UNLIMITED POSSIBIL

Being a student means that anything can happen. We can create new school records. We can defeat Freedom, twice. We can be "no place for hate". We can form everlasting memories, everyday. When we wander through these halls, our lives advance. It was us who made the possiblites endless. We have been together through the best and the worst of day, and yet, we still made it to the end. We spent these last four years growing together with the faculty and students, forming bonds that are unbreakable. Who would have guessed that our best years would be here; this is where we would remember laughter and tears, smiles and heartbreaks. Is it possible that time was sped up? These years went by so fast, almost too fast! Now that our time here is coming to an end, we can only look back on our experiences. We went through all of it; the construction and the reconstruction, freshman campus and the completed main campus. Our classes combined have produced an evolution of amazing students. Anything can happen when you have a range of so many possibilities. We can survive the pain as a whole, forcing ourselves to attach together as one. These memories we create will be with us for many years to come, forever. Only each of us can create our own unlimited possibilities and tap into our true potential.

REACHING OUT

As graduation has come and gone, we stand on the brink of the rest of our lives. The Friday night lights of the homecoming game, comforting over the jarring scene below, our hands raised above our heads in profound celebration as our Hurricanes were crowned the champions we already knew them to be, the bodies of our peers swaying in a confused unison with the rhythm of our last dance have become nothing more than the fondest of our memories, memories we will recall from time to time as the mass of moments that ultimately defined us all. We may have yet to admit that these past four years, spent learning and growing and changing alongside our beloved high school, were perhaps the most influential of our lives, but we all certainly felt the significance of these enduring moments as they passed, as well as the great sadness as we realized they have done just that-- passed. Though we now move forward separately, reaching out into uncertainty, standing steadfast and unwavering on the edge of something greater than any of us has ever known, we will not forget the moments we lived together, united as one and colored by red and blue.

LINKED TOGETHER

It is the place that some call home, and some cannot wait until it comes to an end. The place where so many different types of people roam the halls eager to hear new stories and meet new people. The place where seniors rule the school, and are not afraid to make it known. Above all the friends made, and mandatory classes taken, this place can take you anywhere. Here is where our guidance counselers, teachers, and principals set us up for the upcoming experiences that are to come on the road after high school. Whether they are cramming our brains with useful knowledge or preparing us with the proper steps to attending college or joining the work force, we can all use these inspirations in doing exactly what we want to do. And when senior year comes to a close, we as students will be faced in the right direction for whatever will come ahead. This place holds us for four years teaching us the right things, and molding us into well-knowledged young men and women. This is the sanctuary for all the facts and life's experiences meant to be learned. Liberty High School can take you anywhere.

