Murder for rent money

Bethlehem man charged in double homicide case

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

A Bethlehem man has been charged with a double-murder, arson, burglary and related offenses stemming from a January fire at 2901 Stephen St. in Palmer Township.

Drew Alan Rose, 37, was charged Friday with the homicides of 97-year-old Virginia Houck and her son, Roger Houck, 61, of Seattle. The motive for these alleged actions was Rose's need for his half of $900 in rent at a Broadway apartment he shared with his mother.

According to Palmer police, Rose's mother had once been a caretaker for Virginia Houck, and he knew she was alone most of the time. Police say Rose entered Houck's home Jan. 3 and strangled Roger Houck. He returned the next day and carried the bedridden Virginia Houck to the basement and bound her with duct tape, zip ties and webbing. He then brought the remains of Roger Houck to the basement. He poured gasoline over Accused murderer Drew Alan Rose needed rent money, police say.

Nearing its milestone 50-year anniversary, Earth Wind and Fire opened Musikfest's Wind Creek Steel Stage at PNC Plaza for the 2019 season. While the soul and funk group covered all its usual hits such as "Shining Star," "Sing a Song" and "September," the band also threw in some B sides for nostalgia. Band members held the stage very well with exceptional vocals despite the 2016 loss of lead singer Maurice White.

ArtsQuest honors local partners' contributions

BY CAROLE GORNEY
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Musikfest kicked off its 36th year Friday night with the presentation of Marcincin Awards to three local organizations for their continued support of the 10-day free festival. The recipients, Macintosh Services, the Bethlehem Area School District and the Lehigh Valley Health Network, were recognized for their various partnership activities with ArtsQuest, the nonprofit sponsor of Musikfest.

ArtsQuest President and CEO Kassie Hilgert opened the ceremonies at Wells Fargo Festplatz and was joined on stage by award recipients, elected officials and other dignitaries. In her remarks, she noted that USA Today has named Musikfest the country's number one music festival for 2019.

"The event now features 400 performers from 24 states, as well as China, Canada and Nigeria," Hilgert said. "We are truly bringing the world to Bethlehem." The awards were presented by ArtsQuest Board of Directors Chair James Creedon and State Senator Lisa Boscola. Established in 2003 as the Founders Award, the name was changed in 2010 to honor the late Paul Marcincin, who as Bethlehem mayor in 1984 played a key role in the founding of Musikfest.

Award recipient Mcintosh Services, a textile rental company, has been a Musikfest sponsor since 2007. Creedon said the company has worked closely with the ArtsQuest hospitality team to create beautiful events for Musikfest's one million guests.

The Bethlehem Area School District was cited for its year-long partnership with ArtsQuest on 10 different educational programs, including the Marketing Musikfest Program that involves 1,000 students from Freedom and Liberty high schools. Creedon said the program, launched in 2013, gives students a chance to learn what it takes to organize and run one of the nation's largest music festivals.

Since 2001, the third award recipient, Lehigh Valley Health Network, has provided all the services in the Musikfest health tents that make up Healthplatz. The health network also partners with ArtsQuest on its other events during the year. See FEST on Page A2

First Deputy District Attorney Terrence Houck announced the charges on Friday. He is unrelated to the victims. Rose was arraigned before Magisterial District Judge Jacqueline M. Taschner. He has been denied bail and is currently incarcerated at Northampton County jail. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for Aug. 16.

This year's Marcincin Award recipients join 50 other businesses, media and community leaders whose efforts in support of Musikfest have been recognized through the years. "Macintosh Services, Bethlehem Area School District and Lehigh Valley Health Network are three shining examples of the dedication and commitment of our partners," Hilgert said in an earlier news release announcing the awards. "We are honored to recognize these community-minded groups for their incredible dedication, support and commitment to ArtsQuest and the Lehigh Valley over the years."

CITY
Police
pact nets
3% raise

After a lengthy arbitration process that began in May of 2018, the City of Bethlehem police bargaining unit, represented by the Fraternal Order of Police Star Lodge #20, was awarded a 3 percent raise each year for the years 2018-22 through an arbitration award issued under the Policemen and Firemen Collective Bargaining Act (also known as Act 111).

No changes were made to their healthcare or pension benefits. The administration and FOP commenced negotiations for a successor agreement in 2017. During these discussions, the city made a conscientious effort to reach an amicable settlement with the FOP's bargaining team. Contrary to the claim made by FOP Lodge #20 President William Audeo, the city did, in fact, propose a multi-year percentage-based wage increase that was comparable to the increases provided to the city's other employee groups, including under a settlement that had recently been reached with the SEIU Local 32BJ, the labor organization that represents the city's public works, clerical, water and sewer employees.

However, the city was advised by the FOP's negotiators that they would not take any such proposal back to the membership for a vote unless it included significant increases to pension and health care benefits for its members. Because the city was of the view that such enhancements would have been costly and unsustainable, the city could not accept the FOP's proposals in that regard.

Consequently, the FOP declined to bargain further and instead requested the matter move to binding arbitration, where it continued to insist on enhancements to wages, healthcare and pension benefits. Hearings in this matter were held last spring and fall, and the arbitration panel's decision was delivered to the parties recently.

Mayor Robert Donchez said, "This has been a long and difficult process. The city officials involved with the bargaining process at all times worked diligently and in good faith in order to reach a negotiated settlement of the city's police contract. We understand and respect the process in place for See PACT on Page A3

City fire dept. welcomes five new members

There is a saying about firefighters: "when everyone else is running out, they run in."

The Bethlehem Fire Department welcomed its newest recruits who will be running into harm's way, as five men officially joined the ranks during a swearing-in ceremony July 29 at city hall.

"It's a great day to celebrate the new firefighters coming in," said Bethlehem Fire Chief Warren Achey. "New blood, new hires." New firefighters wearing the blue are Kevin Burnett, Thomas Hart, Logan Sawka, Michael Kercksmar and Sean McCormick.

Their oath made them firefighters, but Achey added their learning about their profession never ends.

Education is one thing, money another. Among the elected officials attending the July 29 event was Lehigh County Executive Phillips Armstrong, who noted their public sector salaries won't exactly make them wealthy.

"You're never going to be members of the Saucon Valley Country Club," Armstrong said. However, the executive added they have the admiration and respect of many people. They put the safety of others above themselves. After their swearing in, each new firefighter had his badge pinned to his navy blue jacket. In addition to Achey and Armstrong, Mayor Robert Donchez and Northampton County Executive LaMont McClure offered remarks. Assistant Chief James Lynn offered the invocation and benediction.

resolving these types of situations, the time that it takes, and acknowledge that in rendering its decision, there were many difficult issues with which the arbitration panel had to grapple. Now that this matter has been concluded, it is time to move forward.

"The administration continues to appreciate and respect the hard work of our police force and their service to the residents and visitors of the City of Bethlehem." The police department is the city's largest expense. The City of Bethlehem's budget for police is $24.2 million, which represents 31 percent of the city's entire budget. After $13.3 million in personnel, the largest cost drivers are $24.2 million for health-care and $6.1 million for pensions.

MUSIK FEST.

FEST NOTES

My 5-year-old, James, and I walked to Familienplatz Saturday. We walked along Main Street, past free music acts and bustling restaurants, to the small blacksmith's building by the Hotel Bethlehem. Just beyond the building is a path down to the Familienplatz. Follow the path and walk around the metalworks tent, and you will see the bouncy houses. Keep following the path, past the rides and the ArtsQuest tent. Just beyond it is the Information and tickets tent. Tickets are $1 each, good for rides and food. Rides range from five to 10 tickets per ride. My son did the bouncy house area (10), the flying swings (five) and the train, twice, (five each ride). There is also a climbing activity, a trampoline area, a zipline and axe throwing. The ArtsQuest tent offers a new free craft daily. There was face painting for $6, and a quiet tent with children's books to read. We purchased a bottle of water for 3.5 tickets. Next time I will bring my own, or buy a bottle for $1 on Main Street. The ride staff were friendly and helpful. I spent about $30, and it would be easy to spend $40 or more. Just behind the children's area is a row of food and craft vendors, and we could hear music drifting from beyond the crafters. We spent about two hours on the trip, and my son had a fun time. I would recommend parking in the garage on Walnut Street, and wear sunscreen and bug spray.

