Becahi girls volleyball team wins gold medal

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It's been three years too long since Bethlehem Catholic's last volleyball title, but the girls brought it home Saturday night in sweeping fashion after dismantling Central Catholic in three games 25-17, 25-21, 25-15 in the District 11 2A final.

Lauren Hess led the way again with 15 kills, while Kelsey Mower added nine kills and Julie Kollar had eight kills. Maddie Titus added 40 assists and Jean Titus had 15 digs to lead Becahi to an easier victory over Central this time around, compared to their five game win at Rockne Hall during the regular season.

"This was easier than expected but I think that goes to how hard we played throughout the match," said Hawks head coach

The Becahi girls volleyball team knocked off Central Catholic last week for the district title. They will play Wednesday, after Press deadlines, in the opening round of states.

Paul Abi-Daher said. "We were so determined to play hard on every play. Our team was cautious of what happened in the past three years in the district final and we didn't want to repeat those circumstances."

Southern Lehigh was Becahi's thorn over the past three years in the 2A finals, but the Spartans moved up to 3A this past year and found themselves back in the finals, but lost to Parkland in four games over the weekend.

"We've always had a proud tradition here at Becahi," said Abi-Daher. "Over the last 32 years, I think we've won about half of the 2A championships. We have history here. It was important for us to retain it with a championship."

Now the Hawks set their sights on winning a state championship when their voyage begins tonight at 7 p.m. against District One

'Canes win showdown

Liberty may have walked away with an inferior record to Freedom last Saturday, but you couldn't tell by all the smiles plastered across the faces of the Hurricanes faithful.

The Hurricanes turned around a 7-6 halftime deficit with a 29-point third quarter to barrel there way through Freedom 41-14 to force a three-way split for the city championship.

It was Liberty's third win of the season, but the 'Canes (3-7) felt like they came away with more over the last month, when they finished the year 3-1 in their final four games.

"Our seniors could have quit a long time ago but they didn't," said Liberty head coach Dave Brown. "Compared to what I felt like when we were 0-6, it's a pretty good feeling. The biggest thing for me isn't beating your rival, but getting some momentum heading into next season."

KJ Williams spearheaded the Liberty comeback by picking off Freedom quarterback Brian Uliana off a screen pass and taking it to the end zone from 11 yards out with 9:11 left in the third to put Liberty ahead 14-7 following a converted two-point conversion.

Freedom would capitalize on an interception by Liberty's freshman quarterback Doug Erney midway through the third, when Christian Negron ran for a 17-yard score with 5:52 left to even the contest at 14, but that was the closest the game would be.

Liberty would erupt with 21 unanswered points in a three-minute span to close out the third, starting with a 27-yard TD run by Ryan Lawrence to put them ahead 21-14.

Dylan Brown then picked up a Uliana fumble on the Pates ensuing drive and returned it 13-yards for a touchdown.

STATE CROSS COUNTRY

Pates accomplish goal - 'beat Parkland'

If at first you don't succeed, try, try to beat Parkland.

That was the advice Freedom cross country coach, Bob Thear, gave to his boys team, in a manner of speaking, prior to the PIAA State Cross Country championships last weekend at Parkview Cross Country Course in Hershey, Pa.

So, for the fourth time this season, the Patriots defeated the Trojans on Saturday, placing 16th overall to Parkland's 17th. "For such a young team and having never been to states before, I tried to tell them what it would be like, but you really can't," said Thear.

Knowing his Patriot runners would have to experience a challenging course with hundreds of runners and thousands of spectators for themselves, Thear really had no expectations, except for one.

"I told them, just run it, just take it in, and beat Parkland," Thear said.

Freedom scored 388 points, and Parkland scored 414.

"We got them," said Freedom runner, Chris Kelly. "We were happy to get on top of them one more time."

Freedom sophomore, Jason Lopez, placed first for the Patriots, 110th overall, in 17:24. Ben Ziegler was next for Freedom in 17:34, followed by Dan See Boys on Page A10

Shaina Palmer runs in first state meet

First-time cross country state qualifier, Shaina Palmer, represented the Freedom Patriots and District XI, placing in the top 100 at the Class AAA PIAA State Cross County Championships last weekend at Parkview Golf Course in Hershey, Pa.

"I'm pretty happy. My goal was top 80, top 75," said Palmer.

The Freedom sophomore finished the race in 83rd place with a time of 20:21.

"She ran great. She worked superhard and had a fantastic time. It was one of her best races," said Freedom coach Bob Thear.

Palmer started out the race with Easton's Diana Hammerstone, who finished in 20:28, and kept pace with the Red Rover freshman for most of the day.

"It helps to run with someone familiar. Our starting boxes were close together. We were back and forth the whole race," Palmer said.

Parkview, known for its hills, presents a grueling challenge to its runners.

"I basically just took each hill as its own and ran it. I knew I was kind of in the middle. The finish came up really quickly," she said.

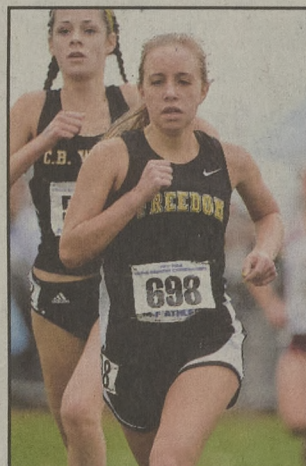

The final incline is appropriately named Poop-Out Hill.

"I actually did pass two people on the hill and three on the last straightaway. I didn't realize how close the finish was," said Palmer.

Both Coach Thear and Palmer agreed that Palmer's state championship race was a good learning experience that she will be able to draw from for the next two years.

"I wanted to race it to get the experience. I'm pretty happy," Palmer said.

Freedom's Shaina Palmer took 83rd at the state meet.

FOOTBALL

Despite final record, Hawks making progress

By PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It was the conclusion to a long football season last Friday night for Bethlehem Catholic. The Hawks finished out their 2012 campaign with a 42-7 defeat at the hands of Central Catholic.

Vikings running back Colin McDermot stole the show by rushing for a Lehigh Valley Conference record 422 yards, while adding five touchdowns to lead Central (5-5) into the district playoffs.

On the other side of the coin, Becahi struggled through a 1-9 campaign and head coach Joe Henrich fully understands the frustration that everyone related to the program feels.

"It takes a toll on all of us," said Henrich. "You like to get some reward from all the work you put in, but you don't know when it's going to come, but you have to keep working for it. "I'm human just like everyone else and it wasn't an easy season, but when we look at it internally, we know there's been progress."

Henrich points to the weight room as the key area of emphasis for the Becahi in the offseason, just as it was a year ago.

He expects attendance numbers to double from last year and the more commitment in the weight room he gets from his players, the more results he'll get out of the program.

"Central Catholic was just bigger and stronger than us and if we want to compete in the Lehigh Valley Conference, we need to be more committed in the weight room," he said. "The weight room develops confidence in players and allows you to be healthy throughout the season. When you see teams breakdown in the second half of games, a lot of the times it comes down to fatigue because you're having bigger guys grind on you for four quarters."

Henrich cited progress has been made from his first year to this past season, where players have gotten bigger, especially in the 190 pound-240 pound bracket, but there still is plenty of work to be done for a program that is trying to relive its rich history from the past.

"I think we have a bright future," said Henrich. "We graduate 14 players this year, but we have a nice group of juniors coming back. We have a solid core of sophomores and our freshman team is 6-3. We will have better days as long as they stay committed to the program. That's the biggest thing."

John Donchez of Becahi is hoping to get back to states next year as a senior and now has two years of experience.

Donchez competes at states

By KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Bethlehem Catholic cross country runner, John Donchez, relied on his recent past experiences at leagues and districts to get through the unusually hilly Parkview Cross Country Course at the PIAA State Cross Country Championships last weekend in Hershey, Pa.

The Class AA state qualifier completed the race in 18:10, taking 145th. "For the course, [my time] was pretty good, better than last year at states. I thought I ran a good race," Donchez said.

Experiencing lower temperatures than he had all season, Donchez had to put discomfort aside, knowing that the beginning of the race is do or die.

"The first half mile is crazy and gets so tight. You have to prepare yourself. The mile mark is an uphill, and then, it's hill after hill. You just keep working the hills," said Donchez.

The Becahi junior ran with North Schuylkill's Devin Mashak for most of the time.

"The last mile, I was hurting pretty bad. By the last hill, people were having to push themselves to get through it. The finish comes up fast, and everybody's sprinting all out," Donchez said.

Coached by Lou Sabler, Donchez was Bethlehem Catholic's only state qualifier after the District XI meet on Oct. 24.

Quigley in 17:37, and Kelly in 17:39.

"I knew I would have to go out harder than normal, but not crazy, and hold on from there. There are way too many hills on that course, but you have to take them one at a time. They just drained you. I was ready for the finish," Kelly said.

The Freedom junior came in before Parkland's third runner, and Freedom captain, Robbie Bogardo followed in 18:16. Doo Park, also a Patriot captain, finished in 18:28, and Tommy Salerno finished in 18:56.

Looking back on Freedom's most successful cross country season, Kelly said, "The season definitely exceeded our expectations. We couldn't have done much better. It all just somehow came together."

Well it's finally the post-season and this is the time of year that everyone has been waiting for. Unfortunately, computers have nudged their way into the process of making this fair, as you'll see below with some of the matchups.

But like they say, it is what it is.