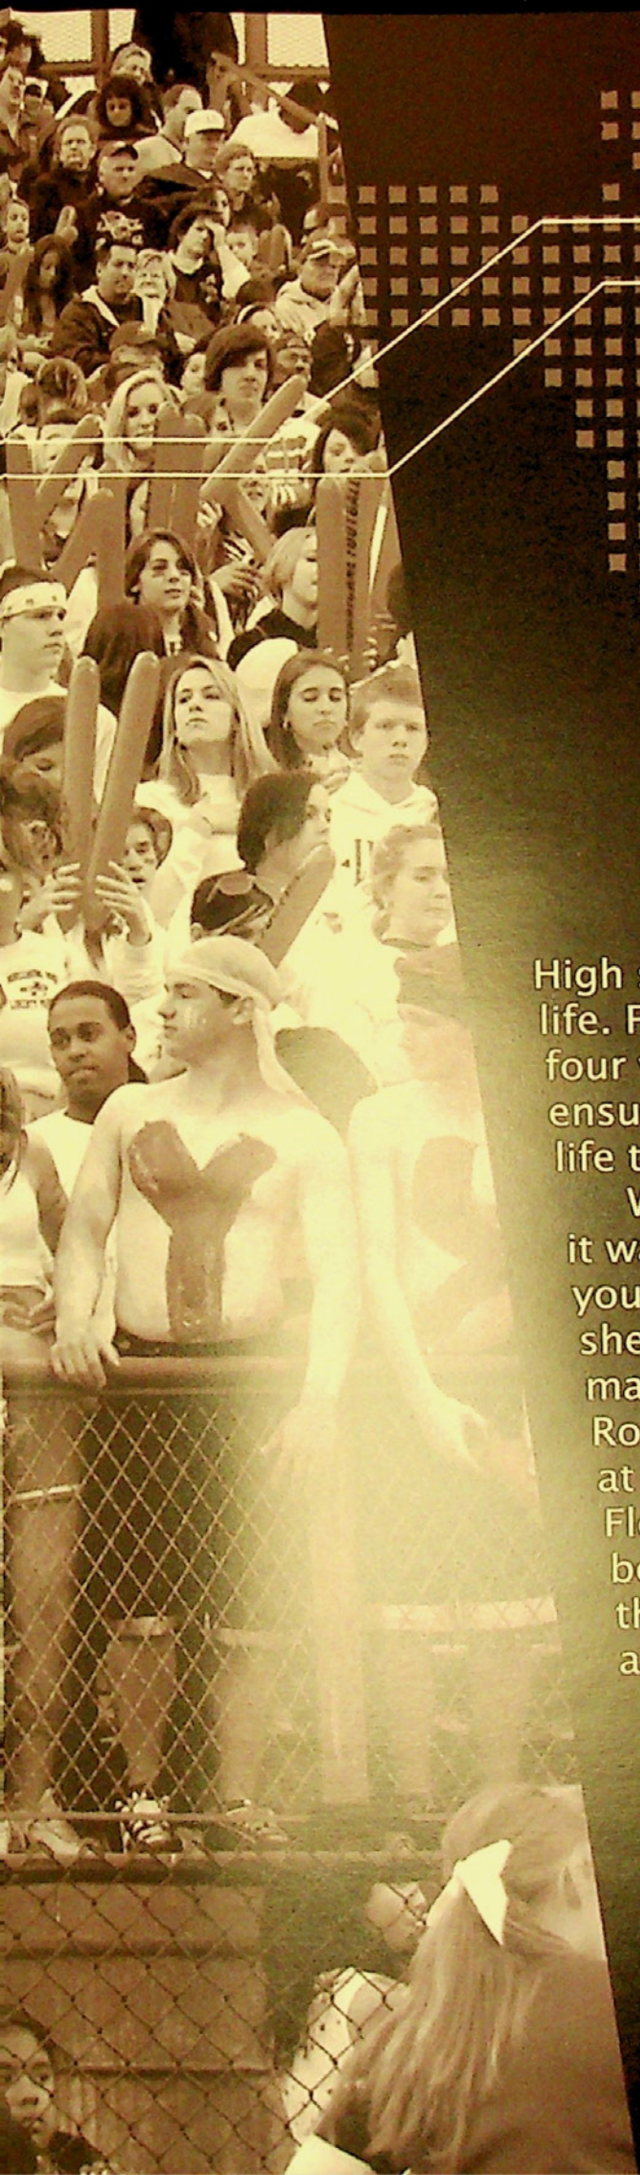
STUDENT LIFE



High school is said to be some of the best years of your life. For some people, they just try to sail through those four years and never look back. At Liberty, we strive to ensure that never happens. We want this period in your life to be one that you will always remember.

With everything that occurred in the 2008-2009 year, it was impossible to be a student at LHS and not enjoy yourself. Our football team soared to victory at Hershey and became State Champions. The Grenadier Band marched their way to California and participated in the Rose Bowl parade. State Radio came and rocked out at River fusion. The cheerleaders cheered their way to Florida for a competition. For prom, we sailed 'on a boat' with one another around the New York Bay. It's these experiences that connect us to each other and allow us to create memories that last us a lifetime.

Senior Deseon Hubbard said, "The old school holds quite the amount of memories but honestly I really like the new renovations on the building."

"Pooling" Through

For the past three years, students have been without a pool to enjoy other activities during gym class, as well as for the swim team. Senior Lauren Leon explained, "It has been wierd not having a pool because our home meets weren't at home. They weren't at our school, the meets were at Freedom."

The Final Front

The front of the the school is finally finished with new windows, doors, steps, fences, and many more added details. The final product looks excellent.

