Bonilla removed from 3 posts

By DYLAN WHITE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem School Board Director Basilio A. Bonilla Jr. has been removed from three of his appointed positions.

Board President Michael Faccinetto made the announcement indicating the board's decision prior to the start of the Sept. 8 Facilities Committee meeting.

Bonilla, recently appointed as the northeast regional director for the National Hispanic Council of School Board Members and one of a few LGBT elected officials in the Lehigh Valley, sent a letter to the Allentown School District Sept. 4 inquiring about alleged inequalities between Hispanics and Caucasians in the area.

In the letter, Bonilla requested data from the district and meetings with school officials. The letter was claimed to be in response to several concerns received from citizens and organizations in the district.

District reviews Roadmap guidelines

By DYLAN WHITE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

On Sept. 8, the Bethlehem Area School District Board Curriculum Committee convened, led by Dr. Jack Silva, assistant superintendent for education and chief academic officer.

The main focus of the meeting was to give an update and review of Roadmap 2.0, the district's proposed plan for increasing academic achievement in schools.

Fully titled "Roadmap 2.0 to Educational Excellence – One Child at a Time," the plan "identifies academic goals and data indicators that guide our mission to educate the whole child "

Remembering 9/11

As it has done every year since terrorist attacks claimed 2,977 lives on American soil, Hanover Township remembered. Sept. 11 was just like any other busy weekday, but outside the Hanover Township Recreation Center, as joggers stream by, a group of about 70 people is reminded of the tragedy that forever changed this country. More 9/11 coverage on A4, A14, A15.

Alfonso Guzman, a survivor of the fallen towers, recounts his harrowing ordeal. Following his brief remarks, Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts from the Bethlehem area participated in a flag retirement ceremony, feeding two towers with hundreds of old American flags. Instead of the tragic conflagration caused by terrorists, the fires seemed to represent American determination.

ABOVE: Adam Dabrowski leads the scouts, who explain each facet of the ceremony. The scouts who participated in this exercise include Richard Joseph Barlow, Micahel Prendeville, Luke Heffelfinger, Luke Mille, Graham Phillips, William Gavlik, Nate Beisel, Adam Wenrich, Zach Rodgers, Jacob Kuder, Nicholas Fritz, Frank Mille, Ilia Khallouf, Andre Negron and Victor Koury.

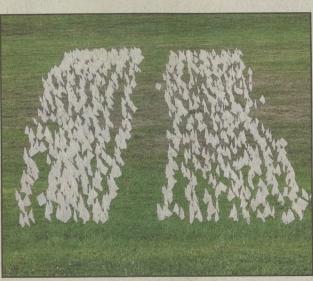

The ceremony is conducted in a patio built by Andy Dauphin as part of his Eagle Scout program.

RIGHT: In addition to the flag retirement, Hanover residents were able to see Rob Cepin's representation of the 2,977 lives lost on 9/11, in the form of white flags in the shape of the Twin Towers. Cepin is the director of recreation in the township.

STATE NCAA Sanctions end early Penn State defender Dent relieved

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI njastrzemski@tnonline.com

The NCAA agreed Sept. 8 to end its sanctions against Penn State's football program two years early.

Congressman Charlie Dent (R-15), who disagreed with the severity of the sanctions, was elated.

"Although the Commonwealth Court is still questioning the legality of the NCAA's fine, today's news represents a victory for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, both for our efforts to prevent the scourge of child sexual abuse and deal with the unthinkable damage it causes and for taxpayers," he said in a statement.

He also applauded the school's athletics integrity monitor former U.S. Senator George Mitchell, for recommending the return of all of the withheld scholarships next year.

Dent has been asking the NCAA to alter or end its sanctions against Penn State University for its default culpability in the Jerry Sandusky child sex abuse scandal since they were announced.

Celiac disease versus gluten intolerance Many people are familiar with the gluten-free movement, even if they don't tailor their diets around gluten-free foods. What began as a relatively unknown dietary restriction among people diagnosed with a certain intestinal disease has branched out to include many other people who avoid gluten for various health reasons.

A sensitivity to or intolerance of gluten is not the same as suffering from celiac disease, a condition that requires people to refrain from eating gluten. Understanding the differences between the disease and the decision to avoid gluten can make it easier to understand the various effects gluten has on the body.

What is gluten?