1. Parkland (8-2)

Last week's rank: #1

Just goes to show you that power points still are not the answer when determining post-season seedings. It's a travesty that these two teams are playing this week.

The Pick: Parkland 21- Easton 14

2. Whitehall (8-2)

Last week's rank: #2

Hopefully Whitehall smacks this team around to put further emphasis on these power points.

The Pick: Whitehall 38-

Delaware Valley 13

3. Easton (9-1)

Last week's rank: #3

Should be a feisty tilt at Cottingham.

The Pick: Parkland 21- Easton 14

4. Catasauqua (10-0)

Last week's rank: #4

Will the team of destiny keep it rockin'?

The Pick: Catasauqua 35- Northern Lehigh 17

5. Stroudsburg (9-1)

Last week's rank: #5

How convenient to play the same team in as many weeks. Thanks power points!

The Pick: Stroudsburg 24- Pleasant Valley 21

6. Central (5-5)

Last week's rank: #9

Should be a rather simple ride to another district title.

Not ranked

Guess they deserve a spot.

The Pick: Stroudsburg 24- Pleasant Valley 21

memorable afternoon by throwing a bomb to Williams down the sideline for a 66-yard touchdown with 1:34 in the third to put Liberty up 35-14 after another converted two-point conversion.

"The turnovers just killed us," said Freedom head coach Jason Roeder, who saw his team fall to 4-6 and lose an opportunity at winning the city championship outright for a second straight year. "It's a terrible feeling right now. Everything is magnified when you play these guys. You turn the ball over and give them [Liberty] points and it's really tough to overcome."

Williams, who leads a class of nine returning players on offense, as well as five returning starters on defense next year for Liberty, was the best player on the field Saturday.

He caught six balls for 137 yards and a touchdown and had two picks and a defensive score on the afternoon.

His receiving numbers also broke single-season school records, as he set a new standard for catches (59) and yards (987).

"He's just an unbelievable player," Brown said. "He wasn't happy with how he played defensively last year against Freedom and then he goes out and gets two picks and a touchdown. He's our iron man."

The Pates will need to reinforce their steel and resolve in the offseason as they clearly fell short of expectations following an 8-3 season a year ago that saw them qualify for the district subregional tournament.

"We all have to get better and that starts with me," Roeder said. "It's going to take a renewed sense of urgency and commitment for us to get back to where we want to be."

"We have to put the work in. When you go 4-6, it's tough to pinpoint one thing that went wrong for us this season. There's a fine line between winning and losing and we need to find more ways to win."

champion Pope John Paul II at William Tennent High School in Warminster.

Abi-Dahe knows that playing in the Lehigh Valley Conference should have a benefit for his team moving into the state knockout stages.

"Playing in the LVC, we face teams with a lot of offensive firepower," he said. "In the 2A level across the state, a lot of teams are good defensively. Hopefully, we can show that we're good on both ends this week. I feel that we're peaking at the perfect time right now, but we have to take things match by match and just stay calm and prepare like we always do."

Wm. Penn ES student wins Celtic dance scholarship

Sabrina Bachman helps her granddaughter, Jolene Bachman, a dancer from the O'Grady Quinlin Academy of Irish Dance, prepare to receive a scholarship award from the Celtic Cultural Alliance during the recent Celtic Classic Festival. The William Penn ES student wrote an essay on Celtic dancing and her goals. The CCA presents four scholarships each year to local Celtic dancers and musicians, and the awards go toward expenses such as lessons and costumes, according to Jayne Ann Recker, executive director of the Bethlehem-based non-profit organization. Jolene's father, Roger Bachman said his family has Irish roots. He said Jolene has been dancing with the O'Grady Quinlin Academy for four years and performs regularly in dance competitions in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Washington, D.C. "It's a full-time thing," said Roger Bachman, who often accompanies his daughter on her trips.

Amended budget passes

LEHIGH COUNTY

By DANIEL MINGUEZ
Special to The Press

The Lehigh County Commissioners passed an amended version of the county executive's budget at their meeting Oct. 24.

The amendment directed the county executive to reduce county spending on personnel by $5 million, and turned a $6.5 million one-time tax credit into a reduction of the millage rate by a percentage that would decrease county revenue by $5 million. The remaining $1.5 million will remain as a tax credit.

Commissioners Vic Mazziotti, Scott Ott, Lisa Scheller, Michael Schware and Thomas Creighton III voted in favor of the amended budget.

Commissioners David Jones, Daniel McCarthy, Percy Dougherty and Brad Osborne opposed the amended budget.

The vote followed three hours of public input on the budget, which Osborne split into two segments, the general public and county employees. Comments from the public were unanimously in support of the amendment, lauding the commissioners for reducing taxes and spending.

Commissioner David Jones argues that for the first time everyone on the Board of Commissioners is voting to cut taxes, but admits there's no consensus on the methodology.

Comments from county employees advocated the merit of the services they provide and pleaded with the board to reject the cuts.

Schware argued the case for the amendment, saying, "What we do here tonight is going to set up whether there is a tax increase in 2014 and 2015. A budget doesn't get blown in one year and all of a sudden we show up and get a tax increase; it is the effect of several years of failing to control spending. The choice tonight is to continue what the administration proposed and see those tax hikes in 2014 and 2015, or we take a more responsible path, make a portion of those tax cuts permanent and at the same time cut $5 million that is going to be carried into 2014 and beyond."

Osborne argued against the amendment, saying, "This proposed amended budget passes up the opportunity to begin the process of defining what limited government looks like on a line by line program by program basis. It artificially distances the commissioners from the consequences of our decision and it sets up a dangerous precedent that two co-equal branches of government don't have to talk to each other."

The amended budget now returns to the county executive, who may make written changes or veto it entirely. Should either of those happen, it will return to the commissioners for a second vote which will require a majority plus one to overturn.

Groundhog Day For Abe Atiyeh

BETHLEHEM

By BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Instead of Bill Murray, who played a weatherman living the same day over and over again, it is now developer Abe Atiyeh's turn. In September, zoners and lawyers from all sides agreed to postpone his application for a 47-bed substance abuse facility at 2349 Linden St., the site of the vacant Moose & Bug Florist Shop. Differences between the application and how it was actually advertised presented the possibility that someone could later file a challenge. But on Oct. 18, when the case was presented to Bethlehem's Zoning Hearing Board again, the problem still existed.

"It's Groundhog Day," stated City Council Solicitor Chris Spadoni.

Just two nights earlier, zoners went through four-and-a-half hours of testimony on another Atiyeh request for a rehab center near Bethlehem Catholic HS, spurning an offer by Atiyeh attorney Mark Malkames to knock off early so everyone could see both a presidential and congressional debates scheduled that evening.

But this time, something far more important was going on. The Yankees were playing the Tigers.

Atiyeh's application was postponed, at everyone's request, until Nov. 29 at 6 p.m.

Resident questions Act 73

HELLERTOWN

By MARK RECCEK
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Hellertown resident Joe Delfoe is not satisfied with Act 73.

"What you have here is not the authority," Delfoe told borough council Oct. 15.

Delfoe wants to "sit down and get things settled."

Act 73 specifically prohibits any loans, grants or expenditures of an authority to be used for purposes outside the mission of the authority. Examples include expenditures unrelated to the infrastructure customers are paying for, as well as the transfer of monies to the incorporating municipality.

Hellertown solicitor Michael Corriere told council the statute, as he reads it, stipulates the borough water authority could provide a nonprofit service up to $1,000; however, the authority cannot merely disperse funds to an organization.

If the borough is unsatisfied with the statute, changes to the act would have to be made, borough manager Cathy Kichline said.

"It's unfortunate all the way around," she said.

Council Vice President

John Bate recommended the borough invite the water authority into any discussions regarding Act 73.

Councilman Tom Rieger suggested Kichline draft a letter explaining the reasons why the act does not benefit the borough.

Act 73 was signed into law by Gov. Tom Corbett June 27.

During the meeting, Delfoe also told council six veterans in the borough are attempting to reactivate the American Legion located on Main Street. He said the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion Ladies Auxiliary have installed a bar and volunteers are currently working on the second floor of the building.

Delfoe also lauded the borough ambulance squad for the services he received during a recent visit to the hospital.

"Some of the facilities we have in this borough are very good," Delfoe said.

He also told council he is able to modify the fountain in Detweiler Plaza for $4,000. Council members said they will discuss the matter during their next budget meeting.

Storm reflections

Nate Jastrzemski
Editorial assistant

While searching for a hot meal on the Southside Thursday afternoon, I ran into a buddy who said his power had been restored Tuesday. When I finally got my phone recharged, another friend sent me a text message stating he'd never lost power at all.

Tina Kowalski, owner of the Funhouse bar on Fourth Street, was trying to find a liquor store that was still open so she could restock. She also said several massive old pine trees had collapsed in her yard at home and she wasn't sure if her insurance would help pay for their removal.

Rumor had it Mayor John Callahan hadn't gotten his lights back on yet, either.

I later sat at Perkins and overheard Lehigh University students complaining they were sick of eating chips and quietly demanding – muttering to themselves, really – that the restaurant staff work faster.

One of their professors, vocal community activist Stephen Antalics sat at a nearby table. He said his own Southside home was quite chilly but he was sleeping well enough under a big blanket. He chatted with former city economic development head Tony Hanna.

Singly and in small groups, people wandered from one darkened storefront to another, searching for a functioning ATM, or a wireless hotspot or a pack of cigarettes.

At home on the East side, all was quiet. Day and night people walked their dogs to nothing but the distant chorus of chainsaws working through fallen trees.

