marco (1), in the fold, Terenzio knew it was time to devote all his time to his family.

"I'm positive I'll be back coaching in the future," he said. "My sons are young and have their whole lives ahead of them. I'm sure I'm going to be involved in their athletic adventures, and I can't wait for that."

The Pates return 10 wrestlers to next year's team, including state qualifier CJ Horvath, leaving a strong core intact.

Despite stepping away, Terenzio is proud of what the team was able to accomplish and will miss it at the same time.

"I think creating a team-first culture was our greatest accomplishment," Terenzio said. "Our staff really stressed the importance of the team aspect; competing not as individuals but as a team. This past year, wins over historical programs like Parkland, Emmaus and Liberty are a tribute to how far the team has come over the past few years.

"I'll miss the kids and watching them grow into young adults. I'll really miss my staff (Todd Israel, Evan Kauffman, Anthony Marino, Mike Cleffi and Joseph Ingaglio), couldn't ask for a better group of guys to coach with. And, of course, all the wonderful people I've had the pleasure of meeting at Freedom. I'm grateful Nate Stannard and Mike LaPorta took a chance on a District 2 guy."

FIVE GREYHOUNDS HONORED

Five student-athletes from the Moravian University men's and women's tennis teams have been selected as 2022 Intercollegiate Tennis Association Scholar-Athletes and the men's squad also received the ITA All-Academic Team award.

Juniors Andrew Hozza (Northampton, Pa./Northampton HS) and Justin Szaro (Bethlehem, Pa./Freedom HS) and freshman Wyatt Marshall (Bethlehem, Pa./Liberty HS) from the men's team and juniors Julianne Cassady (New Freedom, Pa./Susquehannock HS) and Cristina Merone (Toms River, N.J./Donovan Catholic HS) from the women's squad were named ITA Scholar-Athletes with Hozza, Szaro and Merone all received the honor for a third straight year and Cassady was honored for a second consecutive year.

For a student-athlete to ITA Scholar-Athlete honors, they must maintain at least a 3.50 GPA, earn a varsity letter and be enrolled for at least two semesters. Thousands of student-athletes across all divisions were honored with ITA Scholar-Athlete status and hundreds of teams earned the ITA All-Academic Team award for maintaining at least a 3.20 GPA. All varsity letter winners were factored into the cumulative team GPA for the current academic year (including fall 2021 and spring 2022).

the best school, and track helped me do that. The team is tight-knit, the academics are rigorous, and it will set me up for my future," she said. Tereska is planning to major in biology and take that into the biomedical sciences.

"I am excited to see her grow into an adult," Swigart said, "and come back as an example to the current athletes on the team."

Hawks look to be better in 2022

BY JEFF MOELLER
Special to the Press

Kyle Haas believes a year can make a difference.

The second-year Bethlehem Catholic head football coach went through a 2-7 campaign last year, one that saw promise for a district playoff berth and ended with four consecutive defeats.

His team dealt with a case of Murphy's Law - anything that could have gone wrong for the Golden Hawks did.

"We just couldn't catch a break last season," lamented Haas. "We really had some difficult circumstances. There was a silver lining behind it, though. Our kids realized how important good leadership can be. Our guys here saw what went wrong last year."

But this summer, Haas has seen plenty of positives.

"We have just been focusing on football," said Haas. "There are some distractions around, but we have stayed focused. We have looked good with our 7-on-7s and "I think we can be better this year. We have two guys battling for the quarterback job. We have a couple of good running backs. We have some depth in a lot of different areas, and our football IQ is better."

Haas stated that senior Luke Thomas and junior Aussie Warke are vying for the starting quarterback spot.

Seniors Izzie Ramos, Zhaire Morris, and Rahmel Terry will return in the backfield. Terry is back after an ACL injury.

"One of the strongest parts of our team are our running backs," said Haas. "Ramos and Terry ran well last year, and Terry has the ability to be a game-changer."

Seniors Mark Mulhearn (6-6, 315) and Eli Thompson (6-2, 275) bring back some beef up front.

Fellow seniors wide receivers Eric Wert and Jalen Ellis-Lahey are potent playmakers and are primed for a big season.

"We probably have about eight linemen who we can rotate," added Haas. "We also have a number of kids who can run the ball and people in our secondary."

"We have 43 kids who are good athletes."

Haas recalled the 2021 season in which his team had fate working against them. The Golden Hawks saw a 27-point lead against Nazareth vanish in a loss, and a blocked punt shifted momentum in a 17-7 loss to Allentown Central Catholic.

"I thought we played our best football in the last two weeks," he said about games against Freedom (a 24-21 defeat) and Central Catholic. "It just wasn't meant to be, but we need to learn from it."

"Our games against Emmaus, Parkland, and Whitehall were bad. We weren't ready to play. We got drilled hard."

The Golden Hawks will travel to Delaware to scrimmage Delaware Military Academy Aug. 20 before their home opener against Whitehall Aug. 26.

Haas is confident his team will be a better one this fall.

"A lot of kids weren't happy about last season," he stressed. "It wasn't a good atmosphere on the bus and on the field. We had a lot of injuries last season, and we'll need to keep people healthy."

"I think we've come a long way in one year and in a lot of different areas. I believe we will be a better team this season."

Plant a Row Lehigh Valley launches its 7th season

Plant a Row Lehigh Valley has begun its seventh season, which will run through Oct. 8.

PARLV was launched in 2016 as a chapter of the national Plant a Row for the Hungry program.

PARLV is a grassroots organization of local gardeners who dedicate a row in their gardens and/or their surplus to donate to their neighbors in need.

PARLV provides convenient drop-off locations across Lehigh and Northampton counties for gardeners to donate their produce.

Volunteers pick up and transport the donations received to area food pantries, meal centers, soup kitchens and shelters.

Even if you don't have a garden, you can still contribute.

Purchase extra produce at the grocery store or farmer's market and bring it to a donation drop-off location.

The PARLV program includes 326 registered gardens, 21 drop off locations, three additional non-drop-off donation sites and 25 recipient organizations.

They are working together to help supply fresh produce to food-insecure families and individuals every day of the week.