Finally REMODELED

Once in rubble, now rebuilt

After years of blocked hallways, being fenced off outside, and worst of all freshman campus, we finally have a newly renovated Liberty High School. Now the new building finally makes students feel like they belong, that the they are home. This wasn't the first time the LHS students have been displaced. From 1969 to 1972 the school also endured some renovations. Judy Halderman a cafeteria worker currently employed at LHS and a graduate of Liberty said, "I haven't really been here for the newest construction. I was at freshman campus. However, back then things were pretty crowded because we could only use certain rooms".

Construction has made the students anxious for a beautiful brand new building. For years there has not been anywhere to move in these conjested hallways and unfinished rooms. Resident project engineer Jim Hanna explained, " This job was very exciting for me and my whole crew, because of all the different types of construction styles we did. It was also quite challenging with all the students around the campus. There were certain things that we were able to do. We may have new features but most is still the same".

Haldermen also said, " I'm glad that they decided to renovate and not rebuild. These buildings have a lot of history and a lot of important people have come through here. You don't see etched quotes on newer built school."

Senior Alana Augello said, "The renovations came out really nice and for once the school feels like a new place . It was annoying at times when we were in class becuase we could hear the drills and it was really hard to concentrate."

Students react to the election of President Barack Obama

On January 29, 2009 people from all over the country gathered to welcome our new president. The anticipation was evident in the anxious eyes, the silent chants, and the butterflies in everyone's stomach. "It was an amazing experience," stated Freshman Darah Donaher " to see that many people from so many backgrounds, unified, and full of excitement. I was a moment I will never forget." The inauguration of Barack Obama, the first African American president of the United States, was a day to live for. "I would want to say to my kids 'I was there when Obama said the oath,' " stated freshman Victoria Dejesus. "I think it's good for our country [that Obama was elected]," continued Dejesus. "It shows that we have gotten over racism." Senior Mike Stehlin agreed, "It's a step in the right direction, whether you like it or not."

This year, there were many students that participated in the mock election, run by Mr. Markovich and the Social Studies Department. For the mock election, the auditorium was filled with rows of laptops and the students voted electronically for the candidate of their choice. The students had to sign in with their school ID number before they got to the poll booths. The votes were tallied and the results showed that the students chose Obama over McCain. "I think Liberty High School's response to Obama reflects that of the country's vote." said Mr. Markovich.

Students and faculty gather as one to cheer on the Hurricanes

Fourth block comes around and students are buzzing ith excitement for the upcoming pep rally. The Memorial ymnasium slowly but surely becomes filled with high chool students all bursting with school spirit. Sports eams are recognized for their awesome achievements, hile cheerleaders, majorettes, bag pipers, and dance eams are given the chance to show off their moves.

One of the highlights is the Co-ed Cheerleading erformance, which is a tradition, performed at every omecoming Pep Rally. Senior and captain of the Varsity heerleading squad Paige Johnson said, "I get really ervous before a pep rally performance, along with the ther two captains, we have to make up a routine. We pend many practices teaching and perfecting this outine with the squad."

Pep rallies are a time for unity among the student body and an opportunity to inspire excitement for the big games. School spirit was abounding as Mrs. Durante led the school in the traditional Liberty victory chant. At the homecoming pep rally, seniors also kept the tradition of waving signs that challenge and sometimes mock other grade levels. They made fun of underclassmen.

A return to the Memorial Gymnasium for pep rallies was a true way to lift everyone's spirit. Senior Marissa Varju states, "I liked being back inside the gym because I didn't like being outside in the stadium. It is so much more fun in the gym." With the aroma of fresh paint still lingering in the air, the students as well as well as the faculty became ecstatic as the pep rallies commenced.

White Out

The large and pumped up student cheering section shows their Liberty spirit at the biggest game of the season, Liberty vs. Freedom.

Loud chanting and incessant cheering echoing from the Liberty side of the stadium are constants at every Friday night football game. One group of Hurricane fans can always be counted on to be louder than the rest. This unparalleled student cheering section is appropriately known as the "eye of the hurricane."

"Where else can you dress like a complete fool, color your body red and blue and scream at the top of your lungs for your team in rain, snow and 14 degree weather with no shirt on," described senior Travis Schuch. The students came together and demonstrated their unique styles by creating a theme for each game night. Students would agree that the white out theme at the Freedom-Liberty game was by far the best.

"We had the biggest cheering section all year. The white out proved that we were there to stick with our team and dominate," stated senior Katie Milite. Other popular themes that kept the students entertained included hillbillies, scuba, Spartans, devils/school girls, etc.