Some phone lines to Hellertown had opened up, and I finally talked with my mom. She said they'd been using a generator to heat their water, but they were going to a nearby Subway for dinner just to get out of the house.

Back at my place, traffic was rare until neighbors became weary of the discomfort and seemed to decide en masse to pack up and find someplace else to stay.

Sometime that night the electricity returned, and within hours televisions and conversation and laughter were heard for the first time in days.

A storm too many words describe

By NATE JASTRZEMSKI
njastrzemski@tponline.com

Reporters just annoy the hell out of me.

I suppose it's not their fault – maybe their editors – but this desperate need for the media at-large to label things – objects, people, events – with brand-worthy monikers just to get people countrywide repeating the same unimaginative phrase smacks of laziness and worse, neediness.

It's like some boredom-induced newsroom game. The producers shout, "Meme that word!" and their employees scurry about trying to affix a "super" or a "Franken-" or a "-gate" to the subject. Or with the stitching of people's names together. What is that? When did it become policy of the news profession to cast aside style and integrity in order to get people to say "Branjalina" or "Finger" in all seriousness?

Sandy was a hurricane. I know we're unaccustomed to them in this region, but I think those who are would agree there was nothing "super" about it. It was a big storm. Calling it "super" or "Franken-" does nothing but suck up column inches or, in the case of the Internet, bandwidth.

Why are we pelted with superlatives?

I just sat in a dark, cold apartment for four days, reading by candlelight, and, despite my many years as a journalist, didn't manage to come up with anything more buzzword-y than, "This sucks."

In that, I think I speak for much of the East Coast. Calling Sandy a "Frankenstorm" makes it sound like some cyclopean abomination conjured by a mad cult. Well, if it was, better luck next time, fellas.

The simple fact is attempts to label events today, whether ludicrous, despicable or tragic, with tacky sound-bitable T-shirt expressions does a disservice to those of us with a vocabulary and wherewithal to use it.

And it does nothing to help those who actually suffered and now find themselves trapped in the wake of a media-fueled juvenile spectacle.

For the sake of my own sanity and the already-atrophied respect of the people force-fed these trite little news-quips, please; engage your brains.

* Fred Astaire and Ginger Rodgers. What? They were 10 pictures together. How lurid! Oh, how tongues would wag today!

The wind sounded like a train

My computer is located on the second floor of my

Cape Cod house and I had been on my computer Monday evening and I could feel my computer desk shake. WOW! That was interesting. At first, I thought it was my imagination.

Around 9:15, I saw a blue flash coming from a nearby power transformer. My first thought was that it was lightning; then I realized it was the transformer blowing out, and we lost power.

Even while lying in bed that evening, I could feel my bed shake every now and then. As I lay there, my thoughts turned to what people have said who survived living through a tornado. They say it sounds like a train. Living on a corner property, I could hear the continuous sound of the wind building up and it did sound similar to a train.

I was just waiting and waiting. Then a gust of the most powerful winds I ever heard came blowing past my house, and that was a different sound. You knew it was there. It was scary, to say the least and I was hoping my new roof would withstand the 70-to-80-mile-an-hour winds.

I huddled in my bed with my dog next to me and fell off to sleep.

I woke up between 2 and 2:30 a.m. Tuesday to check things out. I looked out my backdoor window and saw my vinyl fence and thought, "Oh my goodness! My fence!"

My first thought was that there is nothing I am going to do now with it at the height of the storm to fix it. My second thought was that I will have to take my dog out on a leash because I did not want her escaping through the gaping

Traffic approaching the intersection at Easton Avenue and Jennings Street, where the signal was not operating due to power outages, respected the rules of the road by yielding to one another to keep things moving.

I woke up between 2 and 2:30 a.m. Tuesday to check things out. I looked out my backdoor window and saw my vinyl fence and thought, "Oh my goodness! My fence!"

holes on either side of the fence.

Late Tuesday morning, I decided to venture out in the rain to figure out if I could put this vinyl fence back together. I was amazed at how just the slats came out, laid down like dominos in a row, and the fence itself still stood. To my credit, I finally put the fence back together, then called the company that installed the fence to ask them to please come out and check to see if I did it right. They were very obliging and promised to come out by the end of the week.

I have portable phones. Without electricity, the portable phones don't work. I had a brainstorm Tuesday afternoon when I found my old landline phone that I thought about getting rid of but I'm glad I didn't. When I plugged the old phone into the wall jack, I had outside communication.

I went to my brother's house to pick up a cooler and ice and charge my cell phone because he had power. On the drive over it was light, but on the way home it grew darker and darker. That was the scariest drive home ever across town. You think because you grew up in this city, you know the city. But it's a totally different, disorienting experience when you drive through a familiar city in complete darkness. By law you are supposed to treat a non-working stop light like a stop sign. When you can't even see the stop lights, that's sometimes hard to do until it's too late. Landmarks you are familiar with when lit are no longer visible and you try to get your bearings. It was a long, scary 15-minute ride home on main roads like Broad Street.

It got colder and colder in my house as the day wore on. I felt a flicker of hope Tuesday evening when I saw lights on two or three blocks down the street from where I live. I kept a watchful eye out for PPL trucks. Nothing.

I ventured out to the Weis Market on Crawford Drive Wednesday morning to pick up two bags of free ice courtesy of PPL. I didn't need water because we already had water. Other than checking out my messages on my cell phone now and then and becoming hopeful when I saw a voice-mail come in from PPL, Wednesday was another boring, cold 24 hours hoping for PPL to restore power.

The only other damage was a piece of corner siding that came off, and of course I have a call in to my roofer to have that fixed, and I lost two small limbs to my front yard tree.

I don't have cable, but I wasn't concerned about that. My first priority was to have power so I can have heat.

I have a dog and three cats (by the way, one is named "Sandy"). When petting the cats, their fur was so cold I would pet them constantly trying to warm them up. I even tried to encourage them to come under the covers but they are cats and they do things their way. My dog has a sweater so she wore that from day one of the storm. We huddled together to keep each other warm. I certainly didn't mind that my dog was taking up my whole bed. She kept me warm. I also put an afghan on her and she didn't budge the whole night.

Thursday, when I finally got power back on at 4:45 p.m., it was 54 degrees in my house.

Meghan Lavery

Notre Dame HS

Grade: 12

Family members: My parents are Deborah and James Lavery.

Favorite subject: Math has always been a favorite subject of mine. It might sound clichéd, but there is something intriguing about searching for the unknown, which is a commonplace feature of mathematics.

Activities: I am a four-year member of the varsity cheerleading squad. I am the ND cheering captain, as well as a member of Key Club, FBLA, stage crew and Scholastic Scrimmage. I am the treasurer of the ND chapter of National Honor Society. I'm a member of the Bethlehem Township Blue Sharks swim team and I was the sophomore class president and the executive board historian of Student Council.

Next steps: I hope to attend the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania next fall as a business major.

Career goals: I plan on opening a successful music venue in addition to managing widely popular bands.

Heroes: Kimberly Lynn Gilow, a late classmate of mine, has left an indelible mark on me. The word hero barely scratches the surface of what Kimmy means to me. She was an inspiration to all of us, battling and overcoming her cancer so valiantly. Though her untimely death due to her subsequent illness was tragic, her life taught me to appreciate everything that I have and to never give up.

Hobbies: I am a frequenter of concerts. Name a band and I have probably seen them live. Shopping for clothes and shoes is another favorite pastime of mine.

Current job(s): I am currently a lifeguard at the Bethlehem Township Community Center. Besides working at both the indoor and outdoor pools, I give swimming lessons year round.

Volunteer/community work: I have participated in the NDHS mini-THON for three years, standing for 24 hours to raise money for pediatric cancer research. I also am a student coach for the Little Crusaders cheerleading squad. I have been a CCD aide for several years and I have also volunteered my time at Arts Quest.

Likes: I have a strong interest in music, especially that of the Killers, Kim's Comeback, Coldplay and Patent Pending. I am an avid New York Jets fan. I enjoy spending time with people who make me laugh and share in my zest for life.

Dislikes: Lack of motivation is a major sore point for me. I am naturally a very driven person, so it's hard for me to understand how someone can be unmotivated. I also hate spiders.

Greatest accomplishment (so far): My greatest accomplishment so far has been managing the popular local band, Kim's Comeback. I help to promote the band, book shows and sell merchandise. The band has played with several internationally acclaimed acts.

Advice for peers: Don't let anyone decide your dream for you. Help is one thing, but completely overriding your hopes is not okay. Be who you are no matter what anyone might say.

Time capsule placed

The Broughal MS community wrote some more school history recently as BASD Superintendent Dr. Joseph Roy and School Board President Michael Faccinnetto joined Broughal's Principal Ed Docalovich in commemorating the installation of the new school's time capsule in the Broughal lobby.

The Broughal Rockets marching band and the school cheerleaders provided a fanfare for fellow students, parents and BASD officials as anticipation of the time capsule placement built.

"We're now a part of the history of Broughal and the City of Bethlehem," said Roy.

As Docalovich displayed the time capsule that had been removed from the now-raised original Broughal building, he informed those present that its contents had been installed in the new capsule and that copies had been made and would be displayed in the school along with the original copper time capsule.

In addition to the original contents, the newer and larger time capsule contains letters to the future, CDs, pictures, newspaper articles, and even a cellular phone.

Former Broughal principal Joe Petraglia (1980-1993) and current and longtime Broughal secretary Mary Jane Spallone.

