BASD MINI-THON

Freedom HS hosted the second annual Bethlehem Area School District mini-THON April 26. Students from Freedom and Liberty were involved in the fundraising event, which was held at Liberty last year.

The Mini-THON is a fundraiser consisting of a dance marathon to raise money for the fight against childhood cancer. It emulates Penn State's 46-hour THON, which is the single largest student-run philanthropy in the world.

Students from both Bethlehem high schools worked together year-round to raise awareness and money. The event, which ran from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. was filled with entertainment and activities for the 12 hours the dancers stayed on their feet.

Corporate sponsor Coordinated Health played a significant role with a $10,000 contribution. Total local business sponsorships totaled $28,000. The remaining $57,380 of the money was raised by members throughout the year. Money raised will go to the Four Diamonds Fund at Hershey Medical Center to assist families who have children with cancer.

"This has been an amazing year and a life changing event," said Freedom Mini-THON adviser Bill Safranek. "Our goal for THON 2014 was 30K as we did 23K last year. We surpassed this goal by a huge amount, making more than $57,000. I don't know how we are going to beat that next year."

A student runs under the parachute that a dozen or more other students are raising and lowering.

Adam Evans and Tom Santee put a new spin on the art of jumping rope. Both are THON members who help with fundraising, planning the event, set-up and clean-up. Evans is from Freedom and Santee is from Liberty.

MORAVIAN COLLEGE

New president encourages service learning, volunteerism

By DOROTHY GLEW
Special to the Bethlehem Press

When it came time to select its sixteenth president last spring, Moravian College and Moravian Theological Seminary chose one of their own. On April 12, Bryon Grigsby, a 1990 graduate of the college, was inaugurated president of the sixth oldest college in the nation. The inauguration ceremony began with a procession, which included college and seminary faculty, administrators and alumni; guests and representatives of other academic institutions who donned colorful academic attire for the occasion. Three bagpipers led the procession around the campus.

As the group entered Johnston Hall for the installation, the Moravian College Wind Ensemble played "God of Our Fathers" and "Song of the Women's Army Corps." Andrew Hart, inaugural co-chair, welcomed his former classmate on behalf of the College and Seminary trustees and alumni. Other speakers included faculty and student representatives of the college and seminary, community representative Mayor Robert Donchez, and Cedar Crest College President Carmen Twillie Ambar, who spoke on behalf of the Lehigh Valley Association of Independent Colleges. Presentations were interspersed with choral music by the Moravian choir at times accompanied by the Moravian College Wind Ensemble.

In his address Timothy Semonich, a transfer student, now president of the United Student Government, declared that for him, "Moravian is not just a college, it has become a home." Semonich asked the audience to welcome the new president back home and praised Grigsby for keeping regular office hours so members of the college community can talk to him one-on-one.

Bethlehem City Council member Karen Dolan, whose alleged conflicts of interest at Fox Environmental Center (Illick's Mill) have drawn the attention of an Northampton County investigating grand jury, has been removed from City Council's Parks Committee, where she served as chair. Council President J. Willie Reynolds announced Dolan's removal in a memo to other council members last week.

Dolan

"[G]iven the ongoing grand jury investigation and the upcoming discussion of a new lease for the Fox Environmental Center, council member Dolan's role as chair of the Parks and Public Property Committee could give the appearance of a conflict of interest," Reynolds wrote.

Reynolds indicated that he discussed this matter

What do you think about the punishment given to Los Angeles Clippers owner Donald Sterling by the NBA, for his racially insensitive remarks?

"I think he's deserving of whatever they decide for him. It was unprofessional. How does he feel about his own players? I don't think he should own the team."
Pat Miller
 Center Valley

"I personally thought the punishment was adequate. The $2.5 million alone was huge. His ownership should be taken away. He's shown no remorse."
Neeraj Kholsa
 Moorestown, N.J.

"I would say he deserved everything except the $2.5 million fine because it was a personal comment, not a public comment."
Matt Bell
 Bethlehem

"I think it's suitable. It's what he deserves, especially since the league is a melting pot."
Cecelia Guerrero
 Bethlehem

"What he said was inappropriate. I think the fine and taking the team away are excessive, but I think he should be punished. There should definitely be accountability, but the punishment exceeded that."
Craig Kennedy
 Bethlehem

"I think it was the only thing they could do because basketball is so much more than one team. Neighborhoods and businesses could also be affected. If they had not done that it could have been an economic crisis for the Los Angeles area."
Ellen Kingsley

in advance with Dolan, who agreed to the change.

Dolan voted last year for a city budget that includes $5,000 in heating oil at the Fox Environmental Center, where she is the paid executive director. More recently, she threatened Bethlehem

Mayor Bob Donchez that she would keep a new lease for the Mill, one that requires rental and utility payments, from going to city council.

The Parks Committee will now be chaired by Cathy Reuscher. The other two members are Bryan Callahan and Mike Recchiuti.

Dolan's role as executive director at Illick's Mill has also ended. Her last day there was April 30, according to Fox Board Chair Andrew Bollinger. Dolan and her husband, John Chay, are still on the mill board, but are non-voting members. Victoria

Bastidas, who has been active in the preservation of the Archibald Johnston estate, has resigned as a Fox Environmental Center Board for "personal reasons."

City Parks Director Ralph Carp appeared before the investigating grand jury last week.

Emeritus Professor and former English Department Chairman Dr. Robert Burcaw, who recalled working with the new president years ago. Grigsby credited Burcaw with changing him "from a jock to a scholar." After graduating, Grigsby earned a master's degree in English literature at Wake Forest University and a Ph.D in English literature at Loyola University. He also studied at Oxford University.

Dr. Tracy Fitzsimmons, president of Shenandoah University, recalled that, while Grigsby served as senior vice president there, he encountered "considerable resistance to incorporating new technologies into higher education." But, she said, Grigsby "showed us that we can use technology to build community."

Grigsby's interest in innovation was on full display during his inaugural address. He celebrated the Moravians who believed in "innovation and community," establishing the first school to teach native American languages, and providing education for all, rich and poor, women and men.

Grigsby hopes to continue the Moravian tradition of fostering community by encouraging service learning and volunteerism to "give back to the community that gives us so much." In addition, students should develop the ability to address societal problems.

Besides fostering community, Grigsby said he would like to continue the Moravian tradition of being innovative. He has arranged to have a professor from Oxford University teach a course at Moravian each year.

Grigsby would like every Moravian undergraduate to have an opportunity to work or study in another country. In addition to becoming good global citizens, students must learn the technology they will need in their work, he declared. He called on the institution to "be revolutionary" rather than being "comfortable with the status quo of liberal arts colleges. Our students can do it, the college can do it, and our nation needs it."

Congressman Charlie Dent helps Charlene Donchez Mowers, president of Historic Bethlehem Museums and Sites, unveil a plaque noting the designation of Historic Moravian Bethlehem as a National Historic Landmark District. Cynthia MacLeod, superintendent of Independence National Historic Park in Philadelphia, watches the unveiling. MacLeod, wearing an olive green parks department uniform, represented Sally Jewell, U.S. secretary of the interior, who oversees the National Park Service. The National Historic Landmark District designation was approved by the park service and the U.S. Department of the Interior in October 2012 after a decade of application work by HBMS and Donchez Mowers, who spearheaded the project.

