Injured Seaman Spends Week-end With Parents

Edward Boehm, seaman, second class, U. S. Navy, who has recovered from injuries received some time ago while on transport duty during the American invasion of Northern Africa, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Boehm, 1249 Russell Avenue, Fountain Hill. After receiving his injuries he was sent to the naval hospital at Portsmouth, Va., where he fully recovered so that he is ready to return to active duty. His brother, Pfc. James Boehm, U. S. Army, is serving somewhere on foreign soil.