Broughal MS Principal Ed Docalovich displays the time capsule from the original Broughal building, while the new time capsule on the table to his left awaits installation. The old capsule will be placed on display at the school.

Docalovich said students and teachers decided upon the contents and their placement in the capsule was videotaped.

Roy and Docalovich hefted the new capsule and deposited it in a recessed section of the school lobby wall. Maintenance and custodial staff placed the original 1915 Broughal cornerstone over the opening, sealing the artifacts away for possibly another 50, 75 or 100 years until future public education officials might reveal its contents to a distant generation of students and Bethlehem area residents.

The sound of my furnace popping on was the best thing I heard in four days. My animals scattered to lie in front of the heat ducts to get warm again.

My neighbor told me he has lived here for 20 years and his lights had flickered now and then but he had never lost power. There's always a first time for everything.

All in all, we were lucky here in Bethlehem. We were a bit inconvenienced without our electronic gadgets, and our normal routines were disrupted somewhat. We were a bit cold and missed a few hot meals. But as a baby boomer whose parents survived worse in their day, we've shown that when it comes down to the basics, we can persevere.

Sure, you still have a few who are out for themselves no matter what, but they're the minority. While waiting in a long line for hot coffee at a store that had power, I was able to strike up pleasant conversations with plenty of strangers.

It's nice to know you can still find humanity in human beings ... even in difficult times.

Outdoor seating rejected

HANOVER TOWNSHIP

By BERNIE O'HARE

Special to the Bethlehem Press

Following a three-hour hearing Oct. 25, Hanover Township's Zoning Hearing Board has denied Chef Joseph Jurkivo's request to allow seasonal outdoor seating at That's Amore, a gateway to Hanover Township located on Schoenersville Road. Two ZHB members, Chairman Paul Balla and Joseph Bednarik, rejected Jurkivo's argument that outdoor seating on an adjoining lot was a permissible accessory use. A third ZHB member, Joan Rosenthal, dissented.

In zoning, an accessory use is one that is customarily incidental and accessory to the principal use, such as a shed at a residence.

Joseph Jurkivo is certainly familiar with That's Amore. He started working there as a busboy at age 15, when it was known as Pane e Vino. He eventually became the chef at Bethlehem's popular Mama Nina. Early this year, he went into business for himself. But he soon learned that he has lots of competition from local area restaurants that offer outdoor seating. That includes nearby P.J. Whelihan's, Prime Steak House, Gregory's and even Wegmans.

Under questioning from his attorney, Mickey Thompson, Jurkivo testified that he spent $115,000 in improvements at the restaurant, including an adjoining lot at which he proposed seasonal outdoor seating for dinner. The area includes a decorative gazebo, bocce ball pit, fountain and landscaping. There would be no music, no alcohol sales, no big-screen TV, and only low-wattage lighting, he said.

But Township attorney Leo DeVito argued that Jurkivo's zoning appeal is nothing more than "a veiled attempt to expand the size of this property by 50 percent in an area that is already deficient in parking."

Jurkivo acknowledged under cross-examination that he would be adding 25-30 diners to the 80 maximum that could be seated indoors. Thompson countered, "We're allowed as a constitutional right to expand a business ... All he wants to do is compete."

DeVito also argued that the outdoor seating is a principal, as opposed to an accessory, use. Under Hanover's zoning ordinance, an accessory use is permitted on an adjoining lot under common ownership. But Thompson argued that outdoor seating, which requires a restaurant, is necessarily an accessory use. He also hinted that the zoning ordinance, which makes no specific provision for outdoor dining, is a "tad exclusionary."

Where would these outdoor diners park? While the arguments concerning principal and accessory use dominated the hearing, the subplot was focused on a business expansion in an area that is already crowded.

Jurkivo showed zoners a lease for 10 parking spots at a small strip mall on the south side of his restaurant. Testimony from both Jurkivo and engineer David Harte established that this lot is never full. A bike shop, dry cleaner, barber and pizza shop usually have customers that come and leave rather quickly.

ZHB solicitor Ted Lewis questioned whether the owner of the strip mall had an obligation to seek a variance for a reduction in parking. DeVito argued that he did, while attorney Thompson noted that parking at a strip mall is far safer than anywhere else in that proximity. Harte explained that Jurkivo could add about six parking spaces on the adjoining lot, but doing so would cause him to lose six spaces on the main lot.

Although some members of the public came and asked questions, none stuck around for the final decision.

Following the adverse ruling, a grim Jurkivo vowed to appeal. DeVito declined comment.

For 6th year, a no-tax-hike budget

By BERNIE O'HARE

Special to the Bethlehem Press

Although details are still under wraps, Hanover Township Manager Jay Finnigan is well on his way to producing a no-tax increase budget for 2013. He made this announcement following a supervisors' meeting Oct. 23. If the supervisors adopt Finnigan's spending plan, it will be the township's sixth straight year without a tax hike. Supervisors will review it in more detail at their Nov. 13 meeting.

"I didn't get a raise?"

joked veteran Supervisor Steve Salvesen.

"No," Finnigan somberly replied.

In addition to the good news about next year's budget, the supervisors approved a reduction in next year's residential waste and recycling fees. A typical single family residence will see an annual bill next year of $225, down from $245. Multi-family dwellings will also see their garbage bills go down between $20 and 25 from what is being paid this year.

This lower fee is the result of a five-year garbage hauling contract with Raritan Valley Disposal, approved earlier this year.

"We're certainly headed in the right direction, especially during these tough economic times," said Supervisors' Chair John Diacogiannis, thanking Finnigan for his work on the budget.

In other business, supervisors unanimously approved two new developments.

Virginia-based Patient First, a primary and urgent care facility, received authorization for an 8,000 square foot, one-story building at the busy intersection of Schoenersville and Jacksonville roads. It plans to open this facility next summer.

Supervisors signed off on the first phase of Traditions of America at Bridle Path. This community, aimed at active adults aged 55 and older, will include 204 homes on a 68-acre lot. It is located along Bridle Path Road, next to the former St. Frances Academy.

Supervisors will meet again Nov. 13, 7 p.m., at the municipal building, located at 3630 Jacksonville Road.

Revealing 'Treasures'

24 artists to show, discuss work at six area studios

By EMILY THIEL
Special to The Press

The Lehigh Valley has much to offer art lovers as the 18th annual "Hidden Treasures Artisans Studio Tour" will prove once again when it returns, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Nov. 10 and 11.

The "Hidden Treasures Tour" presents the richness of local talent represented in handcrafted items.

"Hidden Treasures" is a self-guided tour of six area art studios featuring 24 artists demonstrating their processes.

The first studio is the residence of artist David Stehly, 4500 Hanoverville Road, Bethlehem. Stehly's studio of handcrafted wooden walking sticks, canes and depictions of animal life is in his home's basement.

Stehly has carved more than 2,100 walking sticks, many of which have received international awards, blue ribbons and recognition. Stehly often carves snakes slithering around the walking stick or cane, and his focus on detail is remarkable. Stehly works mostly with fruit woods such as pear, apple and tulip poplar. Stehly is a self-taught artist when it comes to woodcarving and has been at the craft for 35 years. He teaches the art to others, holding sessions at his home studio.

Also at the first studio are artists Bill Fisher, hand-tooled leather; Kathleen Hooper-Milositz, decorative pottery; Jim Fazio, wood turnings; and Kisha Stehly, glass window panels.

Fisher's been crafting hand-tooled leather for 30 years. The process of the leather-making can take up to 22 hours for one piece.

"[Hand tooling leather] is an age-old art. I just enjoy doing it," says Fisher, who's working with a 4-H group interested in learning how to craft leather.

Hooper-Milositz's pieces of pottery are functional for use around the home. She creates pottery, often with nature-themed drawings, on high-fired porcelain clay.

Hooper-Milositz enjoys being involved with other artists on the "Hidden Treasures Tour," saying, "We enjoy getting together and sharing what is going on with our work."

The second studio, 3134

Prescott Road, Bethlehem, presents artists Tom Buchner, wood-turned hollow forms and bowls; Alice Gillespie, hand-knitting and weaving; Kim Monteverde, wheel-thrown functional pottery; and Patricia Frankenfield, jewelry in silver and semi-precious stones.

Monteverde's ceramic pottery often represents items of nature molded from leaves found outside.

"I like to explore other forms of pottery," Monteverde says.

Horsehair pieces are burnished and fired at 1,500 degrees fahrenheit. Designs are created directly from horsehair, leaves and other materials found in nature. The process is quick, as the design must be applied at just the right temperature in order to have the effect pres-

DeSales professor one-man 'Gospel' to benefit water safety, Saucon funds

By PAUL WILLISTEIN
Focus Editor

You probably have read the Bible.

And you've probably had the Bible, or passages of the Bible, read to you.

You probably have not experienced an entire book of the Bible performed as a one-man show.

Wayne Turney, a professor of theater in his eighth year in DeSales University's Performing and Fine Arts Department, presents "The Gospel According to Saint Mark," 7:30 p.m. Nov. 10, Christ Lutheran Church of Lower Saucon, 2190 S. Easton Road, Lower Saucon Township.

Proceeds benefit the Hellertown Area Ministerium Crisis Fund, a food bank and fund supported by area churches, and the 100 Well Challenge, a initiative of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America to provide clean water to the needy in the United States and internationally.