Historic treasures accredited

Charlene Donchez Mowers dedicated 10 years to Historic Bethlehem Museum and Sites. "We're so pleased to bring this national distinction to the City of Bethlehem and the Lehigh Valley," Donchez Mowers said. "It's such an incredible opportunity and honor for Historic Bethlehem MS and our Moravian partners," she added.

A prelude by Coventry Brass, which was chosen to perform from the balcony of Central Moravian Church for the historic dedication as a tribute to the appreciation and significance placed by Moravians on music. Trumpet players Richard Steetz and Jim Henry are part of the brass quartet from the Lehigh Valley.

Community Day spring start

Blacksmith John Sexton rings a triangle for Lillian Hubbard and her grandmother Barbara Hubbard of Bethlehem. The 1750 Smithy on Main Street in downtown Bethlehem was among the many historical locations open on Community Day, in early April to mark the start of the Historic Bethlehem Museum and Sites spring season.

Starmaking demonstration is conducted by volunteer tour guide Doris Esslinger of Bethlehem at the Moravian Museum in the 1741 Gemeinhaus. Ellen Bauder of Center Valley and her great-granddaughter Carielle Watson learn firsthand about the intricacies of making Moravian paper stars.

A variety of special activities, such as demonstrations, scavenger hunts and tours were part of the daylong Community Day agenda for residents and visitors in downtown Bethlehem, the Colonial Industrial Quarter along the Monacacy Creek, and the 1748 Burnside Plantation. Free downloads of the Heritage Trail by Historic Bethlehem were also available.

Community Day participants Natalia Reyes of Bethlehem and her daughters Rosa and Blanca sign in with Historic Bethlehem tour guide Loretta Hein outside the 1750 Smithy, one of the stops along the free Heritage Trail scavenger hunt.

Finney's Powerful Conversion
 As a young lawyer, Charles G. Finney needed to settle the matter of his salvation, and he went into the woods to pray. As he started to pray, he heard a noise and stopped to listen and see if any one was overhearing him. Suddenly, God convicted him of his pride. He said, "An overwhelming sense of the wickedness of being ashamed to have a human being see me on my knees before God took powerful possession of me." He said to himself, "What? Such a degraded sinner as I am, on my knees, confessing my sins to a great and holy God, and ashamed to have any human being, and a sinner like myself, find me on my knees, endeavoring to make my peace with an offended God?" His heart was melted, and he broke down before the Lord and cried at the top of his voice in prayer. A wonderful peace came to his soul. All sense of sin and all consciousness of guilt completely departed. When, after dinner, he took down his bass-viol and began to sing a sacred hymn, his heart melted before God, and he began to weep. He said, "I poured out my soul to Him. I wept aloud like a child, and made such confessions as I could with my choked utterance."
 That night he received a mighty baptism of the Holy Ghost. He said, "The Holy Spirit descended upon me in a manner that seemed to go through me, body and soul. I could feel the impression like a wave of electricity going through and through me. Indeed, it seemed to come in waves and waves of liquid love. It seemed like the very breath of God. No words can express the wonderful love that was shed abroad in my heart. I wept aloud with joy and love; I literally bellied out the unutterable gushings of my heart. These waves came over me and over me, until I cried out: 'I shall die if these waves continue to pass over me. Lord, I can not bear any more!' Finney became an evangelist who brought many thousands to know Christ through genuine conversion."

William Earle Williams calls attention to the grave marker of a veteran of the 54th Massachusetts regiment located in the Hosanna Meeting House burial ground. Founded by African-Americans, the meeting house was also a stop on the underground railroad.

A study in black and white
History prof brings photo exhibit to Zoellner

By ED COURRIER
Special to the Bethlehem Press

"One of the things that defines America is slavery. Without slavery we wouldn't be Americans and without understanding it we can't also fully be Americans."

— William Earle Williams

"A Stirring Song Sung Heroic: African Americans from Slavery to Freedom 1619 to 1865," a photographic chronicle by William Earle Williams, supported by period newspapers, prints and other materials, opened at the Zoellner Arts Center Main Gallery in January. The gallery talk was held March 21.

William Earle Williams, professor of humanities, professor of fine arts and curator of photography at Haverford College, took attendees on a walking tour of his black-and-white gelatin silver and carbon prints.

The first stop was at the image that started Williams on his photographic journey. Pointing to the print "Abraham Brian Barn" Williams explained, "This picture here was made in 1886. It was my first time at Gettysburg. This is the high-water point and this is where the Confederate armies marched and where they were defeated. Abraham Brian was a man who ran to freedom from slavery and he continued to help others who were on the same path as he by being a conductor on the Underground Railroad."

The subject matter all related to the history of slavery in America and the struggle against it. Most of the images are from obscure places like "Forks in the Road, Slave Market Site" in Natchez, Mississippi, to the more well-known, such as the "The North Carolina Monument" at Gettysburg

William Earle Williams explains why this photograph of the interior of Fort Morgan, located at the Mobile Bay battle site in Alabama, was printed larger than most of the others in the show. The angle of the shot, with the multiple sequential arches, draws the viewer's eyes into the image.

Trayton Pinson, a visiting student from the Pennsylvania College of Art & Design in Lancaster, questions Williams about the historical and technical aspects of one of his battle site images.

SOUTHSIDE

National Military Park. Williams photographed battlefields where African-American troops fought and died, like "Earthworks, Battle Site, Fort Pillow, Tennessee." The images are stark, lonely, haunting and some are heartbreaking, like the paved-over "Slave Burial Site" in Bridgetown, Barbados.

His images of churches and schools point out that the struggle against slavery included abolitionist churches that welcomed integration, and schools that were built to educate freed blacks. "In slave states," Williams mentioned, "slaves were not permitted to read or write."

With "Courthouse, Vicksburg, Mississippi" Williams called attention to the irony of a nation of laws passed to protect liberty to have a courthouse built with slave labor. According to many sources in his research, he found that, "The people who built this also designed it. The top part, this part here, this cupola, has a definite West African design to it." He added, "These courthouses in the South, generally the slaves were sold right on the courthouse square," because the courthouse provided the legal documents and a lawyer for the transactions.

Williams earnestly said to those in attendance, "I hope what everyone will get from going to and seeing the exhibition in its totality, is that freedom is something that is not an abstract, but is something that is earned, and that is a continuous flow, a continuous activity."

"A Stirring Song Sung Heroic" is on display until May 25 at the Zoellner Arts Center Main Gallery. For more information about this and other Lehigh University gallery exhibits, visit www.luag.org.

King's Daughters and Sons membership citation and 75-year pin is presented to Betty Stewart of Bethlehem by international president Joyce Cote during the Pennsylvania Branch Convention in March. Eighty-year pins were also given to Ruth Stohl and Mary Doney (left), both of Emmaus. State president Mary Jane Mackenzie (right), of Kutztown and former Bethlehem resident, conducted the 114th Pennsylvania reunion of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons, an interdenominational service organization. The annual event made history as the 94th and final convention of the Lehigh/Northampton County Union which was dissolved due to declining membership and duplication of leadership positions within the state body. The Moravian King's Daughters Home in Bethlehem is supported by the Pennsylvania organization as a major project. Some 40 members and guests of the Pennsylvania Branch attended the annual event, held this year at the Church of the Manger in Bethlehem.

Open ES enrollment now available

BETHLEHEM AREA SD

By AMY HERZOG
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Bethlehem Area School District board officials approved changes to the district's open enrollment policy at the April 28 meeting.