Feeding America defines food insecurity as "a lack of consistent access to enough food for every person in a household to live an active, healthy life. This can be a temporary situation for a household or can last a long time. Food insecurity is one way we can measure how many people cannot afford food."

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, "more than 38 million people, including 12 million children, experience food insecurity in the United States."

Sadly, the Lehigh Valley is no stranger to food-insecure families and individuals.

Recently, Stacker.com published an article on "Counties with the highest rate of food insecure children in Pennsylvania."

There are 67 counties in Pennsylvania.

Stacker.com listed the top 50.

Lehigh County came in at No. 47, with 11,690 food-insecure children.

There are an additional 24,990 adults considered to be food-insecure in Lehigh County, for an overall food-insecurity rate of 10 percent.

In Northampton County there were 7,380 children and 28,260 adults considered to be food-insecure, for an overall food-insecurity rate of 8.6 percent.

Residents can help PARLV bring those numbers down.

Visit their website, <https://plantarowlv.org/>, to register your garden, find the nearest donation drop-off location and/or learn additional ways to volunteer.

If you have an hour or two a week, every other week, or on an as needed basis, check out their need for volunteer drivers.

If you know of a good place for a drop-off location, contact info@plantarowlv.org.

Jacques Cousteau

Jacques Cousteau introduced people to the beauty of the undersea world.

When he was four years old, Jacques Cousteau learned to swim. Little did his family know that swimming would lead him to a life of adventure, discovery and joy.

One day, while swimming at a beach, a friend gave Jacques a pair of goggles with rubber rims to keep out water. With these, Jacques was able to see fish, shells, plants—a whole new world under the sea.

As an adult, Cousteau transformed a navy ship into a research vessel he and his crew used to explore the world's oceans. He named it after the Greek goddess of the sea. Use the code to discover the name.

The more time Jacques spent _____, the longer he wanted to stay. He and his friends practiced _____ their _____

But Jacques wanted more _____ underwater. To be able to do that, he invented something that would let him _____ underwater. He called it the Aqua-Lung. ### Movie Kid Jacques loved movies. But not just to watch them. He wanted to make them. At 13 years old, Jacques saved his allowance, penny by penny, until he could buy a small home-movie camera.

Then he made as many movies as he could. He liked to dress up as a villain with a painted-on mustache.

Explorer, Moviemaker, Environmentalist

As Jacques Cousteau spent longer periods of time underwater, he could make longer, more informative movies. Soon, his movies were getting attention and awards around the world. People wanted more.

He needed a boat to travel and explore bodies of water around the world. He found a used naval ship and turned it into an explorer's ship.

For the rest of his life, Jacques traveled the world, explored, studied and made films about the wonders of the underwater world.

Sadly, as time went on, Jacques saw underwater plants and animals dying. He saw that when people dumped garbage and chemicals into the ocean, it poisoned the animals and plants he loved so much.

He started to make movies to warn people of the dangers of pollution. His movies have raised money and helped people understand the importance of saving our oceans.

Liberty HS Class of 1972 members celebrated their 50th class reunion at the Northampton Country Club June 24, with close to 100 alumni in attendance. Everyone had an enjoyable time, with good food, music and dancing, as it was a night to reminisce days gone by and catch up on their past and new adventures.

Many said they have not seen each other for a few years. Some have moved out of the Lehigh Valley area. Most are retired and loving it by spending their time with their children and grandchildren or just doing what they love now that they have time to enjoy it. Some said they had traveled from Florida for this once in a lifetime event.

The menu included braised beef short ribs, honey glazed chicken, herb roasted potatoes, carrots, vegetarian pasta, salad, rolls and dessert.

Music was provided by DJ John Tone who is also a retired Liberty HS teacher.

Attendees

Steven and Kim O'Shall with Althea and John Moyer.

Sal Pizzino

with his wife Gail Douvanis-Pizzino and Eric Ruth.

Keith Millward drove up from North Carolina to attend the reunion. Keith retired from the post office and moved south to be closer to his children.

This memorial was created for those class members who have passed.

Sue Collins and Mercedes Izquierdo-Bowers stop for a photo op.

Dancing to the music provided by DJ John Tone, who is also a retired Liberty HS teacher.

Sandra Deangelis-Jorgensen with husband Lars.

Sue Molnar-Gosztanyi and Diane Stefanik-Seip.

Beth Crocker-Parker, Lynn Apple, Evelyn Baxeane and Kathy Hein hit the dance floor.

Kathy Hubinsky-Perkins with husband Edward and Rich Schultz and John Hengstenberger enjoy the evening.

Andres resigns; lunch fee hike ok'd

BY CHRIS HARING
Special to the Bethlehem Press

SAUCON VALLEY

Despite being fairly brief at barely over half an hour, the July 26 Saucon Valley School Board meeting broke two major pieces of news: director Edward Andres' resignation and a hike in breakfast/lunch prices for the upcoming school year.

Andres, a local attorney who was himself appointed to fill a vacancy in January 2019 and would have faced re-election in 2023, did not attend the meeting nor provide a statement. Board President Dr. Shamim Pakzad called Andres "a personal friend" and said he believes that Andres resigned to "focus on his career and family."

With a vacancy on the board, district Solicitor Mark Fitzgerald explained that the board has 30 days under Pa. Public School Code to appoint a replacement. Adding that there's "no specific way" that the code requires districts to fill the vacancies, he recommended that the board first establish a timeline, and advised the district's administration to advertise the opening and its qualifications on its website.

By the end of business the Friday before the next scheduled board meeting (12:30 pm Aug. 5), interested and qualified individuals should submit a Letter of Interest and resume. "Qualified" in this case means the individual meets "minimal legal requirements to be a holder of office in Pa," Fitzgerald added.

The board accepted the resignation of director Edward Andres, who's served since his appointment in early 2019.

Approved candidates would then be invited to the Aug. 9 meeting to make a "brief public statement," followed by public discussion and deliberation, Fitzgerald continued. Ultimately, the board should vote on a replacement if they feel one of the candidates meets their needs, and could do so that same evening, he added.

In the other big story from the evening, students (and parents) will be paying more for food at all three levels.