Turney also presents "The Gospel According to Saint, Mark," 8 p.m. Nov. 17 and 2 p.m. Nov. 18, Good Shepherd Church, 1634 Hilltown Pike, Hilltown, Bucks County, and, soon after, at a South Carolina venue.

Turney, with whom Lehigh Valley theatergoers are familiar for his hilarious scene-stealing performances at The Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival and for his directing of DeSales Act 1 shows (he's directing his adaptation of "A Tale of Two Cities" in February), has presented "The Gospel According to Saint Mark" for 25 years around the United States.

"It is what it says it is," Turney says of his one-man show. "It's the King James Version of the Gospel According to Saint Mark."

"A lot of times when we read the Bible, we'll read it in spurts, short snippets. We rarely read a whole book at a sitting. Mark is the shortest of the gospels. It only takes two hours to go through the whole thing."

Turney's one-man show is presented with an intermission.

"When you do, you start hearing the connections, the through-lines, the context of the whole story. It's a remarkable experience."

"This particular gospel is an oral document, which is to say it's not a beautiful literary thing like the Gospel of Luke, which is polished."

Turney first performed "The Gospel According to Saint Mark" 25 years ago in Ohio. His wife, The Rev. Harper Turney, pastor at Good Shepherd Church,

"Theologically, she helped me understand it. She was particularly helpful in bringing the text alive."

That first performance was born of necessity, Turney recalls.

William Shatner, "Shatner's World," 7 p.m. Nov. 11, State Theatre for the Arts, Easton

By MEGHAN LAVERNE
Special to The Press

Great news for "Star Trek" fans and comedy lovers in the Lehigh Valley area: William Shatner beams into the State Theatre for the Arts, 453 Northampton St., 453 Northampton St., Easton, 7 p.m. Nov. 11, to perform his one-man show, "Shatner's World."

In a recent telephone interview, Shatner says his show "grew from sitting around doing interviews."

In his 90-minute set, the audience will hear tales from behind the camera, and in front of it, as Shatner shares experiences from his 60-plus years in the entertainment business. He will also tell tales from his personal life, from childhood through adulthood.

The show include a music performance, with Shatner singing a song from his album, "Seeking Major Tom."

Shatner was approached by producers after performing a one-night only show in New York, asking if he could take his routine on the road. He agreed, and says he has been "constantly polishing" his material since.

At age 81, Shatner still loves to perform and has great passion for his new project. He says, "The joy of the laughter and applause is great payment."

There is something only a stage performance can give with a live audience reaction to fuel the material and energy on stage. With the live performance, Shatner says he is "able to communicate to the audience some essence and emotional feeling."

For "Trekkies" and others who attend, Shatner says he's sure they will "laugh and cry and nod your head in agreement. Everyone is in for a joyful and interesting time."

Good hearts make the difference

Last Friday was one of those days when my heart was overflowing with joy and thanksgiving. I didn't think I could get any happier.

But then I opened my email and rejoiced even more. There was a surprise email from my old friend Rob.

How appropriate that his email arrived on Make A Difference Day. Rob has always made a difference for so many people, especially my late husband, Andy.

After Andy died, I wanted his ham radio equipment to go where Andy would want it. So I gave it to two fellows who made a difference for Andy, both Rob and my young friend, Dylan.

Dylan was just about to go in the service. He couldn't take the radio with him. "Don't worry. I'll keep it in my house and save it for him," Rob promised.

He was writing to let me know he kept his ten-year ago promise. He tried to give the radio to Dylan five years ago when he was home on leave but that didn't work. Last week, Rob tracked Dylan down and delivered the set.

I know my husband is looking down smiling at the two of them.

Let me tell you just some of the ways Dylan and Rob made a difference for Andy.

With two strokes and his right side paralyzed, Andy couldn't do photography or some of his former hobbies. He thought he might be interested in ham radio. But with only use of his left arm, he wasn't sure he could pass the tests for his license.

Rob often came to our house to help and encourage Andy. I was always impressed with how Rob gave my husband confidence and made him feel good about himself. In fact, no matter what happened, Rob could always be counted on to be there.

But here's the thing that made that a bit more remarkable. Rob was losing his sight and couldn't drive. To get anywhere, he had to take a bus and walk long distances. Plus, he had plenty of his own serious health problems.

That would make a lesser man think of himself instead of getting out there to help others. Rob doesn't waste his energy pitying himself. Instead, he is always looking to see what he can do to help someone else.

My young friend Dylan also helped in so many ways to make a difference in my husband's life. As a high school student he often walked to see Andy, doing whatever my husband needed, no matter how time consuming.

He was there for me, too. When Andy could no longer help decorate the Christmas tree, getting it up became a hassle for me.

Dylan helped me string lights, then cheerfully did it all over again when Andy decided he wanted it done differently. When life gets tough, those who are struggling can often feel alone. But what I found is that there are plenty of good hearts like Dylan and Rob who go out of their way to make a difference.

WARMEST REGARDS

As everyone knows by now, last Friday was National Make A Difference Day. People were encouraged to get involved by doing a good deed or helping someone in need.

Luckily, there are plenty of good people who don't wait for Make A Difference Day. They do it all year.

You don't have to reach a certain age before you can make a difference. Nor do you have to spend a lot of money.

One young girl in middle school wanted to help the homeless. So she pulled the bedding off her own bed then went around collecting blankets in her neighborhood.

When she had a birthday, she asked friends to bring something to donate to the homeless instead of buying her gifts.

This youngster isn't rich but she sure is rich in spirit.

I did a story last week about another sixth grade boy who wiped out his savings to buy needed textbooks for his science class. Because there was a shortage of books and there was no money left in the school budget, the class was doubling up to read the material and no one could take the books home.

When Christopher told his mother he wanted to wipe out his bank account so he could buy the books for his class, she said no.

"You told me if I saved my money in the bank I could use it to do whatever I want with it," he retorted. "I want to use it for the books."

He was saving for a particular new video game he wanted. But he used the money instead for the books.

His parents warned him they wouldn't buy the game for him. "We bring him up to know that if he wants something, even school supplies, he has to work for it. We don't give him money," said his mother.

She was proud of her son when his school presented him with its Make A Difference Award.

Most people don't get awards for good deeds. But they do have the satisfaction of knowing they are helping to make the world a better place.

There is so much we can each do for others. It doesn't have to be something grand. But simple acts of kindness can mean so much to those who need a bit of help.

Hats off to all those like Rob and Dylan who do, indeed, try to make a difference.

ent in the piece.

"I hand-pick the leaves. They must have very prominent veins" to show up on the pottery, the artist explains.

The third studio, 526 Tenth Avenue, Bethlehem, features artists Barbara Kozero, textured mixed media mosaics and sculpture; Sue Shelly, weavings; Dale Inlander, felted purses knitted with woolen yarns; and Carlene Morrow, kiln-formed glass, tile creations and mosaics.

The fourth studio, 2329 Tilghman St., Allentown, features artists Jon Roy-lance, decorative Raku pottery; Johanna Forte, floral tapestry bags; and Gloria Leight, beaded jewelry with gemstones and Egyptian motifs.

Leight has travelled to Egypt for pieces to craft into jewelry with her bead-weaving.

"I got addicted when I lived in Arizona," Leight says. "I've been doing it over 20 years. I can't stop."

Leight's beadwork is created using traditional style stitches. The delicate process can take two weeks to create a set of earrings or a necklace. The bead-weaved pieces are very delicate, being made from seed beads, gemstone, metallic accents and thread.

The fifth studio, 6001 Woodview Lane, Zionsville, features artists Roy and Krisann Bachert, functional and hand-thrown pottery; Fran Kohlbrenner, handcrafted jewelry; Ken and Sue Berkenstock, stained glass and mosaics; and Dennis Wildnauer, cornerstone forge hand-hammered aluminum giftware and jewelry.

The sixth studio, Tipton Glass Works, 129 N. Cherry St., Tipton, features artists Daniel Gaumer, functional and sculptural blown glass; Barbara Tiberio, hand-painted silk; Svetlana

Howell, sterling silver jewelry inspired by nature and Asian themes; and Richard Summons, bronze sculpture, bonded metals and stone and ceramic tiles.

Every studio offers free admission, refreshments, demonstrations on creating the art, pieces by the artists for sale and opportunities to ask questions of the artists.

"It's great to be surrounded with artists from our area," says Monteverde of "The Hidden Treasures Tour."

SPOTLIGHT

"I lost my job. My television show was cancelled."

Starting in 1982, for nine years, Turney wrote and starred in the children's show, "Hickory Hideout," for which he received an Emmy. The television show was produced in Cleveland by NBC Productions and televised nationally.

"I couldn't write the check I wanted to, so off we went," says of his first "Saint Mark" performance, a benefit for an Episcopal church in Ohio.

Turney most recently performed his one-man show in April at Connelly Chapel, DeSales University.

"It's really an ecumenical thing ... because we all believe in the gospel," he says of the show.

Turney was inspired to perform "Saint Mark" after seeing British actor Alec McCowen perform it in a touring production booked for one week at Cleveland Play House, where Turney was a member of the acting company.

"He [McCowen] did it in a British suit and was very reserved," Turney remembers and adds that his performance is "a somewhat more lively version." Turney performs in what he describes as early second century Biblical garb of robes and sandals.

"I thought, 'Well, I know the story. I'll learn the words.' It turned out to be a much bigger task. It took me 10 weeks of eight-hour days just to memorize it."

Turney talks about the contest of "The Gospel According to St. Mark":

"It's the nature of the way this gospel was created. The historical Mark was John Mark, a disciple of Peter. I have this image that after Peter's martyrdom, Mark was asked to tell Peter's story and so he did.