When you reach the blacksmith's building at the beginning of the path, you can watch live blacksmith demonstrations. As you walk along the path to Familienplatz, you will pass beautiful murals painted for various years of the festival. Across from the ArtsQuest tent you have a lovely view of Monocacy Creek. We had an idyllic moment watching ducks on the creek. There are rides for many ages; Older youth will love the axe throwing, trampoline and zip line. Younger kids will love the train, swings, and bouncy house area. Note: the bouncy house takes 10 tickets. You can spend as much time as you want there, but once you leave the area, you will need more tickets to return. The zip line is also ten tickets, but repeat rides will only cost five tickets. There are first aid tents; they are blue and well marked. The Musikfest volunteers are very helpful.

Oasis Community Center
For families impacted by substance use disorder

The Oasis Community Center chartered new ground when it opened with a ceremony attended by more than 150 guests recently.

Located in the historic Park Plaza Farmhouse, at 3400 Bath Pike, the center is the first of its kind in Pennsylvania and will serve families and individuals impacted by Substance Use Disorder (SUD).

Special speakers at the June 28 grand opening included Jennifer Smith, secretary, PA Department of Drug and Alcohol Programs; Lamont McClure, Northampton County executive; Marcia Hahn, Pa state representative; Robert Donchez, mayor, City of Bethlehem; and John J. Finnegan Jr., Hanover Township manager.

The Oasis Community Center is operated under the auspices of Speak Up for Ben, Inc, a 501 (c) 3 nonprofit organization and is made possible through support from the County of Northampton Department of Human Services Drug and Alcohol Division.

"As a nonprofit organization, we are thrilled to announce the opening of the Oasis Community Center for Northampton County," said Rhonda Miller, Jon Wilcox, Oasis Community Center board member; Jerry Miller, Oasis Center treasurer; and Bethlehem Mayor Robert Donchez. Donchez was one of several officials who spoke at the event, attended by more than 150 guests.

Speak Up for Ben executive director.

"Opening a recovery center for families has been a dream of ours for many years as we battled alongside our son Ben's disease of Substance Use Disorder."

"We know first hand that families often lack the support they need. We are excited for this project to finally come to fruition," Miller said.

The Miller family founded Speak Up for Ben, Inc. after losing their 23-year-old son and brother, Ben, in 2016.

The Oasis Community Center is not a drug and alcohol or mental health treatment facility, nor will anyone reside at the location. Rather, the center serves families who have experienced substance-related loss and for those currently dealing with a loved one's substance use by offering resources, support and holistic healing activities.

Coming Home
One evening in 1921, Professor William J. Kirkpatrick, who had written the music to We Have Heard the Joyful Sound, Jesus Saves, Jesus Saves, 'Tis So Sweet to Trust in Jesus, and many others, told his wife that a song had been running through his mind all day, and that he was going to his study to put it on paper before he forgot it. She knew that he often worked late in his study, so she retired for the evening. After midnight she awoke and, seeing the lights in her husband's study still burning, went in to investigate. She found him at his desk...dead! The pencil was still clutched in his lifeless hand and spread before him were the lines of his newly completed hymn:

*Coming home, coming home,
Never more to roam.
Open wide thine arms of love,
Lord, I'm coming home.*

If you do not know Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior, I urge you to read the story Jesus told of a son's return home (Luke 15:11-24), and then make the first and second stanzas of Kirkpatrick's hymn your sincere prayer:

*I've wandered far away from God,
Now I'm coming home;
The paths of sin too long I've trod,
Lord, I'm coming home.*

*I've wasted many precious years,
Now I'm coming home;
I now repent with bitter tears,
Lord, I'm coming home.*

Council welcomes part-time officer

BY AMIT KAR
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Mayor Carolee Gifford and Police Chief Ed Bachert, amid cheers and congratulations of family and friends, swore in Isaac Jimenez, a Marine veteran, as a new part-time police officer for Fountain Hill Borough July 24.

Discussions indicated that the borough faces not an insignificant amount of turnover of its relatively small police department, requiring frequent hiring. Concerns about maintaining an adequate force to keep the borough self-reliant on public safety, albeit with a strain on the budget, without having to depend on the state police were underscored by the police pension plan presentation that followed.

An in-depth review of the current state of the Fountain Hill Borough's police pension plan was presented by Colleen Deer, actuarial and consulting business unit president of the Mockenhaupt Benefits Group.

Deer's presentation focused on actuarial analysis that showed how much money would be needed to support post-retirement benefits of the borough's police for pay out for the rest of their lives. This recognizes a pension service cost, or the present value of the projected retirement benefits earned by plan participants in the current period. Police (employee) contributions are supplemented by an amount that must be set aside in the current period to match the retirement benefits accrued by plan participants. The retirement fund assets, invested in various portfolios for growth, often lose value due to inflation, market downturns, etc., and pose challenges to ensure adequacy of fund availability to service the pensions as and when the employees retire.

Challenges occur when the actuarial liability, which is the value of benefits already earned, exceeds the value of the assets in the pension trust fund, causing the liability to be unfunded. There are indications that such a situation may exist, and further exacerbated by five out of 10 plan participants being disabled. Deer pointed out that disabled retirement causes financial difficulties, since disability retirement benefits have a negative impact on the plan. Further, generally with improved all-round longevity, more money is needed, which probably prompted the contribution increases from 5 percent to 8 percent some years back.

Councilors expressed concern about maintaining an adequate police force and agreed that scrutiny of borough fund use is necessary. The current unfunded liability with an amortization would call for an annual payment of $215,000 over a 12-year period. Unless other costs were contained, this would clearly pose a financial difficulty. Continually raising taxes would not be a welcome panacea. Even pulling support of amenities such as the swimming pool and library, may not meet the cost of even one police officer. Executive Administrator Anthony Branco requested aid and the Pennsylvania State Police agreed to send one lieutenant for support. However, it was pointed out that there might be priority conflicts, such as an accident or criminal activity on or around Route 22 versus a fender-bender on Broad Street, that may prevent the presence of a state police force whose budget has been slashed by $218 million. St. Luke's Hospital, with high police usage, may be asked to weigh in on this.

A resolution passed for the request of a Multi-modal Transportation Fund grant of $1.64 million from the Commonwealth of Pa. Financing Authority for fixing curbs and sidewalks along Broadway (SR 2002).

The discussion for action on one bid of $215,000 received for sale of the Hosey property on 1336 Russell Ave. was contentious. Council members expressed concern about the proposed new senior citizen center of 18 units, because of the additional sewage and garbage disposal challenge this might present.

While reopening might attract new bids, it was pointed out that the current bidder could rebid with a lower amount, thus potentially reducing the proceeds of the sale. For a property that cost $70,000, with no encumbrances, the profit potential could help defray other (unavoidable) expenses. The motion to accept the bid eventually passed.

The motion for a Storm Water Authority Ordinance passed despite some initial resistance.

Water damage to pool substantial

BY TIM HEALY
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Hanover Township supervisors opened the floor to residents with questions or concerns regarding the closure of the Hanover Community Center Pool July 24.

At the previous meeting, Township Manager John Finnigan explained how 180,000 gallons of water were lost through three broken pipes when they attempted to fill the pool at the beginning of the summer, leading to underground voids both under and beside the pool, as well as the potential danger of sinkholes.

Finnigan said the board would now have to consult with sonar companies for a complete evaluation of the issue.

Finnigan was absent from this meeting, but his message was delivered through Chairman John N. Diacogiannis. "We're trying to work with engineering firms to get us a better evaluation so we can make some decisions on what to spend in the internal, what we can spend and what we need to wait on until the budget process for next year."

The two main courses of action include going underground and making necessary repairs, or, if the area is too damaged, building a new pool somewhere else on the property. Diacogiannis estimated the board would have a definite answer during the finalization of the budget in November.

Residents expressed their dissatisfaction to board members, emphasizing the important role the pool played in teaching children how to swim, offering recreation for the community and raising the property values of township homes.

"It's frustrating on all of us," Diacogiannis said. "We're frustrated with the situation, we're frustrated that things seem to be very slow, but it has to be done in a logical format to make sure that we aren't spending money needlessly on evaluations that, in the end, might tell us repairs aren't feasible."

The next Hanover Township Board of Supervisors meeting will be held Aug. 27 at 3630 Jacksonville Road. For future meeting dates, agendas and additional information, visit <https://hanovertwp-nc.org/administration/>.

