Celebrating our 16th year serving our communities

A VIEW To do better The birth of racial consciousness

BY EDWARD J. GALLAGHER Special to the Bethlehem Press

There are "Sundown Towns," towns in which it is not safe for a Black after dark. I lived in a "Sun-drenched Town," a town in which you'd hardly see a Black on the main street at any time. There was an "other side of the tracks" in my town. The Paoli Local split the town, not in half, but let's say 90-10. The blacks stayed on their side of the tracks. This was the 1950s.

The school playground, however, was democratic terrain. There the many bloods of the American stream met. It was on the playground that I met him. I can't remember his name. It was Homer or Horatio. It was Johnson or Brown or Washing-ton. Homer or Horatio was good-natured and gregarious. He faced life with what I would much later recognize as a plantation smile. He was also a natural athlete, a "superb physical specimen," as they say when coldly dehumanizing a person of color, the kind of guy who never wore a shirt in warm weather and you didn't mind. Homer or Horatio and I played a lot of ball together in my high school years. We were playground friends. After graduation, I had a summer job delivering furniture and appliances, helping to meet college expenses. Homer or Horatio wasn't going to college. He needed a job to subsist. But he confided to me with inherited stoicism that everywhere he applied in our sun-drenched town, he met polite but curt refusal. Remember, this was the 1950s. Homer or Horatio was my friend. He needed a recommendation. So I made the well-meaning offer to put in a good word for him with my boss, pretending I was a young man of influence, of privilege, of power. Though I knew he was better equipped for this kind of work than me, a definite liability on the ass-end of a sofa going up two flights of stairs. I offered to help Homer or Horatio. He was my friend. But I never followed through. My big boss was a big bigot - Mr. Sundrenched himself. His assistant – I remember her name precisely was the snooty Mrs. DuBois - pronounced Du-bwa, mind you, not Du-boise – who barely tolerated my lower middle classness.

One of the specialty kites that gave attendees an element of surprise was a string of nearly 50 kites that would lift up off the ground by itself periodically, when the wind was perfect for flight. To the right is a purple object that is called a pilot or a lifter. Its purpose is to provide the wind fuel to some of the big specialty kites. You can see its companion as you look at the photo of the black pegasus kite. More photos from the event appear on page A2

Pocono Kite Symphony. The day was held in honor of Anthony "Tony" Reiser, who was a charter member of the Lehigh Valley Kite Society. Tony passed away earlier this year at the age of 93.

The blue sky and billowy white clouds were beautifully decorated with kites of many colors and shapes floating and lifted with the perfect amount of wind.

The day included an awe-inspiring show of large specialty kites. A number of smaller traditional kites were flown by children and adults in attendance.

There were planned activities by volunteers, including kite flying lessons, kids' kite building, kite coloring workshops, raffles, games, a bubble station and more.

Through generous sponsorships, this annual program is offered free of charge to the public, and is a perfect family fun activity to enjoy. Andy Gelinas of East Stroudsburg beside one of his original designs on a banner to the entrance of the 'Kite Day in the Park' festivities of which he is the founder. Andy's vision 30 years ago has brought people from all over the region and several states to participate with members of the Lehigh Valley Kite Society and Pocono Kite Symphony. Gelinas is also president of the organizations. Andy expressed his joy at watching folks come out through the years to fly for the first time, as much as the veterans who have made kite flying a well-loved hobby and recreation.

One not to be missed on the 30th annual 'Kite Day in the Park' was a black pegasus galloping through the air. The pegasus, with its 19-foot wingspan, is operated by Ron Klopp of Sinking Spring. In the upper photo of the kite string, you can see the purple pilot/lifter which flies much higher and farther away and gives the pegasus the wind fuel it needs for its majestic display.

A three-alarm fire on Independence Court severely damaged a row of six condos May 24. The Herman family lived in one of the condos affected and lost everything in the blaze. A family friend created a GoFundMe page to raise money for the family. A portion of the donations will help the Hermans buy another wedding dress for their oldest daughter, who was set to get married May 28. Since the GoFundMe's creation, a new wedding dress was miraculously overnighted. To view the GoFundMe, please visit: https://gf.me/v/c/rsj/the-herman-family.

In addition to kites for entertainment, Brad Weiner of South Jersey in Williamstown had a bubbles station set up to thrill young kiters. Brad flies his bubbles into the air around the world at different events. On the right, Ella of Palmer Township braces herself as the bubble cloud flies right to her, while sister Olivia gets ready to catch some.

COUNTY PRISON: The Director of Corrections reports that, since the start of the pandemic, 184 inmates have tested positive for COVID-19. All have finished their quarantine periods or are no longer at NCP. Since March 2020, NCP has conducted 3,177 tests for COVID-19 on inmates. All new inmates coming into the facility receive a test before they are transferred to General Population; residents are tested on a random basis.

Sixty-four NCP Corrections Officers have tested positive for the virus since the start of the pandemic. Sixty-three have finished their quarantine periods and returned to work.

There are currently 520 inmates in residence at NCP. Twenty-seven non-violent offenders have been granted extended furloughs.