Bethlehem

Gluten is a protein composite found primarily in wheat and other grains, such as barley, rye and spelt. The stored proteins of corn and rice are sometimes called glutens, but their compositions differ from true gluten.

Gluten often is found naturally in foods and is an important source of protein. Gluten also may be added to foods to supplement their protein context.

supplement their protein content.
Gluten gives dough its elasticity and helps breads rise and keep their shape. Gluten usually gives baked goods a chewy texture. Baking will make gluten molecules come together, which stabilizes the shape of the final product. Gluten also may be used as a stabilizing agent in other foods, like sauces and ice cream.

Celiac disease
Celiac disease is an autoimmune disorder linked to the consumption of gluten. The Celiac Disease Foundation says the disease affects one in 100 people across the globe.
When those with celiac disease eat foods that contain gluten, their bodies see the protein as a foreign invader. As a result, the body mounts an immune system response and ends up attacking itself in the area of the small intestine, which is responsible for nutrient absorption. When the small intestine is damaged severely, it is unable to extract vitamins and minerals from food, leading to various health problems, including malnutrition.

In many cases, celiac disease is hereditary. A person with a first-degree relative, meaning a parent, child or sibling, with celiac disease has a one in 10 risk of developing celiac themselves, according to the CDF. In some instances, all it takes is one instance of consuming gluten to trigger an immune system reaction that continues for life.

immune system reaction that continues for life. There is no cure for celiac disease, and those diagnosed with the disease must avoid gluten to prevent serious health problems. Left untreated, celiac disease can lead to anemia, infertility, neurological conditions, and intestin-

Gluten sensitivity
When consuming gluten, a person with gluten sensitivity or intolerance does not experience symptoms as severely as one who has celiac disease does. For example, those with sensitivity do not experience small intestine damage or develop the autoantibodies found in the tissue of those with celi-

A research team led by celiac expert Alessio Fasano, MD, discovered that gluten sensitivity is associated with an immune response that is very different from the response seen in celiac disease patients. According to the study, which included a four-month gluten challenge, individuals with gluten essitivity showed no signs of intestinal damage or increased permeability, but they did exhibit an increase in an innate immunity marker. This is different from the immune response seen in celiac disease, which is noted by an increase in an adaptive immune marker.

Despite this, those with a gluten sensitivity may still exhibit similar symptoms to celiac disease. These include intestinal pain, bloating, diarrhea, and cramps. In addition, depression, skin rashes and irritability may occur. People who suspect a gluten sensitivity or celiac disease should visit a doctor for a simple blood test. Gluten should be avoided only if advised by a doctor state of the distribution of the state of the sense of the sense of the state of the sense of the se tor, and individuals should not self-diagnose and treat symptoms. # Linden pediatric center proposed

By BERNIE O'HARE

Special to the Bethlehem Press

SEPTEMBER 17, 2014

The last remaining single family residence on the east side of Linden Street, between East Boulevard and Oakland Road, is gone. Advent Speech and Feeding Therapy, a pediatric agency devoted to treating infants and children with developmental challenges, is moving into what was once a spacious home at 3376 Linden St. "My parents would be very pleased," until they passed away. This move is possible because Bethlehem's Zoning Hearing Board, at its Aug. 27 meeting, agreed to grant what is called a use variance, which will permit the residential property to be used commercial-said Sylvia Hunsinger,

whose parents lived there

Hunsinger, who also used to live at the property, saw the rest of the block gobbled up by commercial uses. Over the course of a year, she was unable to find one person willing to buy the property until Advent's Carey Anne Tanis came along.

Tanis said she thinks the location is perfect for her purposes. She sees infants just released from a NICU or toddlers who've spent years in long-term hospital care and she wanted her new center to be a friendly, domestic place with "no doctory look.'

Bethlehem attorney Richard Huntington Pepper, who represented Tanis, argued that the property could no longer be marketed for its original purpose.

Lehigh University To lives lost

More than 2,000 small flags blurred into a single silent memorial to all the lives lost Sept. 11, 2001. Students, faculty and visitors paused mid-stride during their hurried, distracted walks across campus as they came upon the vast green hillside at College Center awash in a sea of red, white and blue. Many of them drew their mobile phones to snap images for friends and family before moving along.

It could be the start of a challenging stretch run through the middle of the season for Bethlehem Catholic's football team.

The Hawks enjoyed a 46-6 thumping over Pocono Mountain West last week, as their starters played a half and got the rest of the game off.