Telatovich played with 'honor, integrity, heart'

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

A favorite quote provided by Freedom lacrosse coach Chris Innarella, "Average players want to be left alone, good players want to be coached and great players want to be told the truth," is the personification of Emma Telatovich, Bethlehem Press's Female Athlete of the Year from Freedom High School.

Telatovich's greatness on the field hockey and lacrosse fields was characterized by her attitude toward the game and everyone involved in it.

"She plays the game with honor, integrity and with a ton of heart," said Freedom lacrosse coach Charis Innarella. "She was extremely humble in victory and handled defeat with great sportsmanship and class."

"Keep it classy" is what Telatovich, a Freedom lacrosse captain, would say to her teammates at the end of every game.

"No matter what the score was, win or lose, I just wanted to leave everything on the field. You shouldn't have anything against anyone," Telatovich said.

Telatovich kept it classy on the field too.

"During games when the competition was intense and opponents were becoming overly aggressive, she always elevated her game, remained composed, and had the ability to keep her teammates motivated and in control of their emotions," said Innarella. "She was our composed captain and the glue that kept our team strong and together."

The Patriots finished in third place in the EPC with a conference record of 7-3 and an overall record of 13-4.

Contributing to these stats were Telatovich's 98 goals and 62 assists in two years as a midfielder.

Coach Innarella gave Telatovich the nickname Snipes when she was a freshman field hockey player.

"I think it was because I could

The ending to the 2018 District XI Class 4A Boys' Soccer Championship was the kind of stuff dreams are made of for forward Bradley Turocy and the Freedom Patriots.

The second overtime had barely begun when Turocy, Bethlehem Press's Male Athlete of the Year from Freedom High School, scored the game-winning goal.

"It's still so surreal," Turocy said. "Even watching the video, I still get that tingling feeling."

The Patriots were crowned district champions with a 1-0 victory over Emmaus that night at J. Birney Crum Stadium in Allentown, and the Pates were in awe of winning leagues and districts, both in the same year.

"[Coach Matt Reightler] instilled in us a fitness level, running and making us feel like a professional team, that made us know we could win all those games," said Turocy, who scored 31 of Freedom's 79 goals this past year and had eight assists.

"I've played soccer my whole life. I love how the games are low-scoring and that one goal early can change the whole concept of a game, that you have to adjust on the fly, and that there are no timeouts."

As Turocy has felt the highs of soccer, he has also felt the lows, one on a season-ending, high school-career ending PIAA State quarterfinal 1-0 loss to Wilson-West Lawn on Nov. 10 at Upper Perkiomen High School in Pennsburg.

"That was devastating," Turocy said. "I went into the first [state] game, hoping for my best. The brackets were lining up and...You definitely get past it and have each other to talk to."

And with the highs and the lows came the in-betweens.

"Our senior night against Allen, we went down 1-0, but there was no way we were going to let them ruin our senior night, and we pounded six goals," Turocy recalled. "And in

Trident tops NW

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Northwest's Corbin Eisenhardt led his crescendo relay's comeback, and Adam Barlow finished it off with a victory in the last event of the night against Trident on July 9 at Northwest.

"We were a bit behind... [Trident's AJ Lammack] beat me in the 50 free so I wanted to see if I could better him in the crescendo, which I ended up doing," said Eisenhardt.

After the 50 free, Eisenhardt got some advice from Coach Reik Foust.

"I did what he told me to do and it ended up working out in the end. Throw my shoulders out to get a longer reach and kick harder. When I was swimming crescendo, I made sure I went out as far as I could and kicked as hard as I could," Eisenhardt said. "I was happy. I was surprised."

Desmond Murray, John Cornish, and Sam Capwell were also on the crescendo relay that finished with a time of 2:12.94.

In overall results, Northwest swim team won its 8 & under division, but Trident swim team won in all others with a final score of 12-2.

The crescendo relay and the meet itself presented some challenges for Northwest.

"We didn't have a lead at first, but then we came back," said Cornish. "It gives me more incentive to push harder. When I breathe, I always see that one guy [next to me], and I can see if he's ahead or not, but most of the time I try 9-10 winners for Northwest were Adam Barlow in the 25 butterfly in 18.69.

In 11-12, Sarah Barlow won the 50 free in 32.40, Lora Flynn won the 50

NW swimming honors its seniors

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@tnonline.com

Sam Capwell and Greta Stuckey are this year's Northwest senior swimmers who will swim their last summer meet at ABE Championships on July 27 at Stones Crossing.

Both have been with Northwest since childhood and are 2019 graduates of Liberty High School, where they also swam for the Hurricanes and Coach Reik Foust.

"It's sad. Both of us started out here, and Coach Reik coaches us at the Y, at Liberty, and here every summer, so it has a special place in our hearts, that whoever comes through here at Northwest, you're always a part of it," said Capwell.

Capwell, who is looking into playing volleyball at St. Francis University in Loretto, Pa., is looking forward to Championships.

"Every year, it's such a big event. Everyone comes together and it's such a great time," he said.

Stuckey will be attending Marist College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. to run cross country and track.

"It's definitely sad but a happy moment all at once because we're moving on to bigger and better things," said Stuckey. "At the same time, it's like a family here. We love all the little kids so I'll probably be back, cheering them on next summer."

The variety of age groups in summer swimming adds a different dimension to practices and meets.

"Getting to interact with the little kids and getting to know them as much as they know you. It's a special relationship between the seniors, even the seniors a few years before we graduate, being able to teach them has been amazing," said Capwell.

Being on a summer swim team has also been a positive factor for Capwell and Stuckey.

"It's made summers have a purpose but it's also been fun," said Stuckey. "It makes you get up in the morning and exercise and be with other people and get out of the house, but it's always fun."

hit the ball and be accurate," Telatovich said.

Telatovich spent countless hours training and refining her skills, even during a lean field hockey season for the Patriots this year.

"It was really hard, but my parents were instrumental. They said I was out there, staying in shape, and that I can be a leader and help other people on the team," said Telatovich. "During games, it was a pride factor. As an athlete, you don't want to look like you're giving up to the competition," she said.

Telatovich continued to enjoy being on the field hockey team, coached by Brianna Mussleman, in spite of the challenges. She was a team captain and three-time Freedom MVP.

"I like how quick field hockey is. It's more like soccer and no one has definite possession of the ball, or someone hits the ball and it goes through someone else," Telatovich said. "The challenge is receiving relentless pressure from the other team of us clearing the ball and them trying to score again."

What Telatovich likes about lacrosse is the speed and moving the ball from defense to attack.

"When we beat Saucun Valley at home, it was a really big win for us," she said. "They were undefeated and we gave them their only regular season loss."

Coach Innarella said Telatovich not only earned the respect of her teammates and coaches but was respected throughout the league by opposing coaches, players, and officials.

"Emma's passion is contagious. It drew her teammates towards her and inspired them to want to work together through the ups and downs, striving to achieve our goals," Innarella said.

"I can't say enough about her unselfishness and how she always put her team first above all."

The way Telatovich sees it, someone had to step up besides the coach.

"I've known Coach Innarella since going into freshman year. Her motto is to be a good person to teammates and opponents," she said.

Telatovich possesses a high lacrosse IQ, becoming one of the top defenders in the EPC and was a three-year conference all-star. She was also the team MVP for three years.

"She has represented Freedom High School and our lacrosse team with dignity," said Innarella. "I am extremely proud of all that she has accomplished and equally proud of the incredible person she has become. She has left behind a great legacy and one that will live on with pride and tradition for years to come."

Moving forward, Telatovich will continue to play lacrosse at Embury-Riddle Aeronautical University in Daytona Beach, Fla. where she plans to major in homeland security.

"I really like the way the coach wants to build the program. I met most of the freshman class, and they're all really fun and really smart," said Telatovich. "I was always interested in law and criminal justice. I think it's really cool, and I want to make a difference."

the first game of leagues, we were down 1-0 against Pocono Mountain East and then scored four on them too.

"The biggest thing is keeping your head up. Scoring happens in soccer."

Coach Reightler calls Turocy exceptional, the standard.

"Every practice, every game, he never stopped. In the last 30 seconds when everyone was shutting down, he was still going," said Reightler. "His winning attitude was infectious, and when he went, we went."

Turocy would occupy two or three defenders in a game.