"But he didn't write it down. He told people. According to Eusebius [Bishop of Caesarea in Palestine circa 275-339], who wrote the first history of the English church, John Mark was urged to write down his gospel. He wrote down what he was saying. He wasn't learned. He gallops along."

"I have yet to get every single word perfect," Turney chuckles. "So, if somebody comes and follows along, I've always missed something. But that's not the point.

"It's always remarkable," he marvels of performing the work. "The more I work with that text, the more I realize there is so much more there than can be had in one sitting."

"When you first hear about it, 'You think: What's that? This guy's doing the gospel?' It's difficult to describe."

"There's a lot of obvious passion. But there's a lot of humor in it. I think the incarnation is so clear — the reality of the humanness of Jesus."

"Harper [Turney's wife] gave me some direction. 'Cause how do you play God as an actor? What do you do? Early in Chapter 3, Mark says that 'Jesus look about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts.' I can do anger. I can do grief. Oh, Jesus became human."

Tickets: "The Gospel According to Saint Mark," Christ Lutheran Church of Lower Saucon, 484-898-0159, and Good Shepherd Church, 215-822-3930

Sea salt doesn't reduce sodium in diet

Q. I have high blood pressure and I'm trying to cut down on the sodium in my diet. Should I switch from regular table salt to sea salt?

Sea salt is made from evaporating sea water. Table salt comes from underground mines.

Sea salt sounds healthier doesn't it? It evokes images of crashing surf, tanned bodies, and marlin jumping out of the water.

Sea salt and table salt contain the same amount of sodium chloride. Switching won't help you with your high blood pressure. But you're on the right track.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture advises people with high blood pressure to reduce their

HEALTHY GEEZER

By Fred Cicetti
fred@healthygeezer.com

daily sodium intake to 1,500 mg per day.

The recommendation for adults who do not have high blood pressure is 2,300 mg per day, which is about the amount of sodium in a teaspoon of table salt.

However, the American Heart Association says the daily intake of sodium should be limited to less than 1,500 mg a day for adults.

About nine out of 10 Americans consume too much sodium. Americans on average consume 3,436 mg sodium daily.

High-sodium diets are linked to increased blood pressure and a greater risk for heart disease and stroke. Reducing the amount of sodium you consume can help lower blood pressure or prevent it from developing. Less sodium also makes blood-pressure medications more efficient.

Table salt (sodium chloride) is not the only problem. The main sources of sodium in the average U.S. diet are:

- 5 percent added while cooking;
- 6 percent added while eating;
- 12 percent from natural sources; and
- 77 percent from processed foods.

Focusing on prepared and packaged foods is the most effective way to cut down on sodium. When you buy these foods, read the "Nutritional Facts" panel for the amount of sodium. Some products also include sodium terms.

Here's what these terms mean:

Sodium-free: less than 5 mg per serving;

Very low-sodium: 35 mg or less per serving;

Low-sodium: 140 mg or less per serving;

Reduced sodium: 25 percent less sodium than usual;

Lite or light in sodium: 50 percent less sodium than the regular version; and

Unsalted, no salt added or without added salt: contains only the sodium that's a natural part of the food.

Most of the body's sodium is in blood and other fluids. Sodium helps keep fluids in a normal balance and helps maintain normal nerve and muscle function.

The body gets sodium through eating and drinking, and loses it by sweating and urinating. Healthy kidneys maintain a consistent level of sodium in the body by adjusting the amount excreted in the urine.

Seniors have to be especially careful about sodium consumption because their bodies can't handle it as well as they did when they were younger. Here are some reasons:

Kidneys may not work as well as they did.

As we age, we are not as sensitive to thirst and may not drink fluids when we need them.

About 45 percent of body weight is fluid in healthy older people, compared with 60 percent in younger people. Even a slight loss of fluid and sodium in a senior can cause health problems.

Some older people have physical problems that prevent them from getting something to drink.

Rutgers jazz group to perform in Arts at St. John's series

By JERRY DUCKETT
Special to The Press

The Scarlet Knights Jazz Trombones, one of the elite groups in the Rutgers University Chamber Jazz Ensemble Program, performs 7:30 p.m. Nov. 9, St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, 37 S. Fifth St. Allentown.

The number of participants in the group varies each year. In the performance, hosted by the Rutgers' Club of the Lehigh Valley as part of The Arts at St. John's concert series, there will be a rhythm section with no fewer than five trombonists.

The concert is directed by Grammy-nominated trombonist Conrad Herwig, jazz professor at Rutgers. Included in the ensemble is graduate student, Adam Machaskee, first-place winner of the JJ Johnson Jazz Soloist Competition in 2011. The award identifies the world's most accomplished jazz trombonist under the age of 25.

Members of the ensemble, part of the Mason Gross' School of the Arts Jazz Program at Rutgers, won the Kai Winding Jazz Trombone Ensemble Competition at the International Trombone Festival.

The Scarlet Knights Jazz Trombones has shared the stage with Paquito D'Rivera and other top-notch musicians for several years at the Blue Note jazz club, New York City. The students have performed with the likes of Eddie Palmieri and Frank Sinatra, Jr. Jazz performance students train with faculty who perform internationally and use those connections to enhance opportunities for Mason Gross School of the Arts' music students.

Herwig, an alumnus of North Texas State University, where he performed in their No. 1 lab band, The One O'Clock Jazz Lab Band, was voted No. 1 jazz trombonist in 1998 - '99 and 2002 in the Downbeat magazine Critics Poll and nominated for trombonist of the year in 2007 and 2008 by the Jazz Journalist's Association.

Herwig, who lives in Somerset, N.J., spends most of his time in New York City, playing for top jazz musicians.

Herwig moved around a lot, since his father was in the military. "My family ended up in Hawaii and I attended the Punahou School in Honolulu," Herwig says.

"I played first chair trombone in the Hawaii Youth Symphony, and, believe it or not, President Barak Obama sang in the choir. I am now 53, and he is 51. Every winter we would perform Handel's 'Messiah' for our winter concert.

"I guess that makes me one of a small number of people to have actually performed in concert with the President.

"I began my professional career with Clark Terry, who had a large and a small band, but I would bounce around with many of the road bands, including Bob Crosby, Ted Weems, Les and Larry Elgart and Red Garland. It was while sitting in with Red that Clark [Terry] asked me to go on tour. That was in 1981. Terry is 92 and I still play with him once in a while."

Herwig has also played with Buddy Rich, Toshiko Kibosh, Mario Baize's Afro-Cuban Jazz Orchestra, Macchiato, Eddie Palmeri and Tito Puente. His own groups have included Randy and Mike Brecker, Dave Liebman, Stefon Harris, Bill Charlap and Rufus Reid.

"One of my greatest experiences," says Herwig, "was playing in Frank Sinatra's show band for 11 years, beginning in 1986 and until he began to slow down just prior to his passing in 1998. One of the biggest concerts was the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty and at the same time his [Sinatra's] Diamond Jubilee."

Herwig released his 22nd CD, "A Voice Through the Door" in September on Criss Cross Records. In April, he released "The Tip of the Sword" on his own label, Rad Jazz Music. Last year, he released "The Latin Side of Herbie Hancock" on Half Note Records, recorded live at the Blue Note.

The Scarlet Knights Jazz Trombones is expected soon to release its first recording, an as yet untitled Christmas CD.

Third quarter housing sales continue positive LV trends

According to The Lehigh Valley Association of Realtors (LVAR), its third quarter report demonstrates a continuation of positive developments in the housing market that have been evident over the past year.

The LVAR quarterly report shows a 19 percent increase in closed sales and a 16.7 percent decrease in inventory when compared to figures from the same time in 2011.

In addition to a near 20 percent rise in closed sales, the 2012 third quarter report cites a 4.8 percent increase in new listings and a 30.8 percent increase in pending sales compared to the same time last year.

The third quarter housing affordability index reached 197, up 5.9 percent from 2011's third quarter.

The year-to-date housing affordability index reached 202, which is 6.3 percent higher than the 2011 year-to-date figure.

This indicator gauges housing affordability for the region with a higher number indicating greater affordability. An index of 120 means the median household income is 120 percent of what is necessary to qualify for the median-priced home under prevailing interest rates. A higher number means greater affordability. The data was compiled based on household income and interest rates from hsh.com and huduser.org.

"The continual rise in the housing affordability index coupled with consistent median sales prices is giving first-time buyers a great opportunity to explore homeownership," says Ryan Conrad, CEO of LVAR.

The average number of days a home spends on the market prior to being sold has dropped a drastic 16.9 percent since third quarter last year.

The 2012 year-to-date figure for time spent on the market is also 7.7 percent lower than 2011 year-to-date figure.

"The third quarter decrease in market time extends a trend we have seen throughout the year," says Conrad.

Phoebe names director of dementia care services

Phoebe Ministries has appointed Kelly O'Shea Carney, Ph.D., CMC, as Executive Director of Phoebe's growing memory support and dementia care service.

Dr. Carney's hiring coincides with the anticipated expansion of dementia services at Phoebe Ministries and the implementation of the forthcoming Dementia Care Center of Excellence.

Phoebe, a leader in dementia care and education, already comprises three (Bridgeways - Allentown, Legacy Place - Allentown, and The Cottage - Richland) of only seven dementia facilities in Pennsylvania recognized by The Alzheimer's Foundation of America for the Excellence in Care Program of Distinction.