The updated policy will allow parents to enroll their child in any of the district's 16 elementary schools and have it in effect until the child reaches fifth grade if accepted into the program. Requests for open enrollment will also be accepted after Jan. 31.

Superintendent Dr.

Joseph Roy recommended making the policy changes after being approached at a PTA meeting by parents concerned about their children being accepted into the program for the coming school year.

"This really came up to my attention at a PTA meeting. A couple parents said because it (acceptance) is not guaranteed they were going to charters," said Roy at the April 7 board meeting.

He also said the changes were made to reassure parents and lessen the amount of paperwork required to enroll in the program.

Outlined in the policy are guidelines children in the program need to follow; students in the program must not exceed six tardies or unexcused early dismissals, not exceed 14 cumulative days of absence, will not have two or more academic failures in one marking period, no code of conduct infractions resulting in suspension, and not be picked up late at student dismissal more than three times. If a student does not comply he will be sent back to his "home" school.

Parents of students in open enrollment are responsible for the transportation of the students to and from school.

In other news, the board voted 8-1 to approve applying to the state to change educational programs and furlough 22 teaching positions. The district cannot cut positions due to economic reasons only Basillio Bonilla Jr. was the dissenting vote.

Casey Harewood sets school mark

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcaldonald@tnonline.com

Liberty High School jumping coach Andy Messa encouraged high jumper, Casey Harewood, to go for it, and when she did, the Hurricane senior broke the school record with a height of 5'6 1/4 during Liberty's track and field meet against Freedom last week.

"I was just speechless. I was jumping up and down, pointing at the bar," Harewood said.

Harewood had been well aware of the previous school record, 5'6."

"My coaches and I talked about it many times," she said.

Harewood had actually won the high jump on her first attempt, reaching a height of 5'1."

"If you already win, you can change the height at any time. I asked my coach, 'Where should I put the bar next?' He said, 'Will you be happy with 5'3 today?' I said, 'No.' He said, 'Will you be happy at 5'5 today?' I said, 'No.'

He said, 'So go for it.'"

Harewood surprised herself, breaking the record on her first attempt.

"I had really fresh legs. There was no point in wasting any jumps," said Harewood.

Liberty's girls were victorious over the Patriots in the rivalry meet, winning 93-57.

Winners in each event were Liberty's Jaylyne Aminu in the 100 dash with a time of 13.0, and Kay See Track on Page A10

Former Hurricane and Pitt Panther, Devin Street, now awaits to be drafted sometime this week.

Living the Dream

Devin Street heading down NFL path

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

If there's one thing that's certain for former Liberty star Devin Street, it's that he will be drafted by an NFL franchise this week.

The uncertainty of it all is when and where Street will be taken when the draft officially kicks off Thursday night in New York City.

Street, a star wide receiver at Liberty during the team's 2008 state championship run, will be making his childhood dream come true when the draft gets under way this week.

As a standout at the University of Pittsburgh over the last four years, Street will walk into rare company this weekend when he anticipates being selected anywhere from the second through fourth rounds.

Over 20 teams have been in contact with the Pitt Panther, who finished last season as Pitt's all-time leading pass catcher with 202 career receptions.

The 6-foot-4, 195-pound Street, caught 51 balls for 854 yards and seven touchdowns last season in 10 games, as he was forced to sit out the final two contests of the season with an injury, including The Little Caesars Pizza Bowl against Bowling Green.

The long road to the NFL was never easy, but Street understands that Liberty helped transform him into the person and player he is today.

"Ever since I was six-years-old, I had a dream of playing in the NFL," said Street. "I'd have older mentors who have always helped me out. I never let my ego get too big and always tried to work harder everyday."

"Liberty helped me understand ways to get through adversity and how it prepared me for life."

Street is back in Bethlehem and will remain in town until he gets on a flight later this week to join his new team. He spoke at Liberty's Alumni Day last Saturday and relayed the message to those in attendance on how Liberty helped him and how dreaming big is always a great option.

"Playing in the NFL is the pinnacle of anyone that dreams to be a football player," he said. "It's crazy and delusional to think about it until it actually comes to fruition. Some people think it's impossible. I'm just happy that I've been given this opportunity and I feel truly blessed."

Street will watch the draft at home with his family and friends, as the first round will be televised Thursday night starting at 8 p.m. on ESPN and the NFL Network.

The second and third rounds will be televised on Friday, starting at 7 p.m. and rounds four through seven conclude the draft Saturday beginning at noon.

"I'm excited, but at the same time I'm not getting complacent," said Street about this week's surreal setting. "I still have a lot that I can do to improve myself."

'Canes keep rolling along, head into final week

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Andy Pitsilos has kept one thing consistent throughout his tenure as baseball coach at Liberty, and that's been the yearly goals of the program.

As the baseball season winds down to the final week of regular season, Liberty is back in the hunt to achieve one of their goals of winning the Lehigh Valley Conference East Division.

The Hurricanes (13-5, 9-4) held a half-game lead over Freedom (9-6, 7-4) heading into this week, as well as a tie-breaker over the Patriots since defeating them earlier this season.

Liberty kept their hot streak going on Monday, defeating Northampton 11-4 to win their 11th contest in 13 games.

"Our goals never change," Pitsilos said. "We always strive to win the division, win the conference and districts. We've definitely gotten better since the beginning of the year. We started 2-3 and now we've been on a roll lately. We know that we have to keep that going this week with how tight the division race is."

Liberty used a four-run fourth inning to build an 8-2 lead on Monday, as David Guarriello belted in four RBI on the afternoon to lead Liberty.

Mike Horvath got the win for the 'Canes. The team travels to Stroudsburg Wednesday afternoon before capping off the regular season Thursday afternoon at Freedom.

Matt Leon, who threw a no-hitter against the Patriots earlier this season, will get the nod on the mound for Liberty.

"Anytime we have Matt going for us we have a chance to win," said Pitsilos. "With the league games we have this week, we know they're big games. We've won the division every year since the LVC went with three divisions, so it's important for us to keep that going."

Freedom (9-6, 7-4) have three league games in three days this week, as they take on Bethlehem Catholic today, Liberty tomorrow and Emmaus on Friday.

The Golden Hawks (7-9, 4-6) have four games left in the league and need to win three out of four in order to qualify for districts.

As mentioned, Becahi takes on Freedom Wednesday in a huge contest for the Golden Hawks, since they play Easton (11-6, 8-5) Thursday.

They finish out the season next week against Nazareth (5-11, 2-9) on Tuesday and Dieruff (0-15, 0-10) either Monday or Wednesday.

"We need to figure out how to get a win this week," said Hawks head coach Mike Grasso. "It'll be big for us if we can steal one against Freedom or Easton."

CARPENTER CUP

Tryouts set to take place

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

The Lehigh Valley Carpenter Cup baseball team will look to get back to the finals this year as they open up another slate of spring tryouts this week.

The LV team will hold their initial meeting before tryouts at 8:30 p.m. on May 8 at Billera Hall at DeSales University. The first two tryouts will be held at DeSales on May 11 and 18 at 9 a.m.

General Manager and coach, J.F. Pirro, hopes for another lucrative season with the franchise, as they boast the highest winning percentage of any franchise in the Phillies-sponsored event.

"We want the best players in this tournament," said Pirro. "If you're one of the elite players in the area, you should be playing on this team. We put our best kids out there against all the other franchises and it's a great experience for all the kids."