"He understood the commitment and the focus on the task at hand," Reightler said. "And the goals, we will miss."

Turocy's high school career as a volleyball player was not as presumed, but it was certainly as accomplished.

"It's a funny story," said Freedom Patriot coach John Yanek.

Yanek went on to tell the tale about an eighth grade graduation party at Turocy's former teammate Kevin McPeek's house.

"Brad was there, and he was playing volleyball with the other kids, and [assistant coach] Rob McVicker says, 'This kid's really good.' So we went over to his parents, and they said, 'No, he's playing lacrosse,'" Yanek said. "Then off-handedly, Brad said he was just tired of getting beaten up."

Turocy, an outside hitter, began attending open gyms and became a starter when he was a freshman.

"Volleyball felt right to me, and my sister plays," Turocy said. "It's the short sprints and jumping in the air to get nice kills."

Everything from skills to leadership to motivation will be difficult for Coach Yanek to replace on the Patriot team, including Turocy's 326 kills, 201 digs, 61 aces, and 31 blocks this season.

"Very difficult, if not impossible to replace," said Yanek. "Those kids come around once in 10 or so years."

Freedom had a record of 20-5 this season and was the EPC runner-up to Whitehall.

"Definitely the Parkland games in the regular season, we shouldn't have lost, but it was great to beat them in the EPC semifinal," Turocy said.

In fact, the only teams Freedom lost to all season were Parkland and Whitehall, and the Patriots beat Emmaus for the first time in 10 years, twice.

"Even if we're down 2-0 [Coach Yanek] told us to never give up because we can come back and win," said Turocy.

And as captain, Turocy would keep his teammates accountable to their positions so that the wins would come.

"He helps, he's very positive, very easy to coach," Yanek said. "I just think he's always on the go, has great time management, and likes keeping busy, at both sports. He acts like all the other players and doesn't put himself above anyone else."

Turocy has chosen East Stroudsburg University for his next chapter where he will play soccer, taking with him tons of memories.

"Great memories," he said. "The environment, the fun, going out to eat after games, the team bonding, the friendships, down crying together and crying with joy."

NASCAR THIS WEEK

SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

Is it simply between Ryan Newman and Jimmie Johnson for the final playoff spot?

GODSPEAK: It sure looks like two guys are entering the Octagon and only one will emerge with a playoff position.

KEN'S CALL: The only potential "fluke" winner from deeper than 17th place would come via a fuel-mileage run at Indy next month. Possible, but doubtful.

Fourth at Sonoma, sixth at Glen — is Matty D a road-course ringer?

GODSPEAK: Four top-10s in his past seven Cup Series starts means DiBenedetto is on a certified hot streak.

KEN'S CALL: DiBenedetto was also eighth at Daytona and fifth at New Hampshire during that time. He's racing like his job is on the line. Um, it might be.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

JIMMIE JOHNSON VS. RYAN BLANEY:

Blaney got into the back of Johnson's No. 48 Chevrolet, which went off course and into a tire barrier. Blaney said the contact was not intentional.

GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: This incident has some hot sauce and hair on it. Johnson promised retaliation. "He claims it was just racing," Johnson said. "So I can hardly wait to go racing. Everybody stay tuned."

GODWIN'S PICKS FOR MICHIGAN

WINNER: Clint Bowyer

REST OF TOP 5: Kurt Busch, Joey Logano, Erik Jones, Chase Elliott

FIRST ONE OUT: Jimmie Johnson

DARK HORSE: Daniel Suarez

DON'T BE SURPRISED IF: Bowyer lifts himself out of the weekly bubble scrum and gets his playoff ticket.

MICHIGAN

THREE THINGS TO WATCH

Jimmie Johnson (48) heads into Turn 1 during a practice session at Watkins Glen last weekend. Johnson is fighting to make the NASCAR playoffs. [AP/JOHN MUNSON]

1. Thin oxygen

With only four regular-season races left on the schedule, the air is getting thin around those drivers on the dreaded playoff bubble. Clint Bowyer is 15th in points but only 12 above 16th place, where Jimmie Johnson and Ryan Newman are locked in a tie. Daniel Suarez is 23 points behind Johnson and Newman. Emotions are on the rise among drivers trying to get into the postseason.

2. Ford country

Michigan International Speedway has become an intramural slugfest between two Ford teams — Team Penske and Stewart-Haas Racing. Their drivers have combined to win the past three Michigan races, including an SHR sweep by Clint Bowyer and Kevin Harvick in 2018. Penske fired the last salvo by winning the first Cup race at Michigan in June. Ford drivers who need a win are licking their chops heading to the Irish Hills.

3. Young-gun game?

Has NASCAR racing finally fallen in step with other top professional sports as far as age of the top athletes? Most of the races won this season have gone to drivers 40 and under. Jimmie Johnson is currently reading the tea leaves as he ponders his future. Johnson turns 44 next month and has one year left on his contract. "If you feel like you're not competitive, it's time to walk away," he said.

Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

WATKINS GLEN

THREE THINGS WE LEARNED

1. Good company

Chase Elliott became only the fifth driver to win back-to-back races at Watkins Glen, joining the ranks of NASCAR Hall of Fame drivers Mark Martin, Jeff Gordon and Tony Stewart, plus Marcos Ambrose. Martin and Gordon actually won three straight. That's pretty good company.

2. Emotions building

There was poking and elbowing throughout the field at Watkins Glen. The most flagrant foul was thrown by Bubba Wallace, who used his No. 43 Chevy to turn Kyle Busch's No. 18 Toyota. Jimmie Johnson and Ryan Newman had a dust-up, too. Johnson vowed vengeance.

3. Rumor mill

Oh, boy. NASCAR Silly Season has a good one brewing. It seems Matt DiBenedetto

Chase Elliott joined elite company as a back-to-back Watkins Glen winner. [AP/JOHN MUNSON] could be the odd man out if Joe Gibbs decides to call up Christopher Bell to the Cup Series. "I'm fighting for my life," DiBenedetto said Sunday. "I hope I can stay with this team. I hope it's for a long time."

Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Whew! All is well with Chase, right?

Not so fast. Sure, you don't get much more dominant than that: Winning the pole and then, for the second straight year, winning at Watkins Glen, where drivers are tested beyond what their equipment provides. But man, it's hard to overlook the seven-race slump that preceded Chase's win on Sunday. The variety of tracks over the next four weeks should give us an idea of his championship viability.

What, Jimmie hinting at retirement?

For the first time, he suggested last week that he'll have a decision to make after next season, "when my contract runs out." Well, not exactly. Given the nature of auto racing, he'll have to make his decision long before the end of 2020. We'll know by mid-summer next year if he's still aiming at championship No. 8. It'll help if he finishes strong this year and dashes out of the gate next season. Seems unlikely, frankly, at this point.

Rental assistance offers new way of stabilizing those families in need

BY NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzowski@tntonline.com

New Bethany Ministries announced last month that a state grant fund will enable the continuation and expansion of a successful family sheltering program.

The Pennsylvania Housing Affordability and Rehabilitation Enhancement (PHARE) awards include $75,000 for rental assistance to families in need.

New Bethany tested rental assistance opportunities with the 2017-18 round of PHARE funds as an incentive for graduates of its transitional family shelter. Women and men with children stay at New Bethany between three and six months while securing employment and seeking permanent housing. The homeless services organization prevented 45 households from becoming homeless since November 2018, and plans to help even more with this new award.

New Bethany Executive Director Marc Rittle explained in an email how PHAIR works. "PHARE is sourced from a few places: Marcellus Shale, the Realty Transfer Tax and the National Housing Trust Fund. New Bethany's award comes from the Realty Transfer Tax. These funds are dedicated to the expansion of affordable housing in the state.

"We will use these dollars as a safety net for families who, without emergency assistance, will lose their apartment or house. We offer one-time emergency financial assistance, usually one, two, or three months' rent to help a family that would otherwise become homeless."

Payments are made directly to a landlord for one time use.

New Bethany's transitional shelter serves 30 households each year, so being able to assist 45 households in just 10 months is significant, Rittle said. "Our rental assistance fund allows us to help twice as many households, without having to provide direct shelter for every family."

The rental assistance fund is open to families in the transitional shelter and to any qualifying household that contacts New Bethany. Households qualify for funds when they have a source of income, an inciting incident causing the need for immediate assistance (e.g. an eviction notice or threat of eviction), and a lack of any other source of financial assistance.