Freddie Simmons enjoyed a stellar first half, returning three punts for scores and hauling in a 35-yard TD pass in the first quarter as Becahi built a 40-6 halftime lead.

The win pushes the Hawks to 3-0 on the season, but battling teams like Pocono Mountain West (0-3) isn't the ideal setting that head coach Joe Henrich is hoping for every week.

As Becahi moves into the middle portion of their season, questions will arise about how the Hawks will manage the stretch through the East Penn Conference's North Division.

With East Stroudsburg South(1-2) on the docket this week, Henrich knows he's getting a traditionally solid program visiting Bethlehem Saturday night, but the Cavs are certainly in a rebuilding type of year, as they fell last week to Stroudsburg

"Generally, you can argue that East Stroudsburg South has been one of the most consistent teams up there," Henrich said. "They're a bit inexperienced this season, but you see they have some nice pieces up front and some athletes as well. The biggest thing for us is to stay focused and have our guys prepare properly every week. It's not ideal to have your starters only play a half and that's certainly something that we've been thinking about as we move forward this season.'

Outside of this week's affair, the Hawks continue play against Dieruff (2-1), East Stroudsburg North (1-2), Pocono Mountain East (0-3), Stroudsburg (3-0) and Allen (0-3), before finishing the season with Central Catholic (1-2).

LHS beats NHS

By PETER CAR pcar@tnonline.com

After a 48-21 victory over Nazareth last week, Liberty now walks into the reality of playing another top level team this week when they travel to Whitehall (3-0) Friday night.

The Hurricanes (2-1) saw Doug Erney have himself a record night last week against the Blue Eagles, going 16-for-23 for 339 yards and a schoolrecord five touchdowns.

Liberty would love to have a similar effort from Erney this week against the Zephyrs, who enter the contest equipped with the best player in the East Penn Conference, as running back Saquon Barkley, is playing like a man amongst boys this season.

Barkley has rushed for 560 yards and eight touchdowns already this season through three games, as the Penn State recruit will be a handful for the deal," said Liberty head coach John Truby. "He can out run you and he can run over you. Whitehall uses him in many different spots on offense and we first got to identify where he is at. We are going to have to swarm and gang tackle this week if we have any hope in stopping him.

Hurricanes this week. 'Barkley is the real

Whitehall's offense has been led by Barkley, as the Zephyrs have scored 42.6 points per contest this season. In the one game that Whitehall struggled to win, a week two 42-41 overtime thriller over Central Catholic, the Zephyrs came back from a 28-0 deficit to come away with the win. Truby took some lessons from Central's approach in that contest, in which he hopes his staff and players can apply this week.

"It was good to see some of our young guys gets reps last week," he said, "but at the same time, you don't want to be resting guys that much.

'It's going to be something we have to monitor moving forward, as keeping our guys focused is the biggest priority. It's tough when you deal with teenagers and you tell them those things, because you never really know where their heads are at. We know as a coaching staff, all these games are important, but you never know how kids will look at these games."

As the Hawks prepare to tussle this week, Henrich and his staff may be realizing that playing in the North Division has it's pluses and minuses.

The advantage for a team like Becahi, in their present state, is that they shouldn't have many problems grabbing victories, but the downside is how these games will prepare his team as they head into the postseason.

'It's easier said than done when you're talking about making sure the kids are mentally prepared," said Henrich. 'This week will be another test for us and we just need to be ready, because we know all these teams from up north are looking to knock us off."

If Liberty wants any chance to win this week, Barkley will obviously be the focal point, but executing their own game plan will be just as important, as Erney will be the best quarterback the Zephyrs have seen this season.

The Hurricanes put up against Bethlehem Catholic in the opener, but they also allowed 56 points. Finding the right balance this week will tell the story of what the end result will be for the 'Canes.

'Defensively, Whitehall has some really good players at each spot on the field," Truby said. "I think their secondary, maybe, the best in the conference this year. As far as an advantage, I think if we execute the game plan and don't hurt ourselves with holding calls we can make some plays."

Freedom came back with a one-yard TD plunge from Santos to even the game at 14 with 1:27 left in the half, but Emmaus put themselves in position to take a lead into halftime, as they drove into Freedom's red zone.

From there, however, the Hornets committed their third and final turnover of the night to kill momentum going into the intermission.