Before each game students met on Grenadier Boulevard to tailgate and prepare to display their red and blue spirit. "Tailgating was extremely fun. From the second we parked the cars, the doors opened and the music was blasting. The atmosphere before the game was so real, filled with tons of energy," said senior Jake Mies.

To get the crowd more involved and to keep the players motivated, the student cheering section chanted, "LET'S GO CANES!", "GIVE ME AN L-H-S!" The boys also kept up the LHS team spirit with push-ups after touchdowns. The entire cheering section maintained a high level excitement and comradery during every game.

"This was the year we all bonded. If there was one thing I think we all wish we could re-live, it would be football games and being a part of the cheering section. We were all like one big family," explained senior Megan Pritchard. The cheering section went out with a bang in supporting their team during states at Hershey. What better way to end a year than by winning states!

Whether its using a megaphone or screaming at the top of their lungs, students kept the crowd's energy alive. "This year we had so much spirit for our team, we just went crazy! I believe the more crazy our cheering section went, the better our boys did out on the field." explained senior Nikki Arnold.

Just Dance

A group of seniors enjoyed every minute of dancing at their last homecoming dance. "Til always remember my last homecoming ever, the floor was distgusting but the dancing was awesome," stated senior Gabrielle Pirozzi.

A sense of HOME

Being back in the new cafeteria brought unity to the dance

The new cafeteria provided a perfect backdrop for the homecoming dance. The students were finally able to have the memorable event in their own home again. The only complaint of the night seemed to be how crowded the dance floor became due to the outstanding number of students that attended the dance. Senior Lauren Leon stated " It was a lot of fun and the music was great, but it was extremely crowded". However, everyone can agree it was a night to be remembered.

Freshman Jordan Baltzersen's favorite part was "hanging out with my friends all night". Being back to the school was a positive change for many students. "Both locations were great, but being back at Liberty was much closer and more convienent," said junior Hannah Schwarzbach. The highlight of the memorable night was the crowning of homecoming king and queen Brandon Brader and Jessica Hein. " I really didn't think I would be on the court, so to win was completely unexpected, stated senior Brandon Brader.

Excitement and sorrow loomed in the air as the senior's last homecoming dance came to a close and the students shuffled out the doors closing yet another chapter of the school year.

Marching for the ROSES

LHS Grenadier Band, marches in the Rose Bowl parade.

Seventy-six trombones, well, actually 11, led the LHS Grenadier Band down Colorado Boulevard, with two hundred and fifty band members playing along. On Saturday, November 3, 2007, Corky Concierre, 2009 president of the tournamet of roses, announced that the band was invited to play in the 2009 Rose Bowl Parade.

Senior Ali Vesely said, "I was really excited when I found out we were invited. I never thought I would have the experience to go to California in high school." This year two hundred and fifty band members packed their instruments and uniforms and flew off to California to take part in the parade.

Senior Adriana Rivera stated, "We practiced a lot for this parade, so we knew exactly what we were doing when we got there." Practice made perfect for the band as they trekked along the six-mile Rose Bowl Parade.

Senior Jeremiah Ragsdale said, "The trip overall was a great learning experience! We had so much freedom and we had to be very mature in all the situations. Being alone with my friends with no parents kind of gave me a glimpse of what college will be like."

Along with participating in the parade, the band also marched at Disney Land with Penn State, University South California, The United Sates Navy band, the Los Angles regional band, Hawaiian State band and many more. They also performed a field show for band fest, where all the bands in the Rose Bowl Parade display their musical talents. The band participated in many other activities, such as an information session regarding the construction of the parade floats, a trip to the Kodak Theatre to watch a show, a local bowling spot, and many more fun adventures!

Freshman Eric Burcin said, "Going to the Kodak Theatre was a once in a life time opportunity. I could have been sitting in the same seat as a celebrity once did, it was a lot of fun!"

working toward YOUR FUTURE

High school students are working hard to save money

With the economy being in the poorest condition that it has been in years, making and saving money is even more important in the eyes of students. Finding jobs is almost a necessity for most students in order to keep up with the ever-changing ups and downs that the economy throws at them. Maintaining a well-paying job is a priority for a majority of students. As students grow up mom and dad are no longer going to be buying everything they need. In order to be on their own and be able to handle and deal with money, high school students look to getting after school jobs to get the extra cash in their pocket.