"For example," Rittle explained, "if a household is able to secure emergency funds from a church family or a relative, then we will encourage them to use that resource first."

The Lehigh Valley has a strong referral network called Connect to Home, and New Bethany is a part of the Lehigh Valley Regional Homeless Advisory Board, a set of participating homeless assistance agencies that communicate with one another on a regular basis.

"We know in what cases to refer households to which agency," Rittle said. He said word of mouth is also a very strong referral mechanism. "We find that low income families are very familiar with New Bethany services, and know when to turn to us. We are listed in the 2-1-1 database, so when people who need assistance call the phone number 2-1-1, they can be referred to New Bethany when the need matches our service."

Rittle said New Bethany spent just over $50,000 to assist the 45 people in the past 10 months, and expects to help even more with the new grant.

"Our goal is to provide a secure future for anyone passing through our doors. We offer a hot meal, showers, laundry services, toiletry items, and other emergency supports. This is only the beginning. Our team of case managers ensure that our guests are able to meet their life goals, including assistance in seeking employment, mental health and other counseling services, and finding a place to live.

"Our new rental assistance program is one more way to ensure a level playing field in our community."

Lehigh Valley Health Network Named to 'Best Hospital' list

Lehigh Valley Hospital-Cedar Crest has been named as a Best Hospital in the 30th annual Best Hospitals rankings and ratings list for 2019-20 by U.S. News & World Report. For the rankings, U.S. News evaluated more than 4,500 medical centers nationwide in 25 specialties, procedures and conditions. The ratings are designed to assist patients and their doctors in making informed decisions about where to receive care for challenging health conditions or for common elective procedures.

For the third consecutive year, LVH is in the top five of the Pennsylvania hospitals. It is the only area hospital to be included in the U.S. News national rankings in at least one specialty every year but one since 1996. Number 35 nationally for orthopedics, among the top three percent of all hospitals in the country, it is the ninth time LVH has been named to this specialty ranking.

‘People belong together ...’

Atria chef showdown has a new winner

BY SELENA CINTRON
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Atria Senior Living Community of Bethlehem challenged Colonial Regional Police Department Chief Roy Seiple and special guest Andrew Lawatsch to the fifth annual chef showdown July 18. Specifically, a “Competition to Separate the Mild from the en Fuego in a Test of Culinary Chops.”

Atria’s chef and culinary service director Daniel Azan, Lawatsch and defending champion Seiple faced off with only one rule - all recipes must include an ingredient flavored with both the sweet and spicy: the pepper. The competition was judged by Atria Bethlehem residents, guests from Colonial Regional Police Department and the public. The winner received a fantastic pepper trophy.

Before introducing the competitors, Nicole Verret, Atria’s engagement director, sparked the cookoff by saying, “We really think that people belong together, especially over a meal.”

Azan, who is well-versed in Italian food, served up a roasted red pepper polenta cake, guajillo crusted sea scallop, chimichurri sauce, chili sauce, and micro cilantro. To defend his title, Seiple presented voters with his famous sausage and peppers dish, and Lawatsch conjured up a creative spicy cucumbers-with-dill-and-pepper-relish pinwheel dish.

After everyone in the room took their sweet time taste testing, devouring and debating, Lawatsch was awarded the title and handed his well deserved pepper trophy.

Here are the facts as we know them as of this past weekend:

There was another shooting – the 250th of the year.

Aug. 4: Dayton, Ohio – mass shooting in historic district, nine dead, 27 injured.

Aug. 3: El Paso, Texas – mass shooting in Walmart, 22 dead, 24 injured.

Aug. 2: Pomfret, Md. – domestic shooting, three dead, one injured.

Aug. 2: Suffolk, Va. – multiple crime scenes, two dead, three injured.

Mass shootings in the United States this year, according to the Gun Violence Archives include:

January – 28 mass shootings, 50 killed, 86 wounded.

February – 22 mass shootings, 38 killed, 68 wounded.

March – 21 mass shootings, 13 killed, 89 wounded.

April – 34 mass shootings, 23 killed, 136 wounded.

May – 43 mass shootings, 38 killed, 181 wounded.

June – 48 mass shootings, 34 killed, 217 wounded.

July – 52 mass shootings, 50 killed, 202 wounded.

These shootings are senseless.

GOVERNOR TOM WOLF

'We must act'

"Frances and I are mourning an especially horrific 24 hours of gun violence in America. We're praying for the victims of El Paso and Dayton and two young women shot in Philadelphia last night. Many ills contribute to this rising violence. We can and must take action.

"We can ban assault weapons and institute stricter background checks. We can make communities safer. We can target white nationalism and promote tolerance. We can invest in mental health care and help those struggling.

"We cannot accept this violence as normal.

"We must act."

'The perpetrators of these murders are cowards'

"The mass shootings in El Paso and Dayton are the latest, horrific examples of the violent scourge that is gripping America.

"The perpetrators of these murders are cowards.

"We must do more to keep guns out of the hands of psychopaths.

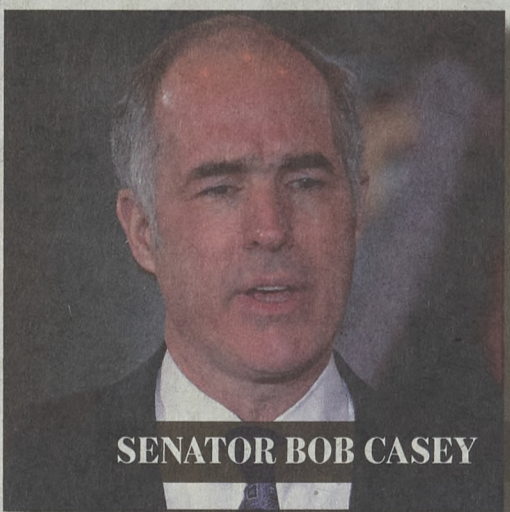

"While no law will end mass shootings entirely, it's time for Congress to act to help keep our communities safer.

"We should start by passing bipartisan proposals such as my legislation with Sen. Joe Manchin, D-W.Va., to expand background checks to all commercial firearm sales.

"I also agree with Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., that we should pass a bipartisan 'red flag' measure that enables families and law enforcement to obtain a court order to keep guns away from dangerous individuals."

SENATOR PAT TOOMEY

SENATOR BOB CASEY

'Enough'

"Enough. We don't have to live like this. Politicians who refuse to take action to reduce gun violence are complicit in this carnage. If we're going to truly confront this uniquely American problem, we have to speak uncomfortable truths. Over and over again, domestic terrorists use high powered, military-style assault weapons to kill our children and our families. There are a whole range of steps that must be taken. Congress's first priority must be passing universal background checks, limiting the size of magazines and banning military-style assault weapons, among other measures. Senate Majority Leader McConnell should immediately call the Senate back to Washington this week to debate and vote on universal background check legislation that was passed by the House in February.

"We also have to confront the white nationalist ideology that has inspired some of the terrorist attacks we have seen. On July 23, 2019, FBI Director Wray testified to the Senate Judiciary Committee that 'a majority of the domestic terrorism cases that we've investigated are motivated by some version of what you might call white supremacist violence.' Over the last few years, we have seen a rise in hate crimes and we need to be honest about why. We have a President of the United States that uses white nationalist rhetoric and engages in racism. From its early days, the Trump Administration has sought to limit funding to groups dedicated to countering white extremism – going as far as revoking grants previously awarded under the Obama Administration and cutting off funding for the future.

"Today [Aug. 4], President Trump should address the nation to condemn white nationalism and pledge an all of government effort to confront white nationalist terrorism. For years, Congressional Republicans have blocked action on measures to reduce gun violence and they must be held accountable. It's time for Senator McConnell and Congressional Republicans to confront gun violence or get out of the way."

Take a minute to hold the line on robocalls

BY KELLY LUTTERSCHMIDT
Special to the Bethlehem Press

It's Sunday afternoon, and my phone has already rung a handful of times.

It could be Microsoft, alerting me that my software license has expired.

Or PECO, suggesting I stay on the line to talk to a representative about lowering my energy bill.

Or a credit card company, stressing that my credit is fine but I might be able to lower my interest rate.

Or the federal government, advising me that I owe income taxes and a warrant has been issued for my arrest.