Lehigh Valley opens play on June 12 at 12:30 p.m. against Burlington County (NJ) at the newly renovated Ashburn Field at FDR Park.

Details regarding tryouts and the process will take place at the meeting on May 8, but there is no denying the relevance the Lehigh Valley has had at this tournament in 21 years of competition.

The franchise boasts the best winning percentage (.640) of any team and has won three championships. The LV team reached the finals last year, but lost to Mercer County 9-2 at Citizens Bank Park.

Pirro hopes that this year's team can get back to where they were a year ago and hopefully add a fourth title to their hardware.

"We've established ourselves as good competition in the tournament," he said. "We always try to go forward and hope that we can improve upon what we did a year ago."

FHS looks for berths

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

For the past several years, the final week of the lacrosse regular season was deemed as the end game for most of Bethlehem's clubs, but this spring, there's more to the equation.

Both of Freedom's boys and girls lacrosse programs are in the playoff hunt for the first time in school history and both would love to make the spring of 2014 one to remember.

The girls side needs to win their final regular season contest against Quakertown Community today to clinch a district berth, while the boys need to win one out of their final two games this week to qualify.

Girls' head coach Charis Innarella knows that this is a historic moment for the program.

"The reason for our success is all about the kids," Innarella said. "They have developed into a team starting with great leadership with Erin Healy, Macey Walker and Lauren Fodale continuing through each and every player. They are there for each other and have each others backs. They push each other in practice and they really care."

Freedom (8-8, 4-6) knocked off Liberty 11-7 last week to help put them in this position, as Walker led the charge with four goals, followed by Fodale's three.

The boys side (5-6, 4-5) also upended Liberty last week, posting a 14-8 victory to give them a push into district potential.

They knocked off Northampton Monday afternoon 16-1 to inch them closer to the post-season. With contests against Saucon Valley on Wednesday and Moravian Academy on Saturday, head coach Patrick Conroy is focused on the task at hand.

"Obviously it would be a huge deal for our program and our guys to make the playoffs," said Conroy, "but especially for our seniors whose leadership has gotten us to this point. They are the founding members of the team and for them to leave the school with that kind of legacy would be a huge accomplishment, as well as a point of pride. Win two games this week and we walk together forever, to paraphrase the late great Fred Shero."

Liberty is on the other end of the spectrum, as both of their programs will end their season this week, as the boys picked up a 13-7 win over Phillipsburg to bump their mark to 4-10 overall, while the girls were 2-11.

Bethlehem Catholic's boys program (1-13) wrapped up action on Monday losing to Moravian Academy 14-2.

Hawks get win over LHS

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcaldonald@tnonline.com

Despite Liberty's two-run lead in its game against Bethlehem Catholic last Friday, it was all Hawks from the fifth inning on as Becahi defeated the Hurricanes, 7-2.

Liberty outfielder, Lauren Epsaro's double in the top of the fourth inning led to two runs scored for the Hurricanes, with additional doubles by Reina Dejesus and Alyshia Dellatore, but the Hawks responded in kind when Becahi first baseman, Kayla Horwath, tied the game with a hit to center field.

"I was ready that time," said Horwath. "I just felt like I was going to get a hit."

Horwath repeated with a single in the fifth inning, again to center field.

"The bases were loaded. I was pretty nervous. I was trying to hit a home run, but [the single] did the job. It got us the lead," she said.

The five-run fifth, as the Hawks called it, was started with a single by Bethanne Brandstetter and another by Jean Markovic.

Markovic said, "I just had a feeling today that we'd come out and play Beca softball. I wasn't too concerned [about Liberty]."

Brooke Rau added a double in the same inning.

"I was just wanting to make contact and move the base runners. It felt pretty good. It was a big thing [playing Liberty], and you want to do big things," said Rau.

Even with the Hurricanes' original 2-0 lead, Becahi pitcher, Elyse Cuttic, knew the key was to stay relaxed and hit her spots.

"I was kind of prepared. I knew [Liberty] would hit the ball. I relied on my screwball. It goes away from right hitters. And my riseball," Cuttic said.

Always a battle in the LVC, Becahi coach Rich Mazza was pleased with his Hawks.

"Our defense was fantastic. [Assistant coach] Chuck Billy was calling the pitches off balance, and Elyse puts the pitches where she wants them. Her change-up was working nicely today, and I was pleased with the bottom of our batting order," Mazza said.

Pates hope to clinch districts

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Freedom hopes to be the only local team competing in the district postseason this spring.

The Pates (8-7, 4-7) need one victory in their last three matches to clinch a berth. They got swept by Easton in three games (15-25, 19-25, 17-25) on Monday evening to push the onus on them registering a win over city rivals Bethlehem Catholic (4-7, 4-7) or Liberty (5-10, 4-9) this week.

Neither of those will be easy matches as well, Freedom still has since the local rivals never go down easy.

Head coach John Yanek was hoping that things could have been clinched for his team after Monday night, as their second loss to Easton this year has still kept the Pates from gaining a win over one of the Lehigh Valley Conference's elite teams.

"A win over Easton would have been big," Yanek said. "It would have been the push we needed. We just need to beat one upper tier team to get our confidence."

Freedom still has

Wyoming Valley West on the schedule for Saturday as well, so Yanek would like to have his district scenario ironed out before an ultimatum needs to be laid this weekend.

"We need to stay focused and finish games," he said. "I believe we have turned the corner a little bit, with some of the players believing in themselves more."

Should the Patriots qualify for districts, it would be the 21st appearance under Yanek's leadership.

Becahi battled Liberty to five games on Monday and came out with a win 32-34, 25-21, 24-26, 25-21, 15-11. The win was a boost for Becahi down the stretch, as they'll look to play the spoiler role against Freedom tonight, followed by their season finale against Easton on Friday.

Liberty took on Southern Lehigh last night, face Easton tonight and end their campaign against Freedom on Friday.

This season marks the first time Easton (10-3, 7-3) will win the East division and head to the LVC playoffs since the conference came together.

Liberty High School's singles players swept Bethlehem Catholic's in the Hurricanes' 5-2 victory over the Hawks last week.

Dan Lynn defeated Niko Francicik, 6-3, 6-0 at number one singles, Chris Snow defeated Ryan Schmidt, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 at number two singles, and Brendan Cunningham defeated Luke Mesko, 6-2, 6-4 at number three singles.

At number one doubles, Liberty's Alex Bulew and Evan Bulew defeated John Corley and David Napierkowski, 8-3, and at number two doubles, Hurricanes, Milind Jagota and Chris Kapsos defeated Marcin Boragan and Paolo Turco, 2-6, 7-5, 6-0.

Kapsos said, "[In the first set] they were just doing everything right. We tried a few things, but we weren't strategizing right."

The second set started relatively evenly until Jagota and Kapsos began to pull away.

"Our coach [Leo Schnalzer] told us to mix it around instead of going right at it with them. Then we were able to close it out," said Kapsos. "From then, we were really focused, and they kind of went away. We both felt pretty good [after we won]. We had to have played pretty well to win 6-0 [in the third set]."

Becahi won the last two matches when Peter Demyan and CJ Horn defeated Luke Corad and Julian Mark, 6-2, 6-2 at number three doubles, and Chris Landolfi and Mike Mintzer defeated Jesse Claudio and Liam McKenna, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6 (7-4) at number four doubles.

Regarding the Hurricane team victory over the Hawks, Kapsos said, "We lost to Beca last year, so it felt pretty good."