Retail breakfast prices will increase by five cents across the board, with morning meals now carrying a $1.90 price tag. Meanwhile, lunch at the elementary school will jump 10 cents from $2.90 to $3.00, while hungry middle and high school pupils will have to fork over $3.25 — a 20-cent surge over 2019-20. (All meals had been provided free by the district for the past two academic years due to the COVID-19 pandemic.)

Business Manager David Bonenberger defended the decision and said, "We're seeing tripled prices in what our food costs are, so we're trying to... at least break even." Pakzad asked if there would be any impact on students receiving subsidized reduced-costs meals, but Bonenberger said that the program is set independently by the state.

Meanwhile, board Vice President Susan Baxter said she thought the increases might be too meager in light of "tripled costs." However, Bonenberger reasserted the district's priority is "to mitigate costs," rather than turn a profit. The motion ultimately passed unanimously.

In other business, Superintendent Jaime Vlasaty acknowledged the district's multiple remaining open positions. She said she's been "interviewing [candidates] throughout the summer," as Saucon still needs two paraprofessionals and a long-term speech therapist.

With the summer "getting down to the wire," some current teachers who are interviewing for positions elsewhere have not made their decisions yet, she added. Hence, the district can only anticipate so many openings, also contributing to the delay.

Vlasaty also noted that interviews for a new high school principal and a director of Curriculum, Instruction and Education Technology began that week, and ones for open special education and middle school secretary positions would follow shortly thereafter.

Lastly, in a budgetary item of note, a total of 20 department chairs, team leaders and grade level chairs across the district's three buildings were narrowly approved by a 5-3 vote. Pakzad and his colleagues Bryan Eichfeld and John Conte opposed the in-house appointments, which are accompanied by $2,000 annual stipends.

Ronald K. De Long's recent work at Baum School of Art

Ronald K. De Long, "Wind-shifts, Mood-swings, & Other Anomalies," highlights the prolific artist's recent work, including watercolors, oils, landscapes, portraits, collages and three-dimensional mixed-media assemblages.

The Lehigh Valley-based artist, educator and philanthropist's exhibition concludes with a reception, 6 - 8 p.m. Aug. 18, David E. Rodale and Rodale Family Galleries, The Baum School of Art, Allentown.

Genres in the exhibition range from impressionistic through the abstract. De Long refers to these variations as "Mood-swings" and Japanese-inspired "Wind-shifts," hence the exhibition's title.

"This is not just one collection of work," says Baum School of Art Development and Communications Director Lauren Fauri. The pieces are drawn from multiple series, yet they complement each other, she says.

"I took a class to the Allentown Rose Garden. A class of adult learners," says De Long, whose De Long's Studio & Gallery 2908 is in Slatington.

De Long provided instruction on sketching from life and bringing those studies back to the studio.

De Long's "Allentown

Rose Garden" (2022, oil on canvas, 24 in. x 36 in.) was created while using the studies as reference. "I take photographic notes as well," says the artist.

Instead of limiting himself to colors in the photographs, De Long sometimes changes them while following color theory when rendering his compositions.

Regarding the "Rose Garden" painting, De Long says, "I didn't want it to be realistic, I didn't want it to be impressionistic, and I wanted it to be more stylized."

"It's my interpretation of the space."

He humbly asserts, "I can't create anything better than the Great Maker upstairs can create them."

Among the exhibition's "Other Anomalies" are imaginative watercolors and oils of crows that De Long initially sketched in his backyard for his "Raven's Quote" series.

Also, inspired as a child by Mary Martin's televised portrayal of Peter Pan, De Long created the nautically-whimsical "Sailing Through Neverland" series several years ago. A flotilla was created with wooden toy ship hulls and outfitted with sails constructed of photographic images of his family, friends and memories, along with other fun and nostalgic elements.

De Long knew he wanted to be an artist at age 5. His neighbor, Peterson Field Guide illustrator Janet Wehr inspired and encouraged him.

De Long received a BS in Art Education from Kutztown University in 1972 after attending Pennsylvania's York Academy of Art in 1967. His post-graduate studies have taken him to the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Gloucester Academy of Art in Massachusetts and University of Salzburg in Austria, as well as private instruction.

Beneficiaries of De Long's support of the arts include The Baum School of Art and Penn State Lehigh Valley where he founded the Ronald K. De Long Gallery.

Proceeds from the sale of catalogs of De Long's exhibition at Baum benefit the school. During the run of the exhibition, catalogs are free with a purchase of art.

Computer 'Playtime' at Arthaus

"Playtime," a light-hearted exhibition of computer-generated work created by artist-journalist Tim Higgins concluded Aug. 5, Arthaus, Allentown.

Higgins' "Playtime" (2022; digital media on glass, 29 in. x 22 in.) is the centerpiece and title of his 2022 series of digital collages.

Self-contained with its digitally-crafted frame and shelves, the piece appears to be a three-dimensional assemblage of toys and other found objects. The focal point is a child-like figure in a blue shark costume rising up from below a diorama featuring a plastic bridge beset by model planes.

Instead of clipping images from printed materials and gluing them to a canvas or board, Higgins scans them or uses images he finds online. These are manipulated and arranged on a laptop computer screen. The artist makes houses and creates original images with art and paint software. The artist proofs are printed on glass.

Higgins began experimenting with the digital format in 2008.

"It's all about play," explains Higgins about the digital medium, which he finds fascinating. "It opened up new possibilities and a certain amount of freedom."

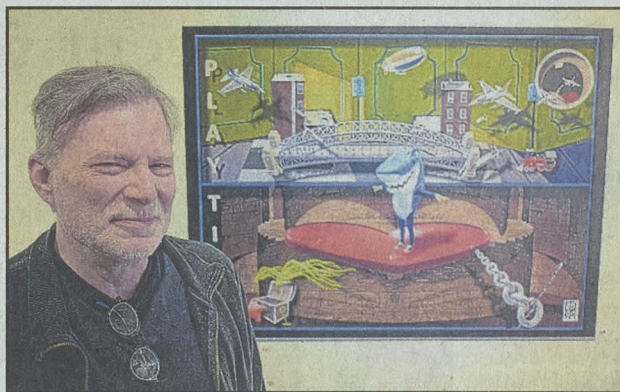

"Higgins' visual information choices bring us to a very Carl Jung place in our unconscious mind, how we form memories from childhood from films, cartoons, and marketing," says Arthaus exhibition curator Deborah Rabinsky. "This brings us to a collective consciousness as viewer."