It's maddening, right?

The number of robocalls made in the United States continues to climb at a disturbing rate.

In 2018, an estimated 47.8 billion were logged, an increase of more than 50 percent over the year before.

YouMail is a free robocall blocking company that conducts this research.

According to its CEO, Alex Quilici, "We're now talking about 150 or more robocalls for every adult in the U.S. over the course of the year, and many of these robocalls are unwanted scammers trying to trick people out of their money or personal data."

In fact, nearly 27 million of those 2018 calls — about half — were classified as scams or telemarketing.

But some are legal, despite the annoyance. Political and charity calls are permitted. It doesn't necessarily matter if you are affiliated with a party or if you are even registered to vote. It also doesn't matter if you've made a charitable contribution in the past.

Robocalls are the top consumer complaint at the Federal Communications Commission and the Federal Trade Commission, according to an NBC report, which stated the FTC "received 4.5 million robocall complaints in 2017, up from 3.4 million in 2016."

And this is only the tip of the iceberg, since most people bothered by robocalls never file a complaint.

So far, just one call made to my landline today was legitimate. It was CVS, reminding me that a prescription was ready for pickup. I recognized that number, so I answered it.

The trouble is, these robocallers have figured out ways to prompt you to also take their calls.

They "spoof" the phone number, making the caller ID show any number or name they choose. They can even use the three-digit exchange for your community, possibly tricking you into thinking the person on the other end might be a neighbor. I've even gotten a call on my cellphone from my own cellphone number.

Robocallers can dial millions of people daily. The calls are cheap and easy to make. And so many of them have figured out ways to dodge the system and avoid the law that they're willing to continue taking their chances.

In fact, YouMail projects between 60 billion and 75 billion robocalls will be made by year's end.

So how do we stop this, since the callers always seem to be one step ahead?

Many wireless carriers now have a security system in place to limit the number of incoming calls, according to a spokesman for Verizon.

This helps to verify that the number on the caller ID is the same as the number associated with the originating caller and isn't a "spoofed" number.

My wireless carrier alerts me of a suspicious call by showing me the caller's name as "Scam Likely."

And there are apps out there for both Apple and Android phones that can help to block unwanted calls.

The federal Do Not Call registry is still active, and you can always add your number to it.

Here's how:

Call 1-888-382-1222 from the phone number you want to register. The process takes less than one minute.

Boscola: $6.75M for area development projects

BRIEFLY REGIONAL

State funding received locally

State Sen. Lisa Boscola has announced $6.75 million in Redevelopment Assistance Capital Program (RACP) funding to six redevelopment projects in the 18th Senatorial District.

"These state funds will be used to assist in the redevelopment of five important economic development projects in the cities of Bethlehem and Easton along with assisting in the construction of a new public safety complex in Whitehall," Boscola said. "By investing in these projects, the commonwealth is providing important capital to not only make these projects economically viable, but also create additional economic development projects that will not only create jobs, but also positively impact businesses located in our urban areas."

The projects being awarded RACP funding are:

- Commodore - Optima Durant ($3 million): The redevelopment of 100-116 Northampton Street in the City of Easton, which is a blighted property that serves as the gateway to Pennsylvania, into commercial, residential and a 6,000 square-foot restaurant on the roof;

- Whitehall Township Police and Municipal Services Complex ($1 million): Whitehall will be constructing a new 29,000 square-foot police station and sally port adjacent to the existing municipal complex and renovating approximately 9,000 square feet of the existing complex;

- Boyd Theater Redevelopment ($750,000): A mixed use redevelopment of the former movie theater into ground floor retail and 120 one and two-bedroom apartments in Bethlehem's central business district;

- Heritage Lanes Building (Easton) ($750,000): Heritage Riverview, LLC, will be redeveloping the vacant Heritage Lanes building into a multi-use structure that will allow for additional levels of the building. Hearst Corporation has already been announced as a primary tenant and will occupy the entire first floor;

- Riverport Market - Bethlehem ($750,000): Project will demolish the former Starters Riverport and convert it to an urban market, which will be home to 30 vendors and businesses. This $3 million project will build upon the successes of other urban markets throughout the Commonwealth; and,

- ArtsQuest Community Cultural Center ($500,000): Projects consists of the construction of a new 80,000 square-foot arts and cultural center at the site of the current Banana Factory

Arts Center in Bethlehem.

"I am pleased to have worked with Governor Wolf on these joint priorities to make this funding a reality," Boscola said. "We both recognize the importance of redeveloping sites such as this in our urban cores to make neighborhoods vibrant once again."

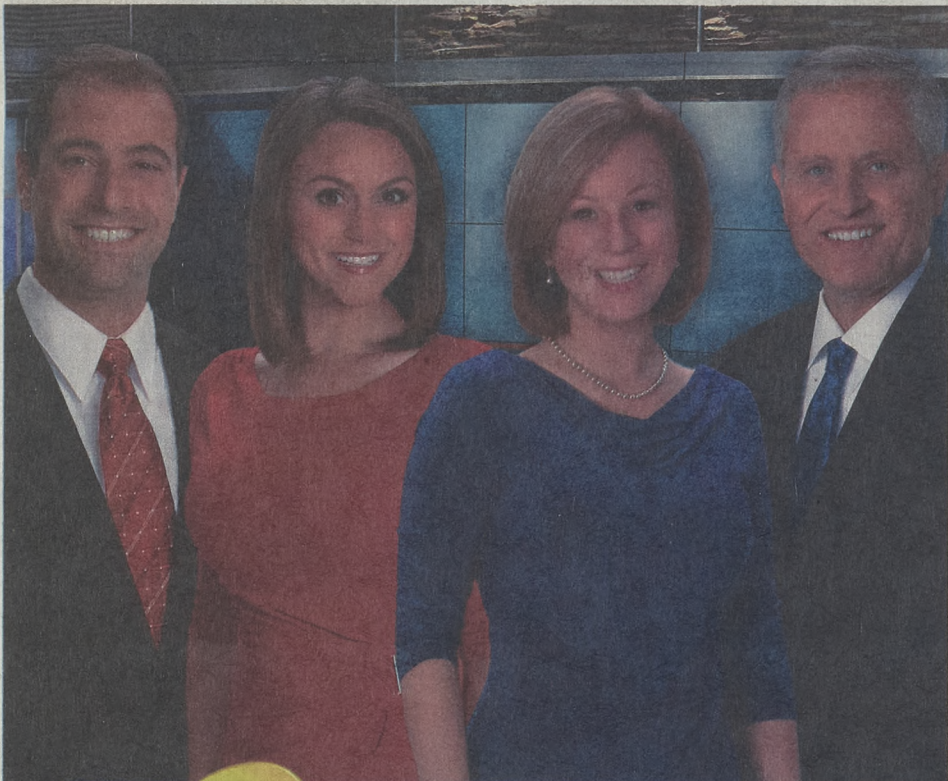

The RACP (Redevelopment Assistance Capital Program) is used for the acquisition and construction of regional economic, cultural, civic, recreational, and historical improvement projects. Qualifying projects have a regional or multi-jurisdictional impact, help create or maintain jobs, and generate economic activity.

Tarantino 'Once' again

You pretty much know what you're going to get with a film written and directed by Quentin Tarantino.

There's going to be knucklehead characters just on this side, or that side, of the law.

There's going to be pop culture-infused quippy dialogue and visuals.

And there's going to be an explosion, or explosions, of violence.

You get all this and more in Tarantino's "Once Upon a Time in ... Hollywood."

The emphasis in the film's title is "Once Upon a Time." That's important because, while the film has historic occurrences and characters with names of real people, it's far from a straight-forward depiction of Hollywood circa 1969, described as the last days of Hollywood's motion picture studio golden days.

Tarantino, never one to let facts get in the way of his truth as a film-maker, has created one of Summer 2019's best times at the movie theater.

"Once Upon a Time" is bravura film-making that recalls the heyday of feature movies of the 1970s in style (always surprising editing by longtime Tarantino editor Fred Raskin), subject matter (Tarantino loves behind-the-scenes scenarios) and cinematography (Director of Photography Robert Richardson, recipient of cinematography Oscars for "Hugo," Oscars, 2011; "The Aviator" 2004; "JFK," 1991).

