

Gadfly Forum starts today at noon with mayoral candidate comments on the City budget

The Bethlehem Gadfly Candidates for election, Election, Gadfly Forum March 15, 2021

So, we're doing this feature called the Gadfly Forum.

With luck, we may have something going every day of the week at noon during the run-up to the May 18 election.

Gadfly's excited!

The candidates will get a chance to let loose a bit.

And we can weigh in too.

Here's a bit more about how it will work if a sufficient number of candidates and residents will participate.

Gadfly will pose a prompt each week on the same general subject (help him, send suggestions of topics or questions) to the candidates. Mayoral candidates reply Mondays, Council candidates reply Tuesdays.

Wednesdays and Thursdays respectively the candidates can reply to each other or expand on their responses.

During this whole period, you are invited to respond, and I'll collect those responses for posting on Fridays.

To begin, we look for participation in the Forum by the mayoral candidates today at noon.

Their prompt is related to the City budget.

A good place to start, no?

Are you on board??????