Higgins use of intense, vibrant, hues is enhanced by their application to the inside of the glass panes with white foam board as backing.

"It's a 'Technicolor' type of coloring," Higgins says. It's influenced by early cartoon animation where the colors were rendered on plastic sheets, known as cels.

"I'm trying to be of my times," Higgins says, regarding his use of images reminiscent of the 1950s and 1960s. Astronauts, planets, spaceships, vintage cartoon and comic book characters inhabit these digital universes, along with suburban tract housing recognizable from that era. "These things remind me, not only of my childhood, but of my present times."

Although each work appears to tell a story, "It's up to the viewer," says Higgins. "These are objects within an object. It's having fun with what you see."

Higgins studied art at Kutztown University, Northampton Community College and with James Carroll at the New Arts Program.

Higgins pursued a career in journalism after starting out as a copy boy at age 15 at The Morning Call.

All the while, Higgins nurtured his talent as a visual artist, first with traditional mediums.

He credits teacher Dolly Yanolko at Salisbury High School for inspiring his love of visual art.

Curb your ‘Super-Pets’

First of all, there’s the title: “DC League of Super-Pets.”

It’s not much of a league. It doesn’t take place in Washington, D.C. And your movie ticket won’t get you a discount at the Super Pets store.

“DC League of Super-Pets” is as annoying as a neighbor’s dog barking for no apparent reason.

“DC League of Super-Pets” is a feature animated film that was produced and released for no apparent reason. It’s not entertaining for adults. It’s too violent for children. It displaces character development and plot for mindless and lengthy action scenes.

The movie starts out promisingly enough with a DC Comics Superman origin story that outdoes that of Marlon Brando as Jor-El, Superman’s biological father, in “Superman” (1978). Krypto the Superdog (voiced by Dwayne Johnson) squeezes into the craft transporting the Superbaby, the future Superman, to Earth.

On Earth, years fly by and the adult Superman is soon tossing Batman chew toys to Krypto in what looks like a stylized Central Park in New York City. Of course, it’s Metropolis. You can tell because of the Daily Planet building.

No sooner that you can say “Man of Steel,” Superman-Clark Kent (John Krasinski) is canoodling with Lois Lane (Olivia Wilde), which in the context of the #metoo movement might constitute workplace harassment.

“DC League of Super-Pets” introduces a rescue shelter of character cameos voiced by well-known actors, including: Kate McKinnon (Lulu), Vanessa Bayer (PB), Natasha Lyonne (Merton), Diego Luna (Chip), Marc Maron (Lex Luthor), Keanu Reeves (Batman) and Jameela Jamil (Wonder Woman). Few have enough screen time to make much of an impression.

Dwayne Johnson as Krypto does make an impression. Johnson has a very distinctive and expressive voice.

Kevin Hart, voicing Ace, a top dog from the rescue shelter, makes less of an impression.

The movie is directed by Jared Stern (director, “Happy Anniversary,” 2018) and co-directed by Sam Levine (feature film directorial debut) from a screenplay by Stern and John Whittington (screenwriter, “The Lego Batman Movie,” 2017).

The character animation, especially that of Krypto, is terrific. The characters have a smooth yet expressive appearance. The character movement is excellent. The backgrounds are warm and detailed.

Mostly, though, action scenes, endless action scenes, repetitive action scenes fill out the bulk of the movie. We’ve seen all this before long ago in Warner Bros. Wile E. Coyote “Looney Tunes” cartoons, created by Chuck Jones, beginning in 1948.

“DC League of Super-Pets” is noisy, pointless and in need of a good screenplay trainer. Those responsible for this animated feature film need to be curbed.

“DC League of Super-Pets,” MPAA rated PG (Parental Guidance Suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.) for action, mild violence, language and rude humor; Genre: Animation, Action, Adventure; Run time; 1 hour, 46 minutes.

St. Luke’s, D&L Trail add Musikfest challenge

St. Luke’s University Health Network has teamed with Musikfest’s parent non-profit ArtsQuest to add a Musikfest walking challenge to its popular “Get Your Tail on the Trail” program that encourages people of all ages and abilities to log 165 miles of activity through Nov. 7.

Festival attendees can combine their enjoyment of music, food and other festivities while improving their health at this year’s Musikfest, which continues through Aug. 14.

Participants in the Walking Challenge are to log their miles walking from platz to platz on Bethlehem’s south side and north side.

Walking is logged on the “Get Your Tail on the Trail” app or website.

Those who log at least 10 miles at the 10-day festival will be entered to win two front row tickets for next year’s Main Stage lineup at Musikfest.

“The Musikfest challenge was created to encourage physical activity while experiencing the excitement of Musikfest,” said Kathy Ramson, DNP, RN, Network Director Healthy Living Initiatives.

Ramson said St. Luke’s was inspired to add the Musikfest challenge because many Musikfest volunteers participate in the 165-mile challenge and rack up miles during the festival.

Participation in the 165-mile challenge and the Musikfest portion are free. Prizes are mailed to those who complete the 165-mile challenge. Previous prizes have included ponchos, backpacks and mobile telephone holders and more.

The app is at: www.tailonthetrail.org

MUSIKFEST

Street on the north side and on the Wind Creek Stage, Levitt Pavilion and in ArtsQuest Center at SteelStacks on the south side.

After more than a decade, a favorite platz returned to Payrow Plaza, Bethlehem City Hall and Bethlehem Public Library. It’s PNC Stadtplat. The site was formerly Americaplatz, which is at Levitt Pavilion SteelStacks.

New this year are “backstage experiences” for fans at Wind Creek Stage and PNC Stadtplat.

After debuting its first Inclusion Zone for Musikfest 2021, ArtsQuest, in partnership with Accessible Festivals, added a second Inclusion Zone for 2022. Musikfest Inclusion Zones are sensory-supportive areas that provide services, tools and amenities for persons of all ages and abilities with sensory-processing difficulties.

Sponsored by Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Network, the Inclusion Zones are on the north and south sides. The first Inclusion Zone was at Musikfest 2021.