"I thought the turnover before the half changed momentum for our guys,' said Cuthbert. "The second half we came out and didn't execute. I don't think we did a very good job blocking their linebackers in the second half. The penalties, turnovers and mistakes just can't keep happening. Teams in this league are too good and you can't come out and not bring your A-game."

J.T. Barker is hoping to flourish this season.

Hawks Barker has lofty goals for rest of year

By JEFF MOELLER Special to the Press

J.T. Barker has high expectations for himself on the golf course this season. With a successful summer, the Bethlehem Catholic senior has plenty of reasons to believe his year will be on the upswing.

Barker fired an 11-under, 139 to capture the 14th annual SportsFest title and also teamed with teammate Nick Maff to capture the Wasser Cup. He then went on to qualify and play in the Pennsylvania Amateur.

On a team that once again was expected to be in contention for the newly formed Eastern Pennsylvania Conference, Barker has been pleased with his team's showings in the opening weeks of the season.

'I think we might be doing better than we expected," he said. "We're basically a young team that will get better as the season goes along. I really believe we can continue to improve.

As far as his own play, Barker wants to raise the bar and believe he is on his way by tightening certain aspects of his game.

"I think I can play better than I am right now," he stated. "I have been shooting around where I want to be, but I want to be able to put it all together. There are things I know that I can improve on and the scoring will come.

"I have learned to hit the ball better and I have been doing that. I also want to work on my scoring as well as I

His play during the summer can be a catalyst for his play in the fall. "The summer wasn't too bad," he noted. "I had a good run and I proved that I can play well in tournaments. I know I can play with all the best."

"He had a good summer and stepped up his game," added Bethlehem itself together.

Catholic head golf coach Tim McGorry. "Over the years, he has improved his game and he is a leader for us this season.'

Barker, whose J.T initials stand for John Thomas, started playing golf at the age of 10 and began competing at 12. He credits the encouragement of his father, Thomas, and his grandfather, John, for their inspiration along

"My dad took me out when I was young and always told me to just shoot my best no matter what my score was," he said. "He was very supportive and never put any big expectations on me. He always has told me to go out there and have fun. My grandfather also helped me learn the game when I was younger.

"I found out that golf was a sport in which you could practice anytime you wanted. I am practicing and working on many parts of my game every time I go out. It's awesome that I can go and play every day and get better at my

"I really want to go south to play golf," noted Barker. "I'm not really sure what I want to do, but I have a couple of things in mind. I may take some time off and then try to figure out things together during the winter."

Barker also knows his family will continue to be in the mix as younger brother, Jordan, 11, already is making his presence felt.

In the meantime, Barker plans to finish strong and leave his mark at the school and in the conference.

"I feel good about the rest of season," he said. "I have been hitting the ball better and my game is piecing

East Penn Conference announces division names

By PETER CAR pcar@tnonline.com

The Eastern Pennsylvania Conference officially approved division names for sports throughout the conference last week.

Paying homage to the Lehigh Valley and District 11 landscapes and history, the three division names are prevalent throughout the entire conference, but apply in different terms for sports that have all 18 schools competing and those sports that only have a limited amount of participating

For example, in base-ball, basketball, field hockey, soccer, softball and girls volleyball, 18 teams will comprise three six-team divisions of the Mountain, Steel and Skyline. The divisions break down in this manner for these respective sports: Mountain (Eburg North, Eburg South, Pleasant Valley, Pocono Mtn East, Pocono Mtn West, Stroudsburg); Steel (Allen, Becahi, Dieruff, Easton, Freedom, Liberty); Skyline (CCHS, Emmaus, Nazareth, Northampton, Parkland, Whitehall).

In boys lacrosse, the setup is: Mountain (Easton, Nazareth, Northampton); Steel (Becahi, Freedom, Liberty); Skyline (CCHS, Emmaus, Parkland).

Boys' volleyball features only former Lehigh Valley Conference schools: Mountain (Nazareth, Northampton, Parkland, Whitehall); Steel (Becahi, Easton, Freedom, Liberty); Skyline (Allen, Dieruff, Emmaus).

Football has a two division alignment featuring the monikers of the North and South: North (Allen, Becahi, Dieruff, Eburg North, Eburg South, Pleasant Valley, Pocono Mtn East, Pocono Mtn West, Stroudsburg) and South (CCHS, Easton, Emmaus, Freedom, Liberty, Nazareth, Northampton, Parkland, Whitehall).

Girls lacrosse also has two divisions: North (Easton, Freedom, Liberty, Nazareth) and South Emmaus, CCHS, Northampton, Parkland).