Pinpointing 1969 as the year when the studio system collapsed has validity. It was the year of "Easy Rider" (1969), the outre opus directed by Dennis Hopper and starring himself, Peter Fonda and Jack Nicholson in a film that paved the way for Hollywood's young guns, the 1970s "New Hollywood" of directors George Lucas ("America Graffiti," 1973), Steven Spielberg ("Jaws," 1975), Martin Scorsese ("Mean Streets," 1973) and Francis Ford Coppola ("The Godfather," 1972).

Tarantino sets "Once Upon a Time" on a Hollywood studio backlot where Rick Dalton (terrific Leonardo DiCaprio, channeling his best laconic Jack Nicholson drawl and Clint Eastwood economy of acting style) stars in a western being filmed on a western town movie set. Dalton's assisted by his stunt double, Cliff Booth (never-better Brad Pitt, portraying a slacker just dumb enough to be smart).

"Once Upon a Time" also takes place in the Hollywood Hills, along Sunset Strip, in Malibu and significantly at the Spahn Movie Ranch, where western movies were made, but now is the home of squatters. None other than Charlie Manson and his "family" have settled in.

The screenplay sets up a sequence of events leading inevitably to a climax at the home of Rick Dalton, whereby history gets Tarantinoized, rewritten as Tarantino did, especially with "Inglourious Basterds" (2009) and "Django Unchained" (2012), the latter for which he received an original screenplay Oscar, which he also received for his breakout hit, "Pulp Fiction" (1994).

Tarantino uses flashback, dream sequences, a film within a film, a fictional television show ("Bounty Law"), an actual movie, "The Wrecking Crew" (1969), radio commercials, hit songs from the era, and imagined happenstances to create his cinematic sleight-of-lens. It's a fascinating ride, literally in a vintage MG-TD and Cadillac, coursing the L.A. byways and highways. Tarantino's gift for bristling dialogue is in full force.

The ensemble cast is terrific: Margo Robbie as Sharon Tate, the Hollywood starlet; Al Pacino as Marvin Schwarzs, a movie agent; Emile Hirsch as Jay Sebring, Tate's former boyfriend; Kurt Russell as Randy, a stunt coordinator, who in a voice-over superfluously narrates the final scenes; Margaret Qualley as Pussycat, a Manson Family follower; Dakota Fanning as Squeaky Fromme, another Manson Family member; Bruce Dern as George Spahn, owner of the Spahn Movie Ranch; Mike Moh as Bruce Lee; Damian Lewis as Steve McQueen; Rafal Zawierucha as film director Roman Polanski; Damon Herriman as Charles Manson; Austin Butler as Tex Watson, a Manson Family member; Rachel Redleaf as Mama Cass; Rebecca Rittenhouse as Michelle Phillips; Julia Butters as Trudi, a child actress, and Luke Perry in what's believed to be his last acting role.

"Once Upon a Time ... In Hollywood" may be one of the few Tarantino films with a happy ending. That doesn't mean all's well that ends well. It just ends, well, differently. No spoiler alerts here, Quentin.

If you're a fan of Quentin Tarantino, Leonardo DiCaprio and Brad Pitt, this film's for you. It's

VBS at Shepherd of the Hills, Egypt

Above, left: Children are all smiles during Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church's Vacation Bible School, held July 8-12 at the Egypt church. This year, 22 children attended the weeklong program. In mission work, they donated more than $170 toward Operation Kid to Kid, which will be sent to Zambia to help mothers and babies get proper medical care. They also brought in 1,000-plus items to fill shoe boxes for Operation Christmas Child. Above, right: Kyleigh Greiss enjoys her turn on a water slide during VBS at the 4331 Main St. church.

CONTRIBUTED PHOTOS

We will never tire of some things

It's been raining here — a rather heavy rain at that. But I sit outside on my covered lanai watching a nature show that takes place at my bird feeder.

I watch a dazzling blue jay step onto the bird feeder. He's really too big for the small perch, but he manages to grab a sesame seed before he flies away.

On the ground, a colony of tiny multicolored birds enjoy snacking on the seeds I scattered for birds that prefer to feed on the ground.

The storm seems to be making the birds more active, and soon two cardinals come to the feeder, much to my delight.

I've seen this entire nature show before — many times before. But I never tire of it.

Some things are like that. We might have seen them hundreds of times before. Yet, each new sighting is still cause to marvel.

Sunsets are like that, too. No matter how many times we've seen a spectacular sunset we still oooh and aahhh over the next one.

Our crowded Englewood beach starts to clear out as people head home for dinner. Then the second shift comes — dozens and dozens of nature lovers who drive for miles to witness sunset at the beach. As the sun sinks, turning the sky into a kaleidoscope of color, people ahhh as if it's their first sunset. Some clap their appreciation while many others pull out their cameras to capture the scene.

I see some of these cellphone shooters often coming back for more of the same sunset photos.

Unlike days of old when it was expensive to shoot Kodachrome photos that had to be processed, a digital camera lets us shoot to our heart's content without costing a dime.

Of course, most of our digital photos never get printed, but we can still enjoy sharing them by scrolling through our stored images.

Many of us never tire of taking cellphone snapshots. Some seem to take photos to post on Facebook of every meal they eat and every activity they do.

Another kind of photography we never tire of taking is that of our grandkids. Some of my friends start a conversation by saying, "Did I show you the latest photos of my grandchild?"

A child's smiling face and easy laughter are two more things of which I never tire.

I have a theory that the older we grow, the more we enjoy seeing children.

Last week my friend Jeanne and I went for dinner at a new restaurant that's winning rave reviews for its excellent food. Our dinners lived up to the online reviews, but there was one thing that grabbed our attention more than the great food. Two nearby tables each had a pretty baby as part of their family group. The two babies

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik
newsgirl@comcast.net

kept throwing smiles at each other — and at us when we caught their eyes.

"There's nothing like a smiling baby," said my friend. It's another sight of which we never tire.

The same can be said of stunning water views. Whenever my husband and I cross the bridge over the Peace River we remark how lucky we are to enjoy such eye-pleasing vistas on a daily basis. Each morning when I go for my daily walk I always pause over a nearby bridge to enjoy the water view below. I pass the same view every day, but I don't get tired of watching the boats from that bridge.

Another thing that never loses its appeal for me are the canal convoys my friend Andy organizes. About once or twice a month he and other pontoon boat owners come together at our community marina to offer convoy rides to anyone interested in going.

So far more than 500 people have enjoyed those night adventures on the 26 miles of our canals. I count myself blessed every time I am one of the lucky riders.

Andy says he loves taking his pontoon boat for a long ride on the canals. But he likes it more when he can share the experience with others.

It's especially pretty to meander down the canal under a starry sky. Do you ever tire of seeing a big moon light up the sky or a sky twinkling with a multitude of stars?

I sometimes ask people to name delightful things they never tire of.

One 70-something man surprised me by answering, "Chocolate! I never tire of eating chocolate."

Just gotta love a man who loves chocolate.

My husband answered that question by saying, "Getting into a comfortable bed each night after a tiring day."

He makes sure he is active every day because he claims he can't sleep unless he's tired.

With our summer temperatures in the high 90s and with the outside projects David has to finish, being tired at the end of the day is easy.

I have a favorite way of coping with the heat by enjoying laps in my swimming pool.

Some people tell me they get tired of their swimming pool, just as they got tired of the boat that once enchanted them.

Personally I don't believe I will ever tire being in my swimming pool. It makes me feel like a kid again.

So now I'll ask you the question I've asked others: What are some of the things of which you never tire?

Strategies to tell guests it's time to go

Dear Jacquelyn, Some weeks ago, my husband and I invited another couple to our home for dinner at 6 p.m. I hadn't seen them in years and my husband didn't know them. They got to know each other over a nice dinner. Around 11 p.m., I was starting to get nervous because I had an important meeting in the morning. How does one politely tell a guest that it's time to leave?

Dear Reader, One of life's trickier social situations is when you find yourself sitting across from guests who simply will not leave.

After all, you invited the guests and as a host you're obligated to make them feel comfortable. On the other hand, it's neither fair nor practical for them to expect you to stay up late, especially if you have other commitments the next morning.

RESPECTFULLY YOURS

By Jacquelyn Youst

The best way to get out of an awkward social situation is to avoid it altogether. When you issue your invitation, include an end time as well as a start time.