Here are some highlights of free concerts at Musikfest:

At Air Products Americaplatz at Levitt Pavilion SteelStacks, there’s We Banjo 3, Aug. 10, and Shovels & Rope, Aug. 11.

Also on the South Side, in ArtsQuest Center is Frank Banko Alehouse Cinema, with Lutron Jazz Cabaret and Martin Guitar Lyr-ikplat, and concerts in Musikfest Café presented by Yuengling.

North Side concert venues include T-Mobile Plaza Tropical and Wells Fargo Festplat.

Provident Bank Main Street concerts include

Mosey Beat, Aug. 11.

IBEW Local 375 Lie-derplatz concerts include BC Blue, Aug. 12, and the Dina Hall Band, Aug. 13.

There’s also Guardian Life Insurance Company of America Zinzenplatz.

Concerts at PNC Stadtplat include Boat House Row, Aug. 10.

Musikfest CashCards, introduced in 2021, are back for Musikfest 2022. Re-loadable CashCards are available at cash conversion booths.

Credit-debit cards and digital payment methods are accepted on the North Side. Cash is accepted on the South Side.

More than 30 food vendors are at Musikfest.

The free Musikfest app has information about concerts, artisans, vendors and family activities.

St. Luke's Health Network on Top 100 hospitals list

St. Luke's University Health Network has been named to the 2022 Fortune-Merative 100 Top Hospitals list, formerly known as the IBM-Watson Health 100 Top Hospital list.

It's the 10th time that St. Luke's has been recognized with the honor as one of the top performing health systems in the United States. St. Luke's is the only hospital in the greater Lehigh Valley region to earn this distinction.

As part of the distinction, St. Luke's Bethlehem and Allentown campuses were recognized as No. 2 of the 15 Best Major Teaching Hospitals in the U.S.

St. Luke's Anderson campus was also recognized as No. 2 of the 15 Best Teaching Hospitals in the U.S.

"These awards are particularly meaningful because they represent the outstanding healing environment that we provide to patients day in and day out when doing so requires our undivided attention and during a once in two generation pandemic," said Rick Anderson, President and CEO of St. Luke's University Health Network.

Recognition as one of the Fortune-Merative 100 Top Hospitals (IBM Watson Health) demonstrates St. Luke's ongoing commitment to prioritize patient-centered care.

According to Merative, compared to similar hospitals, the hospitals included on the Fortune-Merative 100 Top Hospitals list had outstanding outcomes on key clinical and operational performance indicators.

The outcomes include survival rates, patient complications, health-care associated infections, 30-day mortality and 30-day hospital-wide readmission rates, length of stay, throughput in emergency departments, inpatient expenses, profitability and ratings from patients.

Merative, formerly IBM Watson Health, a data, analytics and technology partner for the health industry, identified for 2022 the top hospitals from a rigorous evaluation of 2,650 short-term, acute care, non-federal hospitals in the U.S. The annual list recognizes excellence in clinical outcomes, operational efficiency, patient experience, and financial health.

Though the sponsoring company has changed over the years, the methodology behind the rankings remains the same as in prior years. The list is determined using independent and objective research to analyze hospital performance. Organizations do not apply or pay for this honor or pay to promote their award. Award-winning hospitals serve as a model of excellence for the industry.

Merative is a data, analytics and technology partner for the health industry, including providers, payers, life sciences companies and governments.

Merative helps clients orient information and insights around the people they serve to improve healthcare delivery, decision-making and performance. Formerly IBM Watson Health, Merative became a new standalone company as part of Francisco Partners in 2022.

Founded in 1872, St. Luke's University Health Network is a regional, non-profit network of more than 17,000 employees providing services at 14 campuses and more than 300 outpatient sites.

With annual net revenue of $3 billion, the Network's service area includes 11 counties in two states: Lehigh, Northampton, Berks, Bucks, Carbon, Montgomery, Monroe, Schuylkill and Luzerne counties in Pennsylvania and Warren and Hunterdon counties in New Jersey. St. Luke's hospitals operate the biggest network of trauma centers in Pennsylvania.

The annual list is published by Fortune Magazine: <http://www.100tophospitals.com/>

Temple University Hospital Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation Residency Program participants are at Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Network South Allentown campus.

Good Shepherd partners with Temple U. residency

Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Network has welcomed future physiatrists in training to its South Allentown campus, launching a partnership with the Temple University Hospital Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation (PM&R) Residency Program.

Good Shepherd's collaboration with Temple matches nine highly-qualified candidates in the field of physiatry for a three-year categorical training program at Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Hospital, 850 S. Fifth St., Allentown.

The primary aim of the Temple University Hospital PM&R Residency Program at Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Network is to train physicians who specialize in PM&R.

For more than 53 years, Temple has been a highly-ranked training program and was one of the first in the United States to create a residency in PM&R.

"It truly is an honor to partner with such a high-performing residency program," said Sandeep Singh, MD, Good Shepherd senior vice president of medical affairs and chief medical officer.

"Temple has produced some of the most prominent physician leaders in our industry, and we intend to carry on that legacy and enhance the program's existing reputation," said Singh.

Through the Temple University Hospital-Good Shepherd partnership, residents will have a majority focus on inpatient rehabilitation at Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Hospital, including brain-injury medicine, stroke rehabilitation, medical rehabilitation and spinal cord injury medicine. The residents also will have the opportunity to experience ambulatory services relevant to chronic disease populations.

"I am anticipating that this collaboration between Temple University Hospital and Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Network will bring our already stellar PM&R residency program to a new level of training excellence," said Sam S. H. Wu, MD, MA, MPH, MBA, professor and chair, Department of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at the Lewis Katz School of Medicine at Temple University.

"It is our goal to provide an experience where training residents can fully understand the breadth and scope of physiatry," said Singh.

"We are modeling our training around the future of value-based care and will inspire our future physiatrists to be thoughtful, forward-thinking clinical leaders, who will impact the outcomes of the communities we serve, primarily people with complex injuries and chronic disabilities, for decades to come," Singh said.

Several Good Shepherd physicians will serve as faculty in Temple's PM&R Department and will have responsibility for the program's success and integrity. Many other Good Shepherd departments will collaborate with the residents to explore and enhance opportunities for research, education and quality improvement.