Cross country, golf, swimming, tennis, track and wrestling do not have divisions.

South Bethlehem's Protection Firehouse

Ken Raniere Columnist

uring the twilight years of the Victorian Age and the dawn of the 20th century, folks around Bethlehem created activities from simple aspects of daily life - all without the convenience of cell phones, television or CD players.

Whether at seasonal events or patriotic holidays, South Bethlehem residents never failed to line the streets and catch a glimpse of firemen who paraded their shiny horse-drawn firefighting equipment.

On Saturday, Sept. 18, 1897, South Bethlehem's Protection Firehouse on East Fourth Street won special recognition in a parade, as reported in the Bethlehem Globe: "The apparatus, drawn by a corps of shapely men of the company, was a floral bower on wheels, and it carried pretty and precious freight in the persons of little John and Julia Trimble, children of Phillip Trimble, of the

The success of these parades brought the community an awareness of fire safety and a need for revenue that supported each firehouse - from new firefighting equipment and feed for the horses to clothing, meals and firefighting gear. The infancy of firefighting in South Bethlehem during the 1870s had yet to perfect its policy on protecting life and educating the public - and this realization left the community at risk when faced with a devastating fire.

Even into the early 20th century, a number of mistakes that caused fires in daily life were attributed to faulty or careless use of kerosene to heat homes and oil lamps to illuminate them.

Numerous newspaper accounts of death caused by fire describe unsafe use of flammable fluids, especially spills on clothing. Anyone whose clothes caught fire while alone at home faced horrific burns, even death.

In their quest to protect their neighborhoods from destructive fires, civic-minded individuals solicited funds to build firehouses. Typically, each firehouse featured double folded doors on the first floor, where vehicles and pumpers were stored. At the rear of the firehouse, horses were bedded down in stalls with clean straw and a ration of oats and water. On the second floor, a dormitory setting featured beds where firemen slept overnight in the event an alarm sounded that a fire was in progress.

When structures like the E.P. Wilbur Trust Company bank building was erected, towering five stories over West Fourth Street and Broadway in 1910, firefighting practices and technology had to improve with the times. Gasoline-powered fire trucks replaced horses in the firehouses, including an improved fire alarm system installed throughout Bethlehem. After World War II, the Protection Firehouse fell out of use and was replaced by larger, updated firehouses equipped with sophisticated equipment and trained firemen.

By the 1960s, the venerable Protection Firehouse faced an uncertain future at a time when city officials considered debilitated or empty structures "urban blight." Thanks to local organizations, the former firehouse was utilized as a meeting place, which breathed new life into the abandoned building.

During the mid-1970s, a local theater group headed by Bill and Bridget George, Barbara Pearson and Ricardo Viera inspired community support to renovate the abandoned firehouse. In 1981, the result came to be known See WEEK on Page A16

Praise for LHS Jazz Band

Dear Editor:

The Liberty High School Jazz Band has been reformed by teacher Allen Frank and, after only three weeks of practice, played a swinging group of big band tunes from the 1930s and early 1940s in their only performance of this academic year at the Bethlehem Area Public Library.

An appreciative crowd of almost 100 people heard the toe-tapping "Leap Frog," "Take the A Train," "Stompin' at the Savoy," "How High the Moon," "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," and "Jumpin' at the Woodside." Interspersed were solo renditions of "Embraceable You," "My Funny Valentine," "Stella by Starlight," and "Misty" by keyboardist Rory Lipkis, whose sensitivity showed a touch of Dave

Forgiveness allows us to move on

otre Dame HS marked the 13th anniversary of 9/11 by celebrating Mass to pray for healing and peace. The Mass was offered in memory of Colleen Supinski and Joseph McDonald, both with connections to Notre Dame. Supinski was a 1992 Notre Dame alumna who died in the attack on the World Trade Center. McDonald also died in the World Trade Center attacks and had family who attended Notre Dame. In his remarks, Principal Joseph Kramer reminded the students that it was "a great day of remembering and giving thanks," and that "forgiveness is a huge ingredient of being able to move forward." Father George Winne stressed the Golden Rule. "Do unto others as you would have them do to you," he said. "Then your reward will be great." Music was provided by the Notre Dame Eucharistic Ensemble. In addition to recognizing first responders who were in attendance, Kramer also honored two Notre Dame students for their service and success. Senior Abigail Marone was recognized as a 2014 national debate champion. Junior Joshua Mitchell received recognition for an Eagle Scout project that he had completed.