For example, mention that you'll need to wrap things up by 10 p.m. or whenever you wish. Let them know you have an early morning commitment. You could also mention shortly after guests arrive that it won't be a late night given how much is on your plate at work.

If you failed to mention that you have to end the evening at a particular time, there are ways you can wrap up a conversation.

You might start by not injecting new topics into the conversation and allowing longer periods of silence.

Ask your guests what they are planning to do the next day and tell them how much you've enjoyed spending time with them.

These types of signals will often trigger most people to end the conversation without causing offense.

Hints don't work with some people. If your guests are still lingering and haven't picked up on the social cue, it's time to speak up.

Stand up and graciously say to your guests, "Oh, my goodness, look at the time! We have kept you far too long. It's time to say goodnight and let you get back to your own home and family."

End the night with the suggestion to get together again soon. Be specific and try to set up a date that shows you truly want to do so again some time. Focus on the fact that you really enjoyed this time talking to them.

Respectfully Yours, Jacquelyn

Separated father cautioned about custody

Q. I am a recently-separated single father with primary custody of my six-year-old daughter. Her mother has her every weekend and sees her weekly during activities and dinner. Her mother recently started dating a man and their posts on Facebook include them drinking and partying on weekends when she has our daughter. Should I be concerned?

This question has two somewhat connected issues to it, panelist Mike Ramsey said.

"One, the father is worried about the supervision of his daughter; two, he says his wife 'was not like this before,' which shows he is worried about her, as well," said Ramsey.

Panelist Wanda Mercado-Arroyo said that she thought that the custody arrangement is unusual. Panelist Chad Stefanyak said the arrangement could be for any number of reasons.

"It could be that the father lives in a preferred school district for the daughter, or it could be for financial reasons," said Stefanyak.

THE FAMILY PROJECT

By Carole Gorney

After saying that the father can't control what the mother does during her free time, panelist Denise Continenza said the best approach would be for the father to have an honest conversation with the mother about what happens with the daughter when she goes out.

"Safety concerns related to the daughter are warranted, and are the only things the father really can address," Continenza said.

"Keep the conversation general and non-judgmental," Mercado-Arroyo said, adding, "Just discuss what both can do to avoid any risk to the daughter."

Questions that the mother could be asked, said panelist Mike Daniels, include: Who takes care of the daughter when the mother is out? And is having the daughter every other weekend causing her problems?

"The father could suggest agreeing on an approved babysitter, switching visiting times and ways to keep the lines of communication open where the daughter is concerned," Daniels said.

The panel concluded it is inappropriate to try and get information from the six-year-old.

"It's OK to have a general conversation about the daughter's weekend," panelist Pam Wallace said. "The father can ask the daughter if she had fun, but not what the mother did. You don't want the child to be put in a position of telling on her mother."

The panel cautioned against rushing to judgment regarding photos posted on Facebook. A photo on Facebook is only a snapshot in time, Continenza said.

"The photo doesn't explain if there is drinking to excess or a glass of wine at dinner. The photos could be of something absolutely innocent, but your mind tells you to fill in the blanks," said Continenza.

This week's team of parenting experts are: Pam Wallace, Program Coordinator, Project Child, a program of Valley Youth House; Wanda Mercado-Arroyo, former teacher and school administrator; Chad Stefanyak, school counselor; Michael Ramsey, MS, LPC, Program Supervisor, Valley Youth House; Mike Daniels, LCSW, Psychotherapist, CTS; and Denise Continenza, extension educator.

Hypnosis: You are going to read this

First of two parts
Q. Can hypnosis help me to quit smoking?

Hypnosis is one of several relaxation methods said to be useful by an independent panel of the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

The panel found that hypnosis may be helpful for treating chronic pain, alleviated anxiety, reducing the frequency and severity of headaches, and controlling bleeding and pain during dental procedures.

Hypnosis is also promoted to change undesirable behaviors, such as smoking, alcohol dependence, and bedwetting. It is used along with other methods by some mental health professionals to help patients overcome common fears such as the fear of flying or of meeting new people.

Hypnosis achieves focused attention. It is like using a magnifying glass to focus the rays of the sun and make them more powerful. When our minds are concentrated, we are able to use them more powerfully.

Hypnosis, also known as hypnotherapy or hypnotic suggestion, has been a healing practice for thousands of years. The term comes from the Greek "hypnos," which means sleep.

The use of trance-like states and positive suggestion was an important technique used in the Greek healing temples. Variations of those techniques were practiced in the ancient world.

Modern hypnosis can be traced to the German physician Franz Anton Mesmer, who believed that imbalances in magnetic forces in the human body were responsible for illness. Mesmer applied a therapy, which he called mesmerism, which involved the use of tranquil gestures and soothing words to relax patients and restore balance to their magnetic forces.

The evolution of Mesmer's ideas and practices led the Scottish neurosurgeon James Braid to coin the term hypnosis in 1842. Called the "father of modern hypnotism," Braid rejected Mesmer's theory of magnetic forces and instead ascribed the "mesmeric trance" to a physical process that resulted from prolonged attention to an object of fixation.

Sigmund Freud, the father of psychotherapy, found hypnosis useful for treating hysteria, but later abandoned the practice after observing that he stirred up powerful emotions within his patients.

Eventually, using a state of altered awareness gained greater acceptance in conventional Western medicine. Today, hypnosis is used widely in the United States and other Western countries. People who practice hypnosis are generally licensed and are often trained in several psychological techniques.

Under hypnosis, you're more open than usual to suggestions, and this can be used to modify your perceptions, behavior, sensations and emotions. Therapeutic hypnosis is used to improve your health and well-being and is different from "stage hypnosis" used by entertainers. Although you're more open to suggestion during therapeutic hypnosis, your free will remains intact and you don't lose control over your behavior.

Some people are not able to enter a state of hypnosis fully enough to make it effective. Certain qualities may mean you're more likely to have success with hypnosis. These include the ability to be so engrossed in an activity that you aren't aware of your environment, the capacity to recall vivid memories through the sense of smell, and the ability to recall physical sensations of past events.

Adverse reactions are rare but may include headache, dizziness, nausea, anxiety, and creation of false memories. See GEEZER on Page B5

Lancaster's Big Boy Brass to hold forth at Zinzenplatz

BY GEORGE VANDOREN
Special to The Press

Big Boy Brass, a Lancaster-based brass band, performs at Musikfest, 5 p.m. Aug. 9, Guardian Insurance Company of America Zinzenplatz, Main and Lehigh streets, Bethlehem.

Big Boy Brass plays an eclectic genre-bending blend of high-energy rock, pop, funk and traditional jazz with a twist.

The ensemble includes Connor Devlin, sousaphone; Vincent Chickora, Ben Ewing, Nolan Wible, trumpets; Dominic Mascaro, trombone; Sam Yoder, trombone and guitar; Nick Franks and Paul Berry, saxophones, and Matt

Woodson, drums. Big Boy Brass often performs with different instrumentation, depending on the event and venue. The group morphed into a 24-piece marching unit for the Mummer's Parade in Philadelphia.

Says Connor Devlin, "We started with three trumpets, three trombones, and three saxes, plus tuba and drum."

"Six of us are Millersville [University] grads and two from Lebanon Valley College. We're all music-ed or music business majors."

"We started playing at Herseypark. We took an extra gig outside of West Chester. Afterwards, we started heading for our cars. People stopped us, wanting us to play more. They gave us twenty bucks to keep playing. So, we thought maybe we should give it a shot.

"We did some busking in Lancaster and then went official in the fall of 2016."

Big Boy Brass has a steady gig every Sunday at Tellus 360, Lancaster; a CD, "Breaking the Busker's Code," and recently finished a tour that included Baltimore, Trenton, Charlottesville and Washington, D.C.

Says Matt Woodson, "We play a collection of New Orleans jazz, pop, fusion, dance music ... shake your booty music."

Asked about influences, Woodson cites

Big Boy Brass, performs at Musikfest, 5 p.m. Aug. 9, Guardian Insurance Company of America Zinzenplatz, Bethlehem.

the Rebirth Brass Band, Lucky Chops, No BS! Brass, and the Dirty Dozen Brass Band.

"We share a lot of the work," Woodson says. "Connor does the booking and scheduling. We split other things like merchandise and social media. Three of the guys do arranging. Originals we do together, some of it by ear. A lot of our songs evolve."