Good Shepherd is building a state-of-the-art inpatient rehabilitation hospital in Center Valley, Upper Saucon Township, that will serve persons with complex medical conditions, such as stroke, spinal cord injury, brain injury and other serious illnesses or injuries.

Charger plate decorative addition to table

Dear Jacquelyn,
Can you please explain the purpose of a charger plate and can food be served directly on them?

Dear Reader,
A charger plate is an elegant and underused element of a place setting. They provide a decorative base setting on top of which other dinnerware is placed during formal occasions such as catered events, weddings, upscale parties, or in fine dining restaurants.

Also known as a service plate or under plate, a charger plate is merely decorative and is not meant to come in direct contact with food.

Rather, this particular plate serves as an aesthetic resting place onto

RESPECTFULLY YOURS

By Jacquelyn Youst

which food-bearing dishes and bowls are placed.

Not only are charger plates used to create a unique presentation it also has a practical purpose. It is the perfect way to prevent stains on tablecloths and the table itself. Spills and tiny pieces of food dropped and other messes are caught by the charger plate.

Charger plate etiquette varies slightly depending on the preferences of the host or hostess, but some general rules apply.

The plate should be set when guests arrive even though some hosts remove it before any food is served. More commonly, charger plates are kept on the table during the serving of soup, first courses and the entrée, and act as a base for the actual dinnerware.

Most hosts enjoy the appearance of the charger in combination with the dinner dishes and leave it on the table throughout the course of the meal until removing it before serving dessert.

The most traditional charger plate is circular, but triangle and square chargers are available, depending on the décor and style you're looking to set. Vast color and style options are also available, making for nearly endless possibilities.

Charger plates can be used easily to enhance the look of your dining table. They anchor the dining table and create an aesthetically pleasing ambiance for guests.

Respectfully Yours,
Jacquelyn

Mister Rogers' Neighborhood

Once upon a time, there was a man named Fred Rogers.

He lived in a special place, a neighborhood where everyone was welcome, people were kind to each other and there was no such thing as a stranger.

Everyone was made to feel important in the Fred Rogers neighborhood.

Fred constantly told children how special they are. "I like you just the way you are," he told them.

He knew it was an important message they needed to hear.

In his TV series that ran for 31 seasons over 33 years, he gave confidence to generations of children.

Through all those years he stressed to children and adults alike that a little kindness makes a world of difference.

That timeless message is as true today as it was decades ago. Probably more so. In an age when civility is often missing and so is tolerance, kindness and caring for others can be the salve for a hurting world.

I love my little house and hope I never have to move. But I want to live in Mister Rogers' neighborhood, the one he made come alive.

Who wouldn't want to live in a place where kindness flourishes and people offer each other love and encouragement instead of criticism?

Just this week I was dismayed when two of my neighbors that were close friends for decades had a major falling out after differing political views. After 20 years of caring for each other, they are friends no more.

It saddens me when anyone thinks we should all think alike and there is no room for someone with different beliefs.

In his television show Fred Rogers tackled thorny issues such as intolerance and looking down at someone for any reason.

Although Rogers was an ordained minister, he never preached. In his soft, soothing voice, he brought home the message of accepting everyone in the neighborhood, regardless of color of skin or differing views.

Of course Mister Rogers' Neighborhood was a fictitious place. But for 30 minutes a day through the wonders of television, it became a place as real as a child's imagination.

How many of you watched "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" when you were a kid? Or maybe you turned on the TV show for your own children to watch.

I have to admit I never watched the show until recently when I grew intrigued after seeing two Fred Rogers documentaries. It made me want to see more of him.

Even now when I am decades past my salad days, the show lightens my heart. I can understand why it made millions of kids feel good because it certainly did that for me.

Rogers realized regardless of our age we all need to feel loved.

Way back when Fred Rogers was just the host of his simple TV show, one producer said he

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
newsgirl@comcast.net

needed to have a public appearance so kids could see him in person.

Why would kids clamor to see his live show? He had no slapstick comedy to make them laugh and no special effects. It was just one man with a soft voice talking to kids. Would they want to see that?

They certainly did. Old television footage shows kids lined up for blocks waiting to get in to see Fred.

What drew them? Most likely it was the same thing that still draws people like me to watch his documentaries.

We as a people are drawn to goodness. We all want to feel good and we all want to be part of something good. And after each "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" episode, kids felt good about themselves and about their world.

I just finished reading a new book by Dot Minzer where she devotes an entire chapter to the uplifting magic of Mister Rogers. She, too, believes we can re-create that magic one good deed at a time.

One person at a time, one act of kindness at a time.

Fred Rogers told his audience a good deed is something as simple as smiling at someone. Or saying something nice and encouraging to others.

Do you smile at people you encounter? I smile at strangers — the construction crew I pass each day, the lawn cutters, the delivery people, the dog walkers — everyone that crosses my path. Most return the smile.

I don't know if a smile does anything for them but giving away all those smiles makes me feel happy. Try it.

When Fred Rogers ended production in 2001, he received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the National Academy of Arts and Science.

He gave the star-studded audience a most unusual acceptance speech. He told them to close their eyes for 10 full seconds (he timed it) and think about all those that have loved them into being ... those who cared about them and made a difference by that caring.

I do that many nights as I fall asleep. It takes a lot more than 10 seconds but it never fails to fill my heart with joy and gratitude.

Although "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" stopped airing years ago, reruns can still be seen on many PBS stations. Over 305 episodes still continue to give youngsters confidence to know they are special and have worth.

Isn't that something we all need to know?

Mister Rogers reminds us our world is beautiful and we can make it even better by planting kindness.

Kindness never gets old and never loses its ability to uplift others.

Sleep apnea requires doctor's diagnosis

Q. I'm tired most days and I never feel rested. Could I have sleep apnea?

I urge you to get to a doctor for a diagnosis because sleep apnea can be a serious disorder.

High blood pressure is common in sleep apnea. Sudden drops in blood oxygen levels that occur during sleep stoppages increase blood pressure and strain the cardiovascular system, raising the risk of heart failure and stroke.

About 18 million Americans have sleep apnea. It's much more common in older adults and men. Apnea is Greek for "without breath."

People with sleep apnea stop breathing for as long as 30 seconds at a time. These interruptions can happen hundreds of times a night. The breathing cessations may wake you and prevent you from getting a good night's sleep. These awakenings usually are so brief that you don't recall them.