"During this period of economic emergency, families are tightening their belts."
-Pres. Barack Obama

The extreme downturn of our economy only leads to a greater need for after-school jobs. Extra spending money paying for cell phone bills and car insurance are major concerns and reasons that teens have to work many hours a week outside of school to make enough money to meet their needs. "I worked at Walgreens and I liked talking to and meeting new people. You learn many useful skills for later in life, and the money you make can be used to pay for things you want, or for college" according to senior, Lindsay McCornac.

The times where the cool kids at high school had big block V-8's and hemi-muscle as their primary source of transportation have come and gone. The times have changed and so have the cars students drive. Dodge, Chevrolet, Ford, and General Motor vehicles have been replaced by smaller, more advanced automobiles such as Volkswagens', Nissans', Subarus', Toyotas', BMWs' and Audis'. The student automobile can now tackle more than just a straight line, unlike the past.

Take for example, senior Brenden Ramos' Subaru Impreza WRX. The "rex" as it is sometimes called is known for its racing pedigree in many World Rally Cup races and has seen more then a few victories. Given its rally heritage and a two page list of aftermarket upgrades, Ramos has been tempted to test its capabilities on the roads of Bethlehem and has received several tickets for it.

On the other hand, senior Patrick Walker, is a proud owner of a German inspired vehicle, the Volkswagen GTI. With quite a few less aftermarket parts than "rex", the GTI still impresses with its "Low & Slow" moniker.

Not all go for speed when modifying their car. Senior Noah Glickman's classic Mark II Jetta is more so worked on in the visual department. Glickman chose parts ranging from headlights, painted rims, and tinted taillights.

"I got pulled over for my taillights according to the law they are not legal," joked Glickman.

The variety of student owned automobiles is quite astounding. Everything from heavily modified to completely stocked cars can be found here at Liberty. From German imports to Japanese rally champions, classic cars to offroad monsters, there is not anything that the students at Liberty do not drive.

Service Needed

With a large portion of the student population owning older cars, many are found living in their second home: the repair shop.

Speeding Tickets

Many students have already been pulled over and fined for speeding. Senior [redacted] has been ticketed multiple times for exceeding the speed limit in his, perhaps too fast, WRX.

Gas Money???

Scrounging for money when it comes to filling up the tank isn't uncommon with Liberty students. Some find it difficult to obtain enough money to fill up their car and some resort to avoiding it all together.

Sarah Finn- Biology/Vet

"Ever since I was little, I have wanted to be a veterinarian and go in the biology field of study. I have a passion for working with animals and specifically wanting to help with the sick ones"

"Look deep inside yourself, honestly and sincerely, to discover your "it". This is that one thing that will truly satisfy the deepest part of your soul-it does not depend upon any person other than yourself, it is yours and yours alone. Your "it" may be music, or art, or science, or writing or taking care of furry little creatures; your "it" is what moves you like nothing else can. Search for what that "it" is for you. Some may call this "it" your passion in life. Be true to yourself, be honest in your self-evaluation, but above all, find your "it" and run full steam ahead!"

Nancy McConnell attends Drexel on NROTC scholarship.

Senior Nancy McConnell is one of the few graduating seniors from any high school that has received a full ride scholarship from the NROTC, Naval Reserve Affairs Training Corps. She will be attending four years at Drexel University, planning to receive her Bachelors of Science Degree in Nursing. After graduation from Drexel, she plans to join the Navy. She never started out wanting to be a nurse, until she received a motivational spark of interest from her mother. Her father is the one who got her interested in the navy, because himself, along with his father, were involved as well. Nancy is looking forward to helping the sick and injured soldiers and is also very excited to travel to many different places.

Life After LIBERTY

Seniors blow away the storm, as high school comes to an end.

Layout and Copy By: Nicole Cantelmi & Caly Anthony

There are many decisions someone can make after high school graduation. Attending college is known to be the smartest decision a teenager can make. Although, some students choose to join the military service or just go right into the work force. Many students do not have the interest in pursuing a higher education level after high school, while other students attend a four-year college in hopes of obtaining a better education that will help provide a successful future.