First responders from Bethlehem Township and the City of Easton attend the services. Bethlehem Township Nancy Run firefighters Josh Sigley, Anthony Vaccaro and Joe Leicht are joined by Easton Fire Chief John Bast, who is a graduate of Notre Dame HS.

In his homily, Father George Winne tells the assembly, "Anger against anger doesn't accomplish anything."

Student skills shine in Kansas City

While most teenagers were winding down for summer by the end of June 2014, the talented students of Bethlehem Area Vocational Technical School were working as hard as ever to prepare for their upcoming

The SkillsUSA Leadership and Skills Conference, which took place in June, brought the students to Kansas City, Mo., to compete against almost 6,000 other students representing vocational schools from across the nation in more than 100 different areas of trade, like job interview skills, masonry and the culinary arts. The event is known nationally, with a multi-million dollar price tag and a space occupancy equivalent to 16 football fields.

Much like high school sports competitions, Skills USA begins at the local level, with small placing rounds within the school. Next, the winners move on to the district level of the competition, then the state level, and finally onto the national level in Kansas City.

Despite the steep competition, BAVTS had three groups place third, fourth and seventh in the nation in their respective areas.

Placing seventh in the career pathways section of the competition was the industrial engineering group, made up of Northampton senior Larry Eberts III, Saucon Valley senior Ty Druckenmiller, and Liberty graduate Cheyenne Smith. Their presentation consisted of a fundraiser, in which the students would create custom chairs to sell to the public. Eberts recalls the initial discomfort he experienced when telling other contestants he was from Pennsylvania, which has evidently gotten a poor reputation for being filled with 'city folks who think they're better than others." However, by the end of the competition, Eberts and the other BAVTS students had not only proven their worth through their skills, but also through their professional and friendly atti-

The group consisted of Freedom graduate Brittany Sloss, Northampton junior Amanda Strohl and Saucon graduate Andrew Vinson. The students all describe the event as a learning experience, because they were all able to meet other students from all over the nation as well

How Faith Comes

If one does not have the faith to receive things from God, how does one get that faith? The Bible answers that question in Romans 10:17, "Faith cometh

y hearing, and hearing by the Word of God."

Some years ago, Rev. Robert Abbott shared in The Pentecostal Evangel the estimony of a person who received faith by reading the Scriptures. He related, "While pastoring in a Minnesota city, I was called to visit a patient in the tuberculosis sanatorium. She was a believer but a member of a non-pentecostal church. For 9 years she had suffered with the disease. She was so ill, she could be out of bed only one brief period per day. On my arrival, she explained how she had been reading her Bible when certain words suddenly caught her attention: 'These signs shall follow them that believe; in my name...they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover' (Mark 16:17-18). She had not believed in divine healing until that moment. Suddenly she had faith for recovery. She called the one pastor she knew who prayed for the sick. As I prayed with my hands on her head, God's power came upon her so mightily hat the entire bed shook! She continued to shake for 3 days and the power of God was so upon her that she could not sit up at all! After many tests, conducted over a period of several months, she was dismissed from the sanatorium There had not been a positive reaction from the moment of her healing! For over Inere had not been a positive reaction from the moment of her healing! For over 20 years now she has enjoyed normal health with no recurrence of the disease. Where did she get faith to be healed? She got it from reading the Bible!" How does one get faith to be saved? The context of the verse "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God" deals with receiving salvation through believing in Jesus by hearing about Him from God's Word. I urge you to read God's Word to get the faith to be saved by hearing about leave the Savier of the world Start with the Gospila of labor. esus the Savior of the world. Start with the Gospel of John Migrating raptors follow a reliable timetable. Decreasing daylight in late summer induces what is known as Zugunruhe, or migratory restlessness, in raptors. Ospreys, bald eagles and American kestrels are the main raptors passing by the lookouts in late summer and early fall.

Philadelphia ornithologist, heard about an area referred to by local residents as Hawk Mountain.

Pough traveled there in fall 1931 and was shocked to discover the area was a prime location for shooting raptors. Raptor carcasses littered the hillside. He returned a short time later to photograph the dead birds.

His graphic photographs, published in Bird Lore, predecessor to the Audubon Magazine, caught the attention of Rosalie Edge, a New York City socialite, birdwatcher and conservation activist. Edge visited Hawk Mountain in 1934. She soon leased 1,400 acres along the hawk

A woman's perspective changes with age.