There are two kinds of sleep apnea: central and obstructive.

If you have central sleep apnea, there's a communication breakdown between the breathing muscles and your brain. It's uncommon.

About 90 percent of

HEALTHY GEEZER

sleep-apnea victims have obstructive apnea, which is caused by a blockage in the windpipe. Obstructive sleep apnea occurs when the muscles in the back of your throat relax.

These muscles support the soft palate, tonsils, tongue and uvula, the latter hangs in the back of your mouth. When the muscles relax, your airway is narrowed and breathing is cut off. A blockage can also be caused by a lot of fatty tissue in the throat.

The most common symptoms of sleep apnea include:

- * Excessive daytime sleepiness
- * Loud snoring
- * Observed episodes of breathing stoppages during sleep
- * Abrupt awakenings with shortness of breath
- * Awakening with a dry mouth or sore throat
- * Morning headache
- * Problems associated with sleep deprivation such as forgetfulness and mood changes.

A common treatment for sleep apnea that helps most sufferers is Continuous Positive Airway Pressure (CPAP). You sleep with a special mask that adds pressure to the air you breathe. There are several types of air-pressure devices available.

Mild cases of apnea can be treated with dental devices that move your jaw forward to make breathing easier. In very few cases, surgery is necessary to remove tonsils or extra tissue from the throat.

Another option is upper airway stimulation. A small subcutaneous device is put in the chest. This device has an electrode that stimulates the tongue muscles to open the airway enabling you to breathe easily.

There are some self-help techniques:

- * Sleep on your side instead of your back. Sleeping on your back can cause your tongue and soft palate to rest against the back of your throat and block your airway.
- * Eliminate alcoholic beverages and sleep medicines, which relax the muscles in your throat.
- * Quit smoking. Nicotine is a stimulant and can interfere with sleep. Smoke is an irritant to nose, throat and lungs.
- * Lose weight. A fat neck tends to narrow the airway in your throat.

When you go to a doctor for a diagnosis, he or she may refer you to a sleep disorder center.

You may be asked to undergo overnight monitoring of your breathing and other body functions during sleep.

You may also be referred to an ear, nose and throat doctor to rule out any blockage in your nose or throat.

Your tasks for August should be underway

Here are your recommended tasks for August.

Scout for spotted lanternfly adults and adjust treatment methods if needed.

Scout for Japanese beetle grubs in lawns. Treat with a season-long grub control product if populations are high. Collect Japanese beetles in a jar of soapy water in the early morning.

Water, water, water, especially during periods of drought. Water recently-planted trees and shrubs weekly until they are established. Water container grown plants daily.

Water tomato plants consistently. Uneven soil moisture may result in the dreaded blossom end rot on the tomato fruit.

Harvest tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, squash, beans and other vegetables to keep the plants producing.

Potatoes can be dug as soon as the tops die. Let potatoes sit on top of the soil for two or three hours to dry, then place in burlap or mesh bags and store in a dark, cool place.

Pick lima beans while still green.

Late beets should be thinned.

Sow cool season crops such as peas, lettuce, spinach, radishes, beets, broccoli and kale.

Gather and dry herbs and flowers at their peak in a cool, airy and shady place. Cut herbs just before the flowers open.

Remove spent flowers from perennials and annuals to encourage reblooming.

Divide and replant clumps of bearded iris so that they have time to form new roots and flower buds before the onset of cold weather.

Divide peonies in late August through September. Do not bury buds more than one-inch beneath the soil surface.

Purchase and plant spring-flowering bulbs such as daffodils, allium, tulips, crocus, and hyacinths.

Raise the cutting height on your lawn mower to three inches to keep grass longer during hot weather.

Keep birdbaths filled with water during hot weather.

Check for powdery mildew on peonies, phlox, bee balm and other plants.

Remove severely-damaged foliage and discard in the trash.

Check evergreens for spider mite damage. Look for yellowing or speckled needles.

If using a chemical treatment for insect pests, protect pollinators by spraying during a time of day when bees and butterflies are least active and only during dry, still weather.

Blossom end rot: What's happening to my vegetables? You've waited for that perfect tomato or pepper. Then, a black, sunken spot appears on the bottom of the fruit.

Blossom end rot affects fruit of peppers, tomatoes, eggplant, and, to a lesser degree, squash and melons.

The damage is dark lesions or sunken areas on the bottom, or blossom end, of the fruit. It is caused from calcium deficiency in the part of the fruit farthest from the stem. Wide fluctuations in available water are usually the cause since this affects the plant's ability to absorb calcium from the soil.

To try to prevent blossom end rot, irrigate plants regularly and mulch to preserve soil moisture. Look for plant varieties that are resistant to blossom end rot.

Good, healthy eating: Heirloom tomatoes come in varied size, color, texture, shape and taste and are healthy to eat.

Research supports that foods high in lycopene may help to reduce the risk for prostate, digestive and pancreatic cancers.

Tomato products are responsible for more than 80 percent of the lycopene in the United States diet.

Radishes are a good source of antioxidants and contain Vitamin C.

Cucumbers have a unique set of antioxidants, including flavonoids, lignans and triterpenes. They not only protect cells but also lessen inflammation linked to arthritis and other long-term conditions.

THERE WILL BE NO REDEMPTION PERIOD AFTER THE DATE OF THE SALE.

LIFETIME HEALTH ADVISORY EXCEEDENCE

ESTE INFORME CONTIENE INFORMACION IMPORTANTE ACERCA DE SUE AGUA POTABLE. HAGA QUE ALGUIEN LO TRADUZCA PARA USTED, O HABLE CON ALGUIEN QUE LO ENTIENDA.

The Borough of Emmaus has levels of Perfluorooctane sulfonate (PFOS) / Perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA) above EPA Lifetime Health Advisory Levels

Our water system recently exceeded an EPA Lifetime Health Advisory Level for PFOS / PFOA. Although this incident was not an emergency, as our customers, and our residents, you have a right to know what happened and what we are doing to correct this situation.