FC LVU Sonic to play in US Open Cup

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

FC Lehigh Valley United Sonic face a tough task when they open up play in the Lamar Hunt U.S. Open Cup Wednesday night.

The Sonic traveled to Portland (ME) to take on GPS Portland Phoenix of the PDL in a task that head coach Dave Weitzman understands will be a difficult prospect.

"We really are at a disadvantage because they're starting this tournament earlier than usual because they've allowed more teams in the tournament," Weitzman said. "We won't have most of our guys because they're still in college. Playing on the road makes it that much more difficult."

The prospect of playing on the road makes it an even greater challenge for the Sonic, since it eliminates the option to bring in some of their regulars because of the eight-hour drive to Maine.

The Sonic lost to Reading United 2-0 last year in the opening round of the Open Cup and have never gotten past the first round of action.

Weitzman hopes that trend can change this year despite the challenge of hitting the road without his full squad.

"Last year, I think we had four or five players in this game that actually started for us the rest of the season," he said. "It just goes to show you how things change over the course of the season for us as a team. It's just disappointing that these games are starting this early. A couple years ago it was around May 24 and those couple weeks can make a big difference for a team like ours."

If the Sonic can come up with a victory next week, they'll host the Harrisburg City Islanders at Whitehall High School on May 14 in the second round of the tournament.

The Lamar Hunt U.S. Open Cup is the oldest soccer competition in the United States and third oldest tournament in the world. The Cup is open for competition for all teams affiliated with U.S. Soccer, from amateur clubs to professional clubs in Major League Soccer.

MY PRO DAY

My Pro Day would like to announce the return of its comprehensive skills evaluation to the Allentown/Easton area this summer.

Notre Dame High School is hosting this event for youth baseball players on Wednesday, June 18, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. and William Allen High School is hosting this event for you baseball players on Tuesday, June 24, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

My Pro Day is the first to bring the excitement and fun of a pro baseball or college tryout experience to players of all ability levels, ages 6-18. For a limited time, a one-year My Pro Day membership — including a comprehensive skills evaluation — is just $59, half off the national rate of $119.

The My Pro Day membership starts with a pro baseball or college style evaluation, where coaches will identify strengths and weaknesses, and you'll see your skill-by-skill rankings in a nationwide player database. We'll test arm strength, fielding skills, pitching speed and accuracy, catcher pop times, hitting and bunting ability, speed, agility, athleticism and more.

NCC fourth in nation in digital tech

NCC was rated fourth in the nation among large community colleges in the use of technology to serve students, faculty and administrators. The ranking reflects the creation of an innovation lab, in which faculty can use emerging technology, to incorporate cutting edge technology, including digital signage, video walls, interactive projectors, tablets and computers in classrooms and science laboratories, and advanced networking and wireless capabilities.

Students can register for classes, contact their instructors, see their grades, check assignments and access financial aid information on their phones and other mobile devices and access Main Campus directions using Google Maps.

Classrooms and labs technology includes iPads, interactive response systems, 3D printers and projectors, simulations, laptops and computers mounted on articulated arms for accessing patient information in nursing and dental hygiene programs.

NCC President Dr. Mark Erickson and Dr. Deborah Noble Burak, dean and chief information officer, represented the college April 6 in Washington, D.C., at an event honoring the colleges rated in the top ten.

Job placement rates increase

NCC reports a 90 percent rise from last year in rates of job placement and continued education for the 1,775 graduates of the Class of 2013, based on a survey conducted by the career services office.

Eighty-three percent of the degree, certificate and specialized diploma graduates were surveyed; 91 percent were either employed or continuing their education. The highest median salary was $76,440, which was for two of the graduates of the computer maintenance program. The second highest median salary, $58,240, was reported by full and part time employed dental hygiene graduates. The third highest median salary, $51,355, was reported by diagnostic medical sonography program graduates.

Exceptionally high job placement was reported in radiography (100 per cent of 24 graduates), automotive technology (96 per cent of 29 graduates), and in culinary arts (88 per cent out of 27 graduates).

Mayor hosts first Town Hall

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Although three inches of April showers made it impossible for Bethlehem Mayor Bob Donchez to walk the streets, he still held his first town hall April 30 at Northampton Community College campus on the city's Southside. Both the mayor and his entire cabinet listened to about 15 Southsiders voice concerns about garbage, parking, snow removal, Lehigh students and Sands Casino vagrants. They also gave the city high marks for the greenway between Third and Fourth streets, which many use to commute, exercise, shop and go to school.

Garbage zones

Resident Jo Zavec complained about garbage sitting in front of his home for days at a time, in violation of local ordinances. Chief Housing Inspector Mike Palos said many Lehigh students do that when they leave campus in May. "It's amazing the stuff they leave behind." But Environmental Health Manager Jessica Lucas cautioned that, "for many Southside residents, there's no other place to go."

Donchez announced he's working on a plan to deal with this problem with three or four different garbage zones for the city's estimated 22 private haulers. Garbage would be allowed outside on garbage day only. He hopes to have it finished by year's end, after reviewing it with private haulers and Council members.

Snow Removal

Craig Evans said many citizens were slow to remove cars from snow emergency routes. Donchez agreed, but noted this winter was the first time in many years that any snow emergencies had been declared at all. He indicated that the signage has faded in some areas and needs to be fixed. "For the most part, people were very cooperative. Unfortunately, we did tow some cars." Public Works Director Michael Alkhal said about two dozen cars were towed during each of the city's two snow emergencies. Police Chief Mark DiLuzio also said they did issue a few dozen citations for snow covered sidewalks.

Parking

Resident Ann Evans complained about meters on Packer Avenue, where there is no commercial traffic, which results in people parking in front of her home. While promising to look into these new meters, Donchez announced there is a "strong possibility" that two parking garages are coming to the Southside. One would be located next to Northampton Community College, with another planned nearer the Fahy Bridge.

Casino vagrants

With a disturbing undertone of bias, some residents expressed worries about the mostly Chinese bus riders who use the greenway daily. One woman asked for a bigger police presence there, though it is already patrolled by mounted officers. Southside activist Roger Hudak asked police to make sure the skate park is locked at night, to guard against what he called the "Asian invasion."

Transparency

In addition to regular town halls, Donchez reminded everyone he has open office hours every second Monday. He also provided his office (610-865-7100) and home (610-868-4680) telephone numbers. "We need your involvement," he said. "You are our eyes and ears."

DA: NorCo no safe haven for foreign criminals

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

You'd never think that a 2008 botched drug arrest in Allentown would serve as the basis of a news conference by a Northampton County District Attorney in 2014. But it did. On May 1, John Morganelli called a news conference, not so much to discuss the arrest, but to discuss a recent civil rights ruling by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in that matter. That's the second highest court in the country, and the three judges issued a ruling that has local police departments worried about whether they should continue honoring detainees that are issued by Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) against foreign criminals the federal agency intends to deport. Morganelli made clear that these federal notices must still be honored.

The circumstances that led to this unusual news conference result from the arrest of a United States citizen at an Allentown construction site who was accused with Dominican Republic immigrants of being involved in drug activity. He was eventually exonerated. In fact, he made bail soon after his arrest, but the jail refused to release him. This is because ICE had lodged a detainer.

John Morganelli called a news conference, not so much to discuss the arrest, but to discuss a recent civil rights ruling by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in that matter.