That was reinforced WARMEST for me, once again, as REGARDS members of one club sat By Pattie Mihalik at the beach and caught newsgirl@comcast.net up on each other's lives.

One woman admitted she was feeling "more than a bit lost" because her last child just left the nest. For the first time in decades, it was just her and her husband, and she said she is unable to adjust to the change.

All of us who had experienced the Empty Nest Syndrome could understand what she was saying. But because we had "been there," we knew the feeling of "being lost" didn't last. It's just the sudden change that is jarring for most women.

Because she has good friends and several outside activities of her own, we knew our friend eventually would adjust to her new stage of life.

We also knew something important: An empty nest can mark a wonderful time of life.

But it depends on how well they have prepared for that stage of life.

A woman who has a close circle of friends as well as a career or satisfying outside interests will adjust easier than one who has wrapped her entire life in her children to the exclusion of all else.

When the kids are gone from the nest, if a woman has nothing in life except her kids, where does that leave her?

On the other hand, if she and her husband have built a satisfying relationship through the years, they can draw even closer when they have fewer distractions and demands on their time. From the time our kids were in preschool, my best friend and I talked about the need to carve "couples time," not just family time. There were plenty of years when we struggled financially. But we always made it a priority to go away twice a year for a couple's retreat. in the interest of nonesty, I have to admit when children are at home, a house rings with more activity and laughter. When the kids leave home, the sudden quiet definitely makes it feel like an empty house.

That stage, psychologists say, can make or break a marriage.

Experts tell us the two most dangerous times in a longtime marriage are when they kids leave home or when a couple retires.

'I see many divorces that come about during these times," said a marriage counselor I interviewed on the subject of late-in-life divorces.

'When a husband and wife are busy with jobs and with raising a family, they might not notice how far apart they have grown," said the marriage counselor. "But when it's just the two of you, it can suddenly seem like two strangers without much in common," he cautioned.

I scheduled the interview with that marriage counselor after I saw a magazine column he wrote on the subject of late-life divorces. He claimed Florida is a hotbed of late-in-life divorces.

That didn't make sense to me. Why would living in our little piece of paradise contribute to marital unhappiness? I would think it would be the other way around. Living in paradise should make couples happier.

The marriage counselor said when couples move to Florida, they often leave behind family, friends and a network of associations built over the years.

"Leaving all that behind forces a couple to work hard to replace their social network, and it's not easy," he said.

Not everyone adjusts, he said, and often one spouse feels resentment because of the move.

Coincidentally, a few weeks later I was interviewing a fellow who put on thousands of miles traveling cross country on his motorcycle. While he called it "the time of his life," he also admitted it cost him his mar-children Raising together is a strong interest in common. It's probably one of the strongest bonds a couple can have.

It just doesn't last forev-

Then what? Then the bond of marriage can weaken and couples can feel alienated from each other.

Or, they can enjoy a new kind of life when they are the center of each other's world.

Even when a husband is no longer in the picture, an empty nest doesn't have to lead to unhappiness. "Are you kidding? I waited all my life to have time for myself," said one woman who single-handedly raised four children. When the last one left home, she did something she had long yearned to do: She started adult evening classes at the community college.

"I take whatever interests me. It expands my world and makes me feel good about myself," she told our group.

Another woman who never took a music lesson in her life took advantage of her empty nest to do exactly that.

Because she always wanted to learn how to play the dulcimer, her husband built one for her and she started lessons.

The 162nd Great Allentown Fair kicked off with a new Preview Night gate admission campaign to assist the Second Harvest Food Bank of Lehigh Valley and Northeast Pennsylvania. Fairgoers age 13 and over were charged $3 to enter, or come in "with a buck and a can." Thousands of fairgoers elected to do just that, dropping acceptable donation items into overflowing baskets at the fair entrances and then paying the $1 fair admission. The result: 7,667 pounds of food and sundry items was collected. Fair admission during the week went directly to the nonprofit agricultural mission of the fair operator, the Lehigh County Agricultural Society. ## Treat 'Calvary' with reverence

"Calvary," as with Christianity's New Testament event from which the film derives its title, is difficult, brutal and shock-

The film begins in a Roman Catholic church in Ireland where Father James Lavelle (Brendan Gleeson), a fiftysomething Irish priest, is told he will be killed the following Sunday by the very person to whom he is giving confession.