The new Dementia Care Center of Excellence is expected to create a well-coordinated network of services, programs, and support for Phoebe residents, caregivers, family members and the community.

"The new Dementia Care Center of Excellence will integrate care so that those affected by Alzheimer's disease and associated dementias will flourish throughout the progression of these disorders," says Sandy Massetti, Senior Vice President.

Carney comes to Phoebe from Community Service Group, where she was Director of Eldercare Services.

Carney is a frequently-invited speaker on a variety of eldercare topics, addressing the American Psychological Association, the National Association of Professional Geriatric Care Managers, the Pennsylvania

Dr. Kelly O'Shea Carney Bar Institute, Pennsylvania Community Providers Association, and the Pennsylvania Long Term Living Training Institute.

She is a member of the American Psychological Association Committee on Aging and is the past President of the Board for the Pennsylvania Behavioral Health and Aging Coalition.

Project Child meeting to show film about 'Learning to Care'

By DEB BOYLAN
Special to The Press

A child doesn't arrive with an instruction manual. Parents can become overwhelmed with the responsibilities involved in caring for their children. Other factors such as separation or divorce in a family can cause additional parenting stress.

Child abuse can be physical, mental and verbal in addition to not meeting the basic needs of the child.

Project Child Lehigh Valley is an innovative program that focuses on preventing child abuse through education and awareness. Project Child's mission is rooted in educating parents and children alike by providing outreach in order to prevent child abuse from occurring.

Project Child Lehigh Valley holds its annual meeting, 8:30 a.m. Nov. 8, Room 605, Fowler Family Southside Center, 511 E. Third St., Bethlehem. The event is free and open to the public.

A film about Project

Child's "Learning to Care" program will be shown.

The nine-minute film produced by Ara Barlieb and Pamela Wallace of Barlieb Wallace Productions Ltd includes interviews with county officials and board members and staff of Project Child Lehigh Valley.

"Five years ago, the [Lehigh] County decided to set aside a certain amount of money specific for prevention programs with the hope that if we would fund some of those prevention programs in the community we would have an opportunity to keep families and children out of the child welfare system," said Pamela J. Buehrle, of the Lehigh County Office of Children and Youth Services, in the film.

"Prevention truly means that the work we are doing is occurring way, way before there is ever a problem," said Rochelle Freedman, Program Coordinator, Project Child.

As detailed in the film, Project Child provides parenting education courses which stress the importance of positive interaction between parents and their children. The classes, which are held on a regular basis, seek to educate parents in calm methods of discipline and dealing with stressful situations.

"Learning to Care" places facilitators in classrooms in order to help children understand getting their needs met and communication. "Teachers and administrators have all been amazed at the impact that this program has had on classrooms," Freedman said.

Weekly classroom visits are held. Once a month, a caretaker and infant are brought into the classroom so that children can learn what a healthy interaction between parent and baby looks like. The children interact with the baby and learn empathy and nurturing skills at an early age. It is the hope of Project Child that the children will carry these skills throughout their lives and break the cycle of child abuse.

"Learning to Care," the only one of its kind in the Lehigh Valley, has been funded for the past three years by Lehigh County.

"Child abuse prevention should be the hallmark of any society that has compassion," said Freedman.

Dinner, lecture for 10th year of Da Vinci horse at Baum

By MEGHAN LAVERNE
Special to The Press

There can be no dispute that Leonardo Da Vinci is one of the world's most influential and inspiring artists. His work has been immortalized all over the world, including here in the Lehigh Valley.

Before his passing in 1994, Charles Dent began a project to recreate Leonardo's Horse from a couple of inches image into three-dimensional 12- and 24-foot sculptures.

Charles Dent died before he could see the project come to life, but his nephew Peter C. Dent made sure that it would happen. This year marks the 10th anniversary of Leonardo's Horse being unveiled at the Baum School of Art in Allentown.

The Baum School of Art and the Da Vinci Science Center co-host the 10th anniversary celebration of Allentown's Leonardo's Horse statue with a 5:30 p.m. Nov. 15 dinner that includes a lecture by Peter C. Dent.

Charles Dent had a dream to bring to life one of the last ideas Leonardo Da Vinci had for a sculpture: a bronze horse. This was no easy task: trying to replicate a work of art that was first begun in 1482.

A full-scale clay model had been made and was to be cast. However, the bronze required was instead used to make cannons for war with France.

Peter C. Dent

The clay model and molds were destroyed by French soldiers during the invasion of Milan in 1499.

Centuries later, in 1977, Charles Dent began his work to bring honor to the art world and complete the lost work. The project was estimated to cost more than $2 million.

Peter Dent had made a promise to his uncle to complete his dream, which was to place the horse sculpture in Italy.

Dent describes the completed project as "a reverse Statue of Liberty." Charles Dent, a retired commercial airline pilot, "felt compelled to do this, to honor Leonardo's contribution to the art world" after reading a National Geographic article, "The Horse That Never Was," in 1979, Peter Dent recounts.

A nonprofit organization, Leonardo da Vinci's Horse, Inc., which was founded by Charles Dent in 1982, continued to lay the groundwork for the project

Those who know Peter Dent know that making the Da Vinci horse a reality also became his life's passion. He is an expert on Leonardo Da Vinci and dedicated himself to this project and beyond, including the cofounding of the Da Vinci Science Center at Cedar Crest College, Hamilton and Cedar Crest boulevards, Allentown.

It wasn't easy trying to construct a sculpture from a few sketches that were only inches in size. With the help of researchers, craftsmen and with the support of grants and fundraisers, sculptor Nina Akamu was commissioned to re-draw the original renderings and make the horse more proportional.

The bronze castings were made at a foundry in Beacon, N.Y.

The 24-foot "Il Cavallo" was unveiled Sept. 10, 1999 in Milan, Italy. Da Vinci had worked on his plans for the horse sculpture for 17 years in Milan.

One month later, a similar sculpture was dedicated at the Frederik Meijer Sculpture Garden, Grand Rapids, Mich.

The 12-foot replica outside the Baum School of Art is made of bronze. This aspect of the project along cost about $1 million. The sculpture was unveiled Oct. 4, 2002.

Peter Dent says that the horse sculptures "tie 'flesh and bones' to Leonardo and to the Renaissance."

NASA Rover scientist at Crest

With the success of the recent Mars Rover Curiosity landing, Cedar Crest College is bringing a NASA to the Lehigh Valley to provide insight into space exploration.

Jennifer Stern, Ph.D., a scientist at NASA Goddard Space Flight Center's Planetary Environments Laboratory, will present a lecture, 7:30 p.m. Nov. 15, Alumnae Hall. The program is free and open to the public.

Stern's lab specializes in studying the atmosphere and surface of Mars and developing instruments to make geochemical measurements on planetary surfaces. She is a member of the science team for the Mars Science Laboratory Rover Curiosity, which landed in Gale Crater on Mars in August.

She is also a team member on the Sample Analysis at Mars (SAM) Instrument Suite, one of the 10 instruments on Curiosity, which uses mass and laser spectrometry to measure the chemical composition of the atmosphere and surface of Mars.

Stern received a B.A. in geology-biology from Brown University and a Ph.D. in geochemistry from Florida State University, where she developed analytical techniques for stable carbon and oxygen isotope and trace metal analysis of environmental waters. She decided to apply her interest in stable isotopes to astrobiology as a postdoctoral fellow at NASA Ames Research Center and NASA Goddard Space Flight Center.

Of Stern's visit to campus, Marianne Staretz, associate professor and department chair of chemical and physical sciences at Cedar Crest, said: "Mars exploration is a topic of great interest to so many people, and we are thrilled to have a scientist who is an integral part of this exploration work share her knowledge with us. I am also excited that our students studying chemistry can see another way that their growing knowledge of chemistry can be used."

Keep garden tools in shape

Cleaning up tools and equipment is an important practice related to the garden that should not be ignored in the fall.

Proper cleanup of tools now will leave them in top shape and ready to use when spring comes.

Store tools in a dry place indoors, never outdoors where they will rust over the winter. Keep tools clean and dry. Never put tools away wet. If washing off soil from a tool, dry it when done.

Wheelbarrows, spreaders and garden carts should be cleaned with a hose. Sprayers should be washed with laundry detergent and water.

Anything that has come in contact with a chemical should be washed with soap and water. Fertilizers are extremely corrosive to metal. Soapy water or turpentine removes sap from pruners or loppers. Dry and oil pivot points with light oil or WD-40.

Clean, oil and repair hand tools. Repaint handles or identification marks that have faded over the summer. Sharpen blades and remove rust.

Wooden handles should be repaired or replaced if broken, weak or cracked. Sand rough spots on handles. Wooden parts and handles should be coated with linseed oil to prevent drying out or cracking. Loose screws should be tightened.

Coat metal surfaces of tools with oil to prevent rust. If minor rust is present, clean with steel wool. For larger or harder areas, use a wire brush.

L.C. Cooperative
Extension
LehighExt@psu.edu

The recipe to keep tools clean and rust-free is a five-gallon bucket, five pounds of sand and one quart of old motor oil or one quart of vegetable oil (environmentally-friendly).

Plunge tools into this mixture a few times after each use. Tools can be stored for extended periods of time in this mixture. Wipe each tool when ready to use.

Don't keep hoses in direct sunlight. This will cause them to dry out and crack.

Drain hoses before temperatures drop below freezing. Check for leaks and replace worn-out washers before coiling up and putting them away.