An immigration detainer is a notice that ICE provides to local and state law enforcement officials, informing them of the federal government's intention to take custody of an undocumented immigrant under local control. It expires after 48 hours. It expired in the Allentown case too. But it spawned a civil rights lawsuit against the arresting officers, Allentown and Lehigh County.

Lehigh County argued that the ICE detainer left it with no choice but to continue holding this citizen, even though he made bail. But the Third Circuit disagreed, noting that ICE detainees are simply requests.

At his news conference, Morganelli agreed that this citizen has a case, but this exception does not prove the rule. "The fear of litigation ... cannot chill law enforcement in its duty to enforce the law," he argued. Calling illegal immigration a "public safety issue," the DA ticked off numerous examples of crimes committed nearly every day by a majority, just to hide their status. These include identity theft, the fraudulent use of social security numbers, tax evasion and driving without a license.

But he is more concerned about serious crime, and provided handouts with numerous examples involving drug distribution, prostitution rings that take advantage of young women and even terrorism.

So he wants those detainees honored. "This is making sure that Northampton County does not become a safe haven for foreign criminals," he said.

Morganelli wants the jail to continue honoring ICE detainees, but acknowledged that is Executive John Brown's call. "He runs the prison, not John Morganelli."

Asked whether he will continue honoring ICE detainees, Executive John Brown said he met with Morganelli and is generally supportive, but just needs a few days to review everything.

Morganelli was asked about Los Angeles and Philadelphia, where ICE detainees are ignored.

"If they want their cities to become magnets for foreign criminals, I have no problem with that," said Morganelli. "I want to send the opposite message."

Walking for the cure

On May 16 to 17, Hellertown's Dimmick Park will be hosting a Relay For Life event to raise money for the American Cancer Society. It will take place for 24 hours from 5 p.m. Friday to 5 p.m. Saturday as the participating teams compete to raise the most money to donate to the American Cancer Society. Participants will take shifts to walk throughout the night to symbolize the continual search for the cure for cancer.

This year's theme for Relay for Life is "Around the World," so each team represents a different country. The countries will hand out themed prizes for each lap completed throughout the night.

On Saturday morning, runners can participate in Saucon Valley's first Fight to the Finish 5K around town. The entrance fee is $25 for this event, but finishers will receive a free T-shirt. The lighting of the luminaries will occur at 9:30 p.m. Friday evening in dedication to survivors and victims of cancer. Other events include a food tasting contest and activities planned by the teams.

Saucon Valley HS students plan to participate in this event through the National Honor Society. A NHS committee has been in the process of creating an "Around the World" game for children to play Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

This themed game will mirror the entire relay event as kids spin a wheel and travel around to stations of different countries. Student representatives will provide prizes related to each nation.

The high school's NHS team, Honoring the Cure, is just one of about 17 other teams that have begun to raise money to help save lives. One fundraiser already held April 23 was the Power of Purple Pasta Party hosted at the Meadows to get a head start raising money prior to the event. Many Saucon Valley students and members of the community attended to enjoy a pasta dinner, and the high school Jazz Ensemble provided entertainment.

While you may not be a participating member of a team for Saucon Valley's Relay for Life, there is much that one individual can do to join in the fight against cancer. Money raised from selling food or activities at the event will all be added to the donations earned for the American Cancer Society. So by simply buying a soft pretzel from Saucon's NHS team, you will help their goal to "Honor the Cure."

Most people have been affected by cancer in some way, so by supporting this Relay for Life event, you too can help make a difference to those affected. Every year that more participants support Saucon Valley's Relay for Life, the closer the American Cancer Society gets to completing its mission to live in a world with less cancer and more birthdays.

'Dying Well'

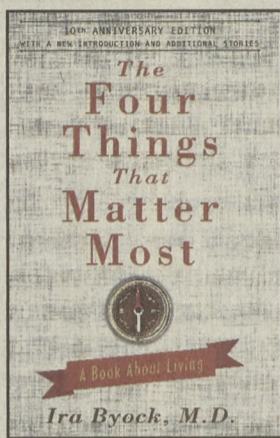

Palliative care expert delivers annual St. Luke's lecture

Literary Scene

By CAROLE GORNEY
 Special to The Press

For Dr. Ira Byock, the most important thing about dying is how you have lived your life.

Byock is best-known for "The Four Things That Matter Most: A Book About Living" (Atria Books Reissue, $24, 272 pp.), now in its 10th anniversary edition.

Byock, a long-time advocate for patients and families dealing with terminal illness, wrote the book because after two decades of talking about "dying well" he realized that he had stories to tell that "struck a nerve."

Byock is this year's Dr. and Mrs. Max Littner Memorial Lecture Series for Bereavement speaker, presented by St. Luke's University Health Network, 7:30 p.m. May 14, Central Moravian Church, Main and Church streets, Bethlehem.

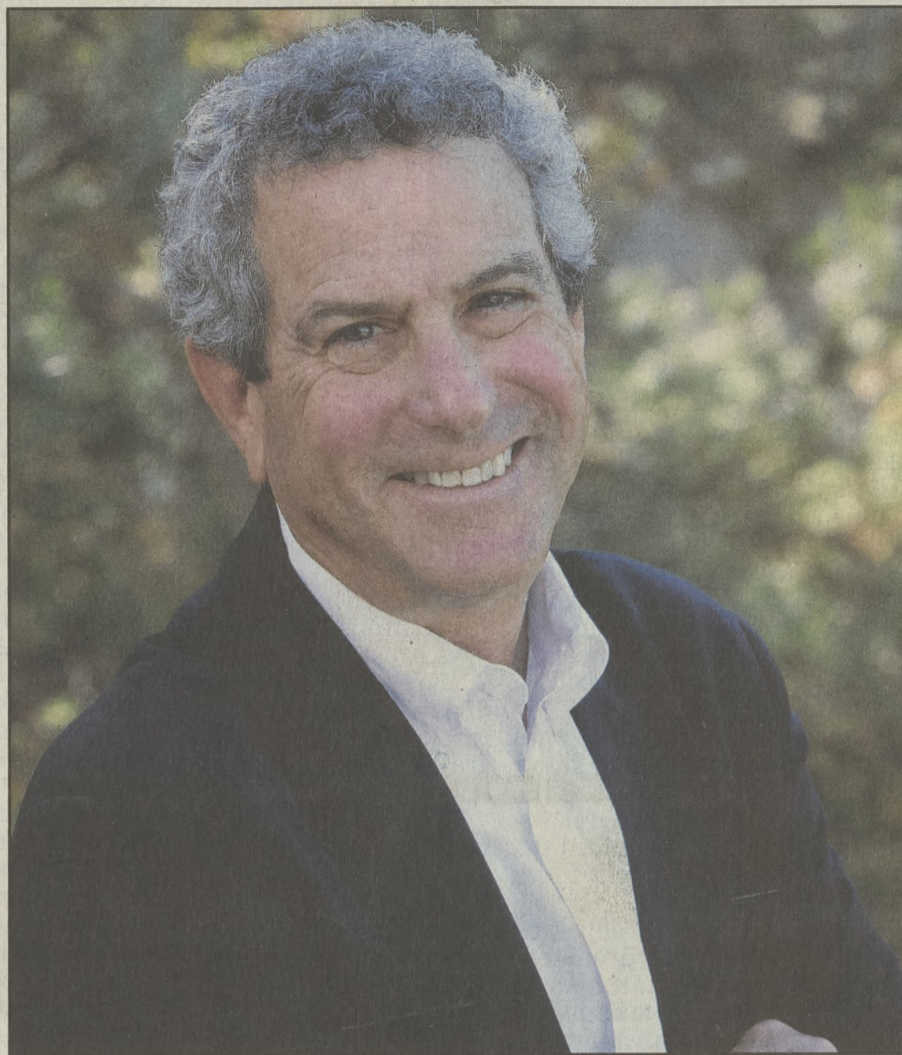

An endowment started by Wendy Littner Thomson, a licensed counselor and grief therapist in Bethlehem, in memory of her grandparents, funds the lecture series.