The supplicant boasts that he will revel in killing "a good priest."

By all accounts, Father James is indeed, and in word, a good, if not a perfect priest. He is a teetotaler because, he says, he likes to drink a bit too much. Father James is a widower who entered the priesthood after his wife

The threat is put aside as we follow Father James during a week of priestly duties as he ministers to a "Canterbury Tales" cadre of colorful characters in County Sligo, a rural area on Ireland's northwest coast.

There's Jack (Chris There's Jack (Chris O'Dowd (TV's "Girls," Family Tree," "The IT by trade whose wife, Veronica (Orla O'Rourke), is having an affair with Simon (Isaach De Bankolé), an auto mechanic.

There's Fiona (Kelly Reilly), the depressed daughter of Father James.

There's Father Leary (David Wilmot), Father James' co-celebrant at his church; Dr. Frank Harte (Aidan Gillen), a cynical medical doctor; Michael Fitzgerald (Dylan Moran), a wealthy investor who lives on an estate; a novelist only identified as The Writer (M. Emmet Walsh); Milo (Killian Scott), a confused young man; Leo (Owen Sharpe), a gigolo; Freddie (Domhnall Gleeson, son of Brendan Gleeson), a convict; Teresa (Marie-Josée Croze), recently widowed, and Police Inspector Stanton (Gary Lydon). There are even a few more characters.

If this seems like a bu load of characters for one film, it is. It's perhaps too many, allowing the screenwriter-director to skip from one to the other rather than focus on Father James.

Father James treats whatever outrage is flung in his bearded face with the equanimity of a saint.

There's no neurosis barred in "Calvary," written and directed by John Michael McDonagh (screenwriter-director, "The Guard," 2011, which Gleeson; and screenwriter, "Ned Kelly," 2003). John Michael McDonagh "Guardians Of The is the brother of play-

ZONING HEARING BOARD OF BETHLEHEM TOWNSHIP,
NORTHAMPTON COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA SEPTEMBER 24, 2014

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE FOLLOWING APPELLANTS HAVE FILED AN APPEAL FOR A PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE ZONING HEARING BOARD OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BETHLEHEM, A HEARING TO BE HELD AT 6:30 PM ON WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 2014 AT THE TOWNSHIP MUNICIPAL BUILDING, 4225 EASTON AVENUE, BETHLEHEM, PA 18020. THE MEETING, AMONG OTHER ISSUES, CONCERNS THE FOLLOWING ZONING APPEALS:

Appeal # 09-2014 Jason and Brooke Mitch, 4421 Fairway Drive, Bethlehem Township PA, and Myron R. Haydt, building contractor, seek a dimensional variance from Section 275-190D(7)(c)[3] of the Bethlehem Township Codified Zoning Ordinance, as amended, to construct a 21-inch high decorative wall along the front yard. The Zoning Code mandates that front yard walls servicing a residential property are prohibited with the exception that a decorative wall with a maximum height of five feet is permitted if the total length of the wall is not greater than 20% of the length of the street frontage of the lot. The applicant proposes a decorative wall length of 110 feet i.e. 75% of the street frontage of the lot. Therefore a dimensional variance of 55% is being sought. The property is located within the Rural Residential Zoning District (RR). The property maintains Northampton County Tax Parcel Identification number M8 4 7H 0205.

Appeal # 10-2014 Christopher and Melanie Lloyd, 1450 2nd Street, Bethlehem Township PA, and CML JCH Properties LLC, 3310 Cherrywood Court, Bethlehem Township, PA, request a Special Exception from Section 275-72A of the Bethlehem Township Codified Zoning Ordinance, as amended, regarding real estate located at 3205 Easton Avenue, PA the bear Township PA. The Applicant cook for some particles and the second particles are second particles. Bethlehem Township, PA. The Applicants seek to re-establish an auto repair garage at the rear of the property. The existing building was formerly known as the "Butztown Garage" and was so operated until the passing of the proprietor several years ago. The Zoning Code permits an auto repair garage in the General Commercial Zoning District if a Special Exception remedy is granted by the Zoning Hearing Board. Therefore, a Special Exception is being sought to re-establish the prior use of an auto repair garage within the same structure that previously was similarly so utilized. The property is located within the General Commercial Zoning District (GC). The property maintains Northampton County Tax Parcel Identification number N7NW2 2 6 0205