Store items upside down to prevent rodents from nesting in them. Use plastic containers for chewable items.

Power tools should be cleaned of plant material and dirt. Replace worn spark plugs, oil parts and sharpen blades.

Drain fuel from the mower and rototiller or add stabilizer. Remove matted grass from the top and bottom.

Drain oil from the crankcase and replace. Change the oil filter if necessary. Keep the battery fully-charged and in a warm spot during storage. Oil moving parts and wipe down machine with an oily rag. Dry the mower, if washed.

Hand sprayers require cleaning after each use by rinsing at least three times through tank, hose and hand control-nozzle.

Insecticides and liquid fertilizers are often compatible in the same sprayer, but check the labels first.

Sprayers used for herbicides are best kept to that task alone, and beware when switching between broadleaf and total vegetation control chemicals in the same sprayer. Keep them separate.

If you take care of equipment, you should have good service for many years. It doesn't save time or money in the spring if you have to buy new equipment.

Successful gardening doesn't stop with the first frost, but continues throughout the fall and early winter months. When following good garden care practices during this time, your garden will be ready for the growth of healthy vegetables next spring.

For answers to your garden questions, call the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension Office, 610-391-9840, or Northampton County Cooperative Extension Office, 610-746-1970, and ask to speak with a Master Gardener. Volunteers staff phone lines several days a week, Monday - Friday.

SteelJam returns to ArtsQuest

Performances by The Victor Wooten Band, Jimmy Herring Band and Conspirator highlight two nights of nonstop jamming as SteelJam returns Nov. 9 and 10 to Musikfest Cafe, ArtsQuest Center, SteelStacks, 101 Founders Way, Bethlehem.

Headlining SteelJam Nov. 9 is Conspirator, the project formed in 2004 by the Disco Biscuits' Aron Wagner and Marc Brownstein, along with New York producer DJ Omen. With the addition of virtuoso guitarist Chris Michetti and drummers Darren Shearer (New Deal) and Mike Greenfield (Lotus), the group has taken its music to another level, delighting audiences throughout the United States.

Other artists set to take the stage at SteelJam Nov. 9 include electronic duo BoomBox, which blends blues, rock and psychedelia; The Stepkids, who serve up a mix of punk, jazz, West African, 1960's folk and funk; and Revolution, I love You, the Philadelphia-based duo of Rob Lindgren and Jason Reynolds, who perform a fusion of indie rock and electronic dance beats.

On Nov. 10 at SteelJam, there's The Victor Wooten Band and The Jimmy Herring Band.

Wooten, a five-time Grammy Award winner, hit the worldwide scene in 1990 as a founding member of Bela Fleck and the Flecktones. Continuing to blaze a musical trail with the band, he has also become widely-known for his own Grammy-nominated solo recordings and tours. In 2011, Rolling Stone magazine chose Wooten as one of the Top 10 bassists of all time.

Herring is perhaps best-known as lead guitarist for Widespread Panic and founding member of Col. Bruce Hampton and The Aquarium Rescue Unit. He has also performed in Jazz is Dead, Frogwings, Grateful Dead member projects Phil & Friends and The Other Ones, and founded Project Z, an experimental instrumental trio with friends Jeff Sipe and Ricky Keller. Herring's most recent recording is "Subject To Change Without Notice," released Aug. 21.

Also performing Nov. 10 are Railroad Earth and From Good Homes singer-guitarist Todd Sheaffer and XVSK (Exter Versus Kimock), the jazz-jam fusion duo featuring cellist Trevor Exter and percussionist John Kimock.

With your head in the 'Cloud'

"Cloud Atlas" is the year's most astounding film.

"Cloud Atlas" is an epic in concept, screenplay, casting, directing, cinematography, editing, sound and production design. "Cloud Atlas" is akin to the Hollywood epics of Cecil B. DeMille.

"Cloud Atlas" recalls what big studios films do best — and yet it's an indie film at heart, albeit one with a $100-million budget. "Cloud Atlas" shows us new ways of looking at the world, and new ways of thinking about the universe.

This is bold, groundbreaking cinema. It's the kind of film you will need to — and want to — see more than once. "Cloud Atlas" is cinematic poetry.

Perhaps what's most fascinating about "Cloud Atlas" is the multiple roles played by leading actors, Tom Hanks and Halle Berry, who each play six roles. It's as if you're watching a film by a theater repertoire group.

Six roles each are also played by Hugh Grant, Jim Broadbent, Hugo Weaving, Jim Sargess and Doona Bae.

Susan Sarandon, Ben Whishaw, Keith David, James D'Arcy, Xun Zhou, David Gyasi each play three or more roles.

Each actor is nearly unrecognizable, creating a distinctive character for each role.

With six parallel story lines, watching "Cloud Atlas" is like channel surfing, but not as annoying. While you might not always follow the multiple plot lines, which span the mid-1800s to mid-2100s, dialogue, voiceover and action keeps you involved. Let the film and its extraordinary images wash over you.

To begin to describe the plot would require this entire page. Suffice it to say the characters weave in and out of each others' lives, and that events span centuries and the Earth and beyond: Pacific Islands, 1849; Cambridge, 1936; San Francisco, 1973; London, 2012; and Korea, 2144. It all seems to have impacts well beyond our 24-7 news-cycle world.

Directors Lana and Andy Wachowski ("The Matrix" and its sequels) and Tom Tykwer ("Run Lola Run"), who cowrote the screenplay based on the 2004 novel by David Mitchell, move the film at a fever pitch.

Call it "The Matrix Unloaded."

The philosophical lynchpin of "Cloud Atlas" is that everything and everyone is connected. "Cloud Atlas" is not so much a treatise on reincarnation as a plea for understanding, commitment to one's ideals and helping one's fellow man and woman.

There are many ruminative pronouncements: "Truth is singular. It's versions are mistruths."

And: "Our lives are not our own."

At the film's center is a beautiful score by Reinhold Heil, Johnny Klimek and Tom Tykwer, with the piece, "The Cloud Atlas Sextet," inspiring the film's title.

Get your head into "Cloud Atlas."

"Cloud Atlas," MPAA Rated R (Restricted. Under 17 Requires Accompanying Parent Or Adult Guardian) for violence, language, sexuality, nudity and some drug use; Genre: Drama, Mystery, Science-Fiction; Run time: 2 hours, 52 mins; Distributed by Warner Bros. Pictures.

Credit Readers Anonymous: Stay for the beginning of the "Cloud Atlas" end credits to see images of the variety of roles the leading actors play.

Box Office, Nov. 2: Despite the devastation of superstorm "Wreck-It Sandy" in northeastern

United States, "Wreck-It Ralph" demolished the competition, opening at No. 1 with $49.1 million, keeping "Flight" circling at No. 2, opening with $25 million, dropping "Argo" back to No. 3, with $10.2 million, $75.8 million, four weeks, and holding "The Man with the Iron Fists" at No. 4, opening with $8.2 million.

5. "Taken 2," $6 million, $125.6 million, five weeks; 6. "Cloud Atlas," $5.2 million, $18.2 million, two weeks; 7. "Hotel Transylvania," $4.5 million, $137.5 million, six weeks; 8. "Paranormal Activity 4," $4.3 million, $49.5, three weeks; 9. "Here Comes the Boom," $3.6 million, $35.5 million, four weeks; 10. "Silent Hill: Revelation 3D," $3.3 million, $13.9 million, two weeks

Unreel, Nov. 9:

"Skyfall," PG-13: Sam Mendes directs the 50th in the James Bond franchise. Daniel Craig reprises his "Quantum of Solace" role as Bond. Judi Dench is M and Javier Bardem plays a villain in the action film. The cast includes Naomie Harris, Ralph Fiennes and Albert Finney.

"Lincoln," PG-13: Steven Spielberg directs. Tony Kushner wrote the script based on Doris Kearns Goodwin's book, "Team of Rivals: The Political Genius of Abraham Lincoln." Daniel Day-Lewis stars as Lincoln. Sally Fields is Mary Todd Lincoln. The stellar cast includes David Strathairn, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, James Spader, Hal Holbrook, Tommy Lee Jones, John Hawkes and Jackie Earle Haley.

Moravian Conference on History and Music

The Third Bethlehem Conference on Moravian History and Music took place in Bethlehem Oct. 11 to 14. Held every other year, the four-day event "explores Moravian history and music in a worldwide context from the 15th to the 20th centuries through lectures, concerts, art, film, food and drink" at Moravian College, Moravian Archives and Moravian Theological Seminary.

The conference banquet features Moravian history scholar David A. Schattschneider, of Bethlehem, the keynote speaker and award recipient. Presenting the first award of merit from the Center for Moravian Studies at the Moravian Theological Seminary is the Rev. Dr. Craig D. Atwood, director of the center founded by Schattschneider who taught Moravian history for 30-plus years at the seminary and also served as its academic dean. Conference chair Lanie Graff of Nazareth, participated in the presentation of the handmade Starbuck Goldner Tile award from South Bethlehem. She said the third conference was well-attended with some 90 registrants from all over the United States and 10 foreign countries.

PRESS PHOTOS BY TIM GILMAN

Among the many guest performers at the Moravian conference is Christina Ekstrom from Sweden. The international singer is accompanied by the Satori chamber music ensemble from the Lehigh Valley. The local musicians are violinists Rebecca Brown and Mary Ogeltree, pianist Martha Schremple, violist Adriana Linares and cellist Deborah Davis. In the background are the stained glass windows of Peter Hall on Moravian College's south campus.