NCP will hold its second vaccination clinic on Wednesday, June 9. PrimeCare Medical will administer the shots to inmates and staff. The vaccinations are not compulsory and are only provided to those who request them. Over the last few months, NCP employees have been able to sign up for the vaccine at public clinics.

A conditional COA was unanimously granted to Lara Bly for vinyl window signage for her fashion design studio and boutique at 202 E. The storefront is the former home of Sagra Beans in the building owned by Greenway 1 Inc.

Developer Jackson Eighmy, assisted by ar-chitect Todd Chambers, returned for another session with HCC to move forward with his project at 409-411 Wyandotte St. They had received previous approval of this project in general direc-tion and scope.

Eighmy's plans for restoring the two storefronts in keeping with the spirit of the 1880s appearance of the much-altered façades was unanimously approved "as presented," with the stipulation the new Pella windows for the upper stories are matched to existing window openings. The board okayed a fabricated steel staircase for a rebuilt rear addition, as it would be screened from view by a privacy fence. They also chose a more traditional-looking fabric awning covering an ADA access ramp over a proposed industrial-looking flat steel canopy hanging from the north wall.

A proposal by New Bethany Ministries to replace existing asphalt shingles and EPDM rubber roofing for 337 Wyandotte St. gained approval. The Zephyrs, seeded fourth, are the type of team that can sneak up on any other.

"We definitely need to bring the intensity," Snisky said. "And their team is super loud, and they try to distract you."

When Freedom last played Whitehall, the Patriots had a decent lead but lost it and the game on defense. And as their defense declined, so went their offense.

Bethlehem Catholic softball coach Rich Mazza didn't think his team would quit after trailing Blue Mountain by three runs in a District XI Class 4A semifinal, but for the Golden Hawks to win it by mercy rule was a whole different story that started in the bottom of the fifth inning last Thursday at Becahi.

With two outs, and two runners on base, Becahi junior Jordan Merklin had an RBI double that dropped in left center.

Sports can be cruel and Liberty's baseball team learned that lesson the hard way last week in the District 11 6A semifinals.

That harrowing reality came in the form of a 3-2 semifinal loss to Parkland to end their season prematurely.

The Hurricanes (19-3) were the top team in the area all season, until the postseason came along and ended their hopes at conference and district title aspirations, making it a particular difficult pill to swallow for everyone involved.

Randolph on pace for a career year

BY CHUCK HIXSON Special to the Press

Baseball is full of examples of players who were taken high in the draft and never reached the potential that they were thought to have when they were being scouted.

Cornelius Randolph has looked like he may be among those play-ers after being drafted by the Phillies with the 10th overall pick in the 2015 Draft and moving slowly through the minor league system while other players passed him and reached the majors. That seems to be changing as Randolph is putting up substantial numbers this season on his way to a career season that would resolidify him as a prospect.

Through 15 games with Lehigh Valley, Randolph is batting .377 with four home runs and 13 RBI. The numbers were strong all season but last week, Randolph set himself apart with a performance good enough to see him awarded with the Triple-A East Player of the Week award. In six games, the 23-yearold outfielder hit .591 (13-for-22) with four doubles, three home runs, eight runs scored and nine runs batted in. He is on a path that would see him finish the year with career highs in home runs and RBI. He is also on target to reset his career-high in batting average, which he set in his first professional season when he hit .302 in the Gulf Coast League.

Randolph declined to just sit home and mope during the pandemic that wiped out the 2020 minor league season. Instead, he went to work on everything. Stanley Ave. speeding concerns resident FOUNTAIN HILL

BY LAKISHA BONNELL Special to the Bethlehem Press

Borough Manager Anthony Branco read an open letter from a concerned citizen to council May 19. The citizen requested that more police patrol around the Fountain Hill playground because vehicles are speeding through the area. The resident documented two different occasions in which cars sped through all the stop signs, and said this is an ongoing problem in an area where families with kids are regularly present.

"Please increase police presence on Stanley Avenue," the letter concluded. In response to the letter, Police Chief Ed Bachart said that the police have already been made aware of the situation and there has been enforcement.

Branco is retiring, and his last day was May 31. In the meeting, he brought up the notion to name the council solicitor as the Right-to-Know officer because no other staff is fully trained to act as such. This officer responds to Right-to-Know requests of the Mae Kolb celebrated her 100th birthday May 12, surrounded by her family, at Phoebe Allentown retirement community.

She was married to the late Kenneth Kolb for 52 years and lived most of her married life in Coplay Borough.

She was a very active member of St. John's Lutheran Church, Coplay. Additionally, she did volunteer work at Phoebe and Muhlenberg Hospital.

"She now lives in the Phoebe nursing home but still likes to take part in activities they have," Alice Keller, Mae's daughter, said.

Mae was also active in the Coplay Garden Club and enjoyed knitting, with her specialty being Christmas stockings. Keller noted every new addition to the family received a stocking. "I think ice cream, grandchildren and keeping active attributed to her long life," Keller said.

She noted Mae worked in an ice cream shop for a bit and especially enjoyed spending time babysitting and taking day trips with her grandchildren.

Mae has two daughters, three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.