Testing results that were received on August 1, 2022, show that our system exceeds EPA Lifetime Health Advisory Level for PFOS / PFOA. The Lifetime Advisory Level for PFOS / PFOA is 70 parts per trillion (70 ng/L). PFOS / PFOA levels exceeding this level were found at both Well #1 and Well #2 within the Borough. Both wells share the same aquifer. Well #1 tested at an elevated level of 232 ng/L per tests conducted by the Borough. Well #2 tested at 1560 ng/L per tests conducted per tests conducted by the Borough. Well #2 has been disconnected and deactivated since initial test results were received in October 2021. Well #1 remains operations, however, plans are in place to treat and / or decommission the well.

What should I do?

You do not need to use an alternative (e.g. bottled) water supply, per PA DEP, as these chemicals are not currently regulated chemicals for water supply systems. However, if you have specific health concerns, consult your doctor.

What does this mean?

Per PA DEP's advisement, this is not an immediate risk. If it had been, you would have been notified immediately. However, exposure to PFOS and PFOA over certain levels may result in adverse health effects, including developmental effects to fetuses during pregnancy or to breastfed infants (e.g. low birth weight, accelerated puberty, skeletal variations), cancer (e.g. testicular, kidney), liver effects (e.g. tissue damage), immune effects (e.g. antibody production and immunity), thyroid effects, and other effects (e.g. cholesterol changes). The EPA calculates health advisory levels to offer a margin of protection against adverse health effects to the most sensitive populations: fetuses during pregnancy and breastfed infants.

What are PFOS and PFOA?

PFOS and PFOA are chemicals that are part of a larger group referred to as perfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS). These chemicals are manmade and do not occur naturally in the environment. Because these chemicals have been used in a number of consumer products, most people have been exposed to them. PFAS often shows up on items such as wild caught fish, dust particles, food that was packaged in different types of containers (such as popcorn), cleaning products, stain resistant carpet, water repellent clothing, non-stick cookware, fast food wrappers, pizza boxes, candy wrappers, and even certain plastic containers you drink from. The chemical stability of PFOS and PFOA also makes them very persistent to the environment. As is the case in the Borough's situation, PFOS is also contained in firefighting foam.

What happened? What was done?

The aquifer that feeds Well #1 and Well #2 is directly adjacent to the Borough's Fire Training Facility. Well #2 is located directly adjacent to the facility. The facility has hosted firefighting training for fire departments across Lehigh County for approximately 5 decades. Over the years, firefighting foam was commonly used to extinguish fires during training and practice. As is the case in most instances, PFOS was not a knowingly harmful product. It was not until three years ago that fire departments were informed that PFOS was a harmful agent to water sources. At that time the Borough immediately stopped using this type of foam and prohibited its use at the Fire Training Grounds. However, the Borough was advised that we should keep the foam on hand in case of a large fire. Therefore, we continued to store extra foam at our facility, until recently. It is important to note that this is the first time the wells have tested at elevated levels for these chemicals.

The Borough of Emmaus is continuing to work with PA DEP to address the elevated PFOS/PFOA levels. Initial steps included the immediate shut down of Well#2, issuance of Public Notification, and continued monitoring of PFOS/PFOA levels in the drinking water. The next steps include the development of a feasibility study which will evaluate permanent solutions to address the elevated PFOS/PFOA levels, including but not limited to: potential interconnections with neighboring Public Water Systems, water treatment proposals capable of PFOS/PFOA removal, and the potential development of additional sources. Following the study, the Borough of Emmaus will seek an Emergency Public Water System Permit to address the chosen solution of the study.

Because Well #2 is a crucial part of the Borough's water system, the Borough cannot sustain shutting the well down for an extended period of time. Emmaus Borough Council, at its meeting on November 15, 2021, voted to purchase a Calgon 10 Carbon Model 10 absorption system that is designed for the removal of dissolved organic contaminants from liquids using granular activated carbon. The system is particularly designed to remove pollutants, including PFAS chemicals. Because of the complexity of the issue, and because the Borough needs to treat two wells, the Borough has been working towards a long-term, effective solution. The Borough is currently working with PA DEP to obtain an emergency permit to install the carbon absorption system as well as with other agencies to adopt a long-term resolution.

The Borough will continue to monitor both wells and test them quarterly, even after the purchase of the new carbon absorption system. If the level of Well #1 continues to be elevated, the Borough will explore all options to take corrective action. Well #2 will continue to be offline until the carbon system is purchased. The Borough is also conducting testing of all other wells in the Borough. Tests have shown all levels to date are either undetectable or within acceptable ranges as prescribed by PA DEP.

THE EFFECTS OF INFREQUENT DRIVING ON VEHICLE PERFORMANCE

• Battery loses its charge. The battery in a vehicle is still being used even if the car isn't running. Batteries power various components in a car, such as the vehicle computer, phone chargers and more. If the engine does not turn over and help to recharge the battery, the battery will eventually die. People who drive infrequently may want to consider a trickle charger that's plugged in during periods of non-use.

• Tire rot can set in. Dry tire rot is deterioration that sets into the rubber. The material dries out and becomes brittle, causing splits and cracks to form. Driving with tire rot can cause tires to deflate.

• Rust and corrosion can occur. There is still plenty of metal in modern vehicles. A vehicle that has been exposed to salt or rain or one that is stored in a moist climate can be susceptible to undercarriage or engine rust. This may cause damage that's not easily repaired.

• Damage from sap or droppings. A vehicle parked in one location for a long time could be a target for bird droppings, fallen berries, sap, and other substances that are potentially harmful to the paint job. Leaving the car or truck out in the sun also means UV rays can cause clear coat over the paint to oxidize and begin to fail, which can produce blotchy or peeling spots.

• Poor brake performance. When vehicles are left to sit, corrosion could build up on the rotors and the brake pads may become less flexible. Moisture also may seep into brake lines, causing issues with pressurization of brake fluid. Each of these factors adds up to brakes that do not work properly - which is a big safety hazard.

• Formation of tire flat spots. When tires are not used frequently, the weight of the car can continually put pressure on the same parts of the tires, leading to flat spots. Tires also can lose pressure if they sit too long.

• Oil and other fluids may lose efficacy. Various fluids can go stale in a vehicle if it isn't regularly driven. Gasoline also may develop condensation, which can reduce efficiency and performance. Taking short trips helps avoid this issue.