Thomson praised Byock's work as a perfect place to start to help remove the barriers to healthy relationships. "We are delighted he is coming."

"Dr. Byock was selected as this year's featured speaker because his message is basic to good mental health across the lifespan," Thomson stated in a press release.

"There is enormous value in getting our relationships 'current,' so when the time comes for us, or for a loved one to die, we will have the potential for a greater sense of peace."

Byock is Professor of Medicine at the Geisel School of Medicine at Dartmouth. He was Director of Palliative Medicine at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center, Lebanon, N.H., 2003-'13.

Dr. Ira Byock gives the Dr. and Mrs. Max Littner Memorial Lecture Series for Bereavement, presented by St. Luke's University Health Network, 7:30 p.m. May 14, Central Moravian Church, Main and Church streets, Bethlehem.

What he learned by spending time with the dying is that, regardless of gender, ethnicity or country of origin, relationships are key to living and dying well.

Four simple statements can make all the difference in end-of-life relationships. They are: "Please forgive me," "I forgive you," "Thank-you" and "I love you."

Byock's book tells stories of people in a way to enable readers to imagine how they can apply the "Four Things" principle to their own lives.

Forgiveness is important to good health, but many misunderstand what this means.

"We think it is about exonerating someone who has hurt us. It's not about the other person at all. It is about us, about getting rid of the toxic badness in our own lives," Byock said in a recent teleconference interview.

The first person we need to forgive is our self. "Real forgiveness involves remembering and understanding that we are not perfect. Then you need to realize that the person who has wronged you is not perfect," he said.

Byock's first book, "Dying Well" (1997), is a standard in palliative care. "The Four Things That Matter Most" (2004) is used in hospice counseling. "The Best Care Possible: A Physician's Quest to Transform Care Through the End of Life" (2012) addresses serious illness and dying in the United States.

Byock has appeared on NPR's "Talk of the Nation," "All Things Considered" and "Fresh Air;" American Public Media's "On Being," CBS's "60 Minutes," ABC's "Nightline" and PBS's "The News Hour."

Tickets: sluhn.org/irabyock, 1-866-STLUKES (1-866-785-8537), Moravian Book Store, 428 Main St., Bethlehem, where copies of Byock's book are available.

'The smaller the better'

'The Art of the Miniature' now in 22nd annual year

By ELIZABETH OUELLETTE
 Special to The Press

The 22nd invitational exhibit of "The Art of the Miniature," an internationally-renowned exhibit of miniature works of art, continues through June 15 at The Snow Goose Gallery, 470 Main St., Bethlehem.

"The Art of the Miniature," brainchild of Mary Serfass, owner of Snow Goose since 1992, attracts well-known artists from all over the United States and the world.

Serfass is known in her own right for paintings and miniature works of art. Because of her extensive knowledge of the art of miniature, she is frequently asked to judge and curate shows throughout the country.

Serfass has grown "The Art of the Miniature" exhibit from the first show of 27 artists and 150 pieces to this year's 81 artists and 420 pieces. "Our show is very well-known," Serfass says. "Artists from England, Germany, Wales and South Africa contribute pieces."

Serfass is particularly proud to display the miniature pieces of Linda Rossin, who designs the White House hand-painted Easter eggs. Serfass also mentions Gerald Lubek of Vermont and Jane Mahalik of Maryland as popular artists whose miniatures are in the show.

"I've always been drawn to works in miniature. The smaller the better," says Serfass.

Mary Serfass curated "The Art of the Miniature," through June 15, The Snow Goose Gallery, 470 Main St., Bethlehem.

Times News names ad director

Kevin Hardy will focus on multimedia platforms

By DONALD R. SERFASS
dserfass@tnonline.com

Emerging technologies in the news industry are providing opportunities for new products and services to benefit customers.

To take advantage of those opportunities, the Times News has hired a regional advertising director.

Kevin Hardy will oversee print and online advertising initiatives at the Times News and eight weekly newspapers of Lehigh Valley Press, publications independently owned and operated by the Times News LLC of Lehigh Valley.

Hardy, of Nazareth, was hired March 3, replacing Don Reese, Times News ad director, who capped a 44-year career March 21.

The timeframe allowed Hardy to work with Reese for three weeks, helping the transition.

Hardy also will coordinate account and client management activities along with coaching the sales management team.

He said upcoming enhancements will directly benefit customers: "We'll see a large number of new products over the next couple of years and a facelift to print products."

One change, for example, is that sales staff will sell digital products, expanding an avenue of opportunity for Times News and Lehigh Valley

Press advertisers. "It'll help our customers grow their business. That's what we're here to do," said Hardy. "We'll take time to talk to customers and learn about their businesses. It makes us a valuable resource."

Hardy brings more than 25 years of experience to the position.

For the past two years, he served as director, digital media and corporate sales trainer, BH Media Group, a subsidiary of Berkshire Hathaway, based in Bristol, Tenn.

There, Hardy marketed online products through print, TV, billboard and search engines.

"My focus was on the digital side of things," he said.

Before that, Hardy spent more than seven years with the Pocono Record daily newspaper, Dow Jones Local Media Group, where he was involved in new business development for print and online products.

In that capacity, he worked alongside Times News Editor Marta Gouger during her career at the Stroudsburg-based newspaper. Gouger joined the Times News staff six months ago.

Hardy is still adjusting to the new environment and becoming acquainted with staff. He said his first few weeks have been a delight and he's excited to tackle challenges ahead.

For one, he welcomes the opportunity to work with the strengths of Palmerton-based Pencor Services Inc.

"I look forward to taking advantage of digital resources to put forth some new offerings," Hardy said. He acknowledges the "great corps of loyal readers" at the Times News and Lehigh Valley Press, including those who support the print edition and the website.

"The web numbers are really strong for a small-town paper," he said.

Hardy also recognizes diverse demographics, including devotion from a great number of younger readers.

"So many folks think young people aren't engaged in newspapers, but that's not accurate."

Hardy is a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School and Millersville University.

He and wife Pamela have two children, a 21-year-old son, Nick, to graduate in July from Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and a daughter Sarah, 13, who will attend school in Nazareth.

He is a member of the Pocono Family YMCA board and East Stroudsburg United Methodist Church.

Blessed are those who rise above disappointments

Years ago my daughter Maria gave me a puzzling gift. It was a plaque that said: Blessed are those who expect nothing for they shall not be disappointed.

To tell the truth, I didn't like it in the least. It seemed to be the opposite of my personal philosophy.

I'm an upbeat, positive person.

I go through life expecting good things to happen. And they do. Every single day.

One of the things I like about life is we never know what's around the next corner. I always expect something good to be waiting around that corner. And if not, something good will be around the next one.

See what I mean: I'm an optimist. That plaque seems destined for a pessimist, not me. I kept it only because my daughter bought it for me, but through the years it got relegated to the basement.

When I was clearing out the house to move, I finally threw the plaque away. Before I did, I called my daughter and asked why she gave it to me. She said she couldn't remember buying it, much less why.

Now here I am a decade later thinking about the message on that plaque. I'm still a cockeyed optimist, but I do admit we all face plenty of disappointments in life, some big, some small.

Sometimes it's because a relationship didn't turn out the way we thought it would. Or what seemed like a smart financial move wasn't so smart after all.

In learning how to navigate the waters of life, we all have to learn to deal with disappointments. Knowing that disappointments are a part of life allows us to shrug them off.

Did you ever notice how some people let a relatively small disappointment invade their happiness? As to big disappointments, well, they can drown someone in sorrow if he or she hasn't learned how to handle setbacks.

Sometimes I think our continued happiness depends on how well we do handle setbacks and disappointments.

This week, as I recall the words on that plaque my daughter gave me, I can see a little bit of the wisdom in those words. If we don't have such high expectations, perhaps we won't be disappointed.

One of my very minor disappointments came after my husband and I combined our photographic ability to cover a big event where we weren't allowed to use flash. We took photos for two hours and ended up with some nice photos for the newspaper.

The disappointment came when the editor turned them down, sight unseen, because someone else took photos at the same event.

I shrugged it off because at least the event would have good coverage. It didn't matter who took the photos.

A bigger disappointment came after the doctor finally gave me clearance to go back to the activities I love.

With great anticipation, my husband and I took our kayaks to Sunrise Waterway. I was pleased when I didn't have a hip problem getting into the kayak as some told me I would have.

From the first moment I glided into the water I was flooded with happiness. After not being able to do this favorite activity for four months, it was like a joyful reunion with a cherished friend.

For 45 minutes we paddled blissfully around the bay. Normally, we kayak for at least two hours, but this was just a test run to see if I could do it. Turns out I was fortunate we quit when we did.

By the time we got back in the car, my hip was screaming in pain. I couldn't wait to get back home to take something for pain.

For me, that was a big disappointment to swallow. When the doctor said there was no longer anything to hold me back from my normal activities, I thought my physical ability was back to normal.

Wrong.

But then I thought about the gains I did make. I was able to get in the kayak and enjoy a day of sunshine on the water. During the past four months all I could do was look wistfully at the boats in the water, wishing I could be there, too.

I told myself just being out on the water was in and of itself a cause for happiness. I would celebrate what I could do instead of focusing on what I can't do.

The next day my physical therapist said my expectations were unreasonable. "When you haven't used muscles for four months, of course they are going to scream in protest," she said.

I like the physical therapy center I attend and I especially like Sabrina, my therapist. I told her I just hate the way she keeps using dirty words.

When I said that, she looked alarmed. "What dirty words did I use?" she asked.

Her dirty words are "slow" and "a little at a time." My progress will come a little at a time, she said.

OK, I wish things were back to normal. But I am shrugging off that disappointment and accepting what is.

There is so much in life for which to be thankful.

I celebrate being able to walk again without pain. I celebrate each beautiful day I can spend outdoors. I am thankful for each and every blessing.

Life is good. Disappointments and all.

Take TIA seriously

Q. Is a TIA dangerous?

Transient Ischemic Attack (TIA) is an interruption in the flow of blood to a part of your brain. Its symptoms are the same as for a stroke. A TIA lasts anywhere from minutes to many hours. It goes away and leaves no apparent permanent effects.

If you have a TIA, your chances of having a stroke are increased nine times. Treat a TIA like an early warning and get to your doctor immediately for a check-up.

A stroke, which is also called a "brain attack," is caused by a blood problem in the brain. An "ischemic stroke" is caused by too little blood in the brain. An "hemorrhagic stroke" is caused by too much blood.

About 80 percent of strokes are ischemic strokes. They occur when blood clots or other particles block arteries to your brain. Hemorrhagic stroke occurs when a blood vessel in your brain leaks or ruptures.

During a stroke, brain cells are deprived of oxygen and nutrients and begin to die. The earlier a stroke is treated, the better the results.

Stroke is one of the leading causes of death and the leading cause of adult disability in the United States.

The most common stroke symptoms include: sudden numbness, weakness, or paralysis of the face, arm or leg, usually on one side of the body; trouble talking or understanding; sudden blurred, double or decreased vision; dizziness, loss of balance or coordina-

More than a country 'Bears' jamboree

"Bears." The title says it all. It's as simple as that in the Disneynature documentary about a family of Alaskan Kodiak Brown bears.

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein

Wait. Where's the voice of Morgan Freeman? Morgan Freeman is the go-to guy for voice-overs, television commercials and animal kingdom documentaries. "March of the Penguins" (2005) wouldn't have been the same without the voice of Morgan Freeman.

John C. Reilly narrates "Bears." Yes, that John C. Reilly, known for playing goofy, doofus-like clods in comedies, i.e., "Step Brothers" (2008).

John C. Reilly is fine as the narrator for "Bears." He's kind of a big, likeable bear-like guy anyway.

In "Bears," Reilly sometimes takes on the persona of the bears, pretending to voice their thoughts and emotions—even though the bears seem to communicate well among themselves with bird-like sounds. Reilly's boyish voice of wide-eyed naivety works well with the subject material.

Reilly generates the documentary's biggest laugh when, observing a bear lolling on its back after a feast of spawning salmon, he says, "This guy looks like my dad when he's watching TV."

"Bears" is amazing in its apparently candid footage and storyline of a mother bear, Sky, emerging from hibernation after birthing two cubs, Scout and Amber. We follow them down from her mountain lair to the beach where she becomes a furry clam-digger. The film was lensed in the 5,000-acre Katmai National Park on the Alaskan Peninsula.

There are dangers, including other predators: a lurking wolf and even other bears, male and female, who vie for food and dominance. Have you ever seen bears wrestle? You will in "Bears." That over-used adjective "awesome" truly applies when the bears rear up on their hind legs. Sky and her cubs uncover a cache of muskels. They follow the salmon upstream. Seeing the scenes of the bears and salmon is worth the price of admission.

The bears didn't miss the train, but they are walking. Soon, a year has passed and, with winter, it's back up the mountain for momma bear and her cubs for six months of sleep. The cubs will be with her for two years.

The crisp cinematography is astounding. The editing is terrific. There are very few camera tricks, other than some always-intriguing time-lapse photography.

The clouds, snow-covered mountains, shore, forest, other animals (including seagulls, ravens, eagles and especially salmon), an avalanche and the colors, shapes and views of the entire landscape and ocean are wonderful. "Bears" is a delightful meditative experience, especially on the big screen in a movie theater.

Directors Alastair Fothergill ("The Blue Planet," 2001; "Earth," 2007; "African Cats," 2011; "Chimpanzee," 2012; producer, TV's "Nature," 2002-'13) and Keith Scholey ("African Cats," 2011) have created a mini-masterpiece.

"Bears" was released for what seems to be Disneynature's annual commemoration of Earth Day. For Earth Day 2015, watch for Disneynature's "Monkey Kingdom."

"Bears," MPAA Rated G (General Audiences. All Ages Admitted); Genre: Documentary; Run time: 1 hr., 18 min.; Distributed by Walt Disney Studios Pictures.

Credit Readers Anonymous: If you wonder how the "Bears" directors and camera persons captured the amazing encounters with flora and fauna, stay for the closing credits to view some out-takes—the only time humans appear in the film.