Throughout the year, many students are excited to graduate high school. Some senior students use the term "senioritis", and once May comes around they are ready to leave! Senioritis is a term used for seniors who are just plain lazy and do not feel like doing anymore work, and do no attend class in high school! Senior Noah Glickman laughs, "Most of the time I enjoy attending class, but there are some days when I just walk out and don't come back for the rest of the day!" With the conclusion of high school coming around the corner, many students start to question their future and how they plan to be successful. Senior Alison Kovacs who is attending Ursinus College expresses, "I'm excited to go to college and be on my own." As high school comes to a close, most all seniors are ready to move on and take a dive into the "real world".

Senior Evelyn Synder is representing Bloomsburg University, where she will be attending Bloomsburg in the fall.

Looking to the future

Lindsey Hunsicker and Randi Bosch will be attending Lycoming college and swimming together. Senior Randi Bosch expresses, "I'm really excited to be attending college and being apart of the swim team there with my best friend."

Boys with "Big Daddy"

Football Coach Tim Moncman smiles with his four successful senior boys that will be playing football in college. Senior Devin Street stated, "Coach Moncman has taught me to have a strong work ethic, be a leader, have determination, and to be respectable young man."

Setting Sail For A Night to REMEMBER

The second year on the boat made for a dance that wouldn't be forgotten.

Based on the bad weather and long bus trip last year, many upperclassmen worried that prom on the Cornucopia Majesty would be similar to the near-disaster of last year's prom excursion. However, the sun came out and the bus rides went off without a hitch.

The prom preparation started bright and early due to the 2 o'clock report time to the Martin Towers. While driving through Bethlehem, it was apparent that prom was in full swing. Girls packed hair salons across the city, the boys bought their corsages and massive groups of prom-goers posed along pool edges, all before noon. "It was such a rush, getting ready and making sure everything was organized for pictures, but it was definitely worth it," said senior Abbey Lovell. "We have tons of great photos to remember the night!"

Everyone piled on the buses and arrived in New York City earlier than expected. The weather remained beautiful, allowing the students to take pictures outside before stepping on the boat and beginning the night most would not soon forget. "The nice weather at prom this year made it a better experience because it gave us the opportunity to go on the deck and view the beautiful New York City skyline," stated senior Devin Matyus.

After settling in at their tables, everyone enjoyed the delicious choices from the buffet dinner, ranging from baked ziti and Caesar salad to smoked salmon and filet mignon. "The wide variety of food allowed us to have plenty of options," commented senior Kelsey Bedics. "The Caesar salad was bangin'!"

Though the food was certainly bangin', it was not the buffet that made prom perfectly unforgettable.

"Everything was really perfect, the weather, the music, the fact that the bus ride wasn't three hours long," remarked Lovell. "It really seemed like everyone had the best time!"

Celebration of GRADUATION

It's not just the end, but a new beginning.

As melancholy and expectation, hesitation and change and dozens of added emotions lingered in the rain-streaked air on June 3rd, 662 seniors graduated, headed away from high school and toward something entirely new. Draped in red and blue, the class of 2009 filed into Stabler Arena before a crowd of satisfied parents, administrators and guests, perhaps stirred by the profound significance of the event or rather pleased that their years of mandatory public school have come to an end.

Class and faculty-elected speakers Tom DeBoer and Abhiroop Das offered much-needed comic relief to the otherwise tedious ceremony. Class officers Abaigael Rooney and Pat Foose reminisced about the seniors' turbulent four years at Liberty, from freshman campus and constant construction to a variety of class principals and unwavering talk of PSSAs. Class vice-president Tim Haddigan concluded the student speakers with his assertion that Liberty has not and will not again see a class quite like that of 2009.

"We are unique because we did not and will not allow failure," said Haddigan. "And of course because we are the last class to make you say 'oh'! We can't claim to be perfect; we can't say we have done it all right. The only thing we can say is that we gave it our best shot, except in the case of those darn PSSAs."

Senior class president Carolyn Vail led her peers in the symbolic shifting of the tassel from left to right, signifying the students' transition out of high school before the diploma procession commenced.

As caps were tossed in ecstasy, exultant cheers rang through the rafters of the arena and the class of 2009 exited as one for the final time, with little more than diplomas in their hands and memories in their hearts.

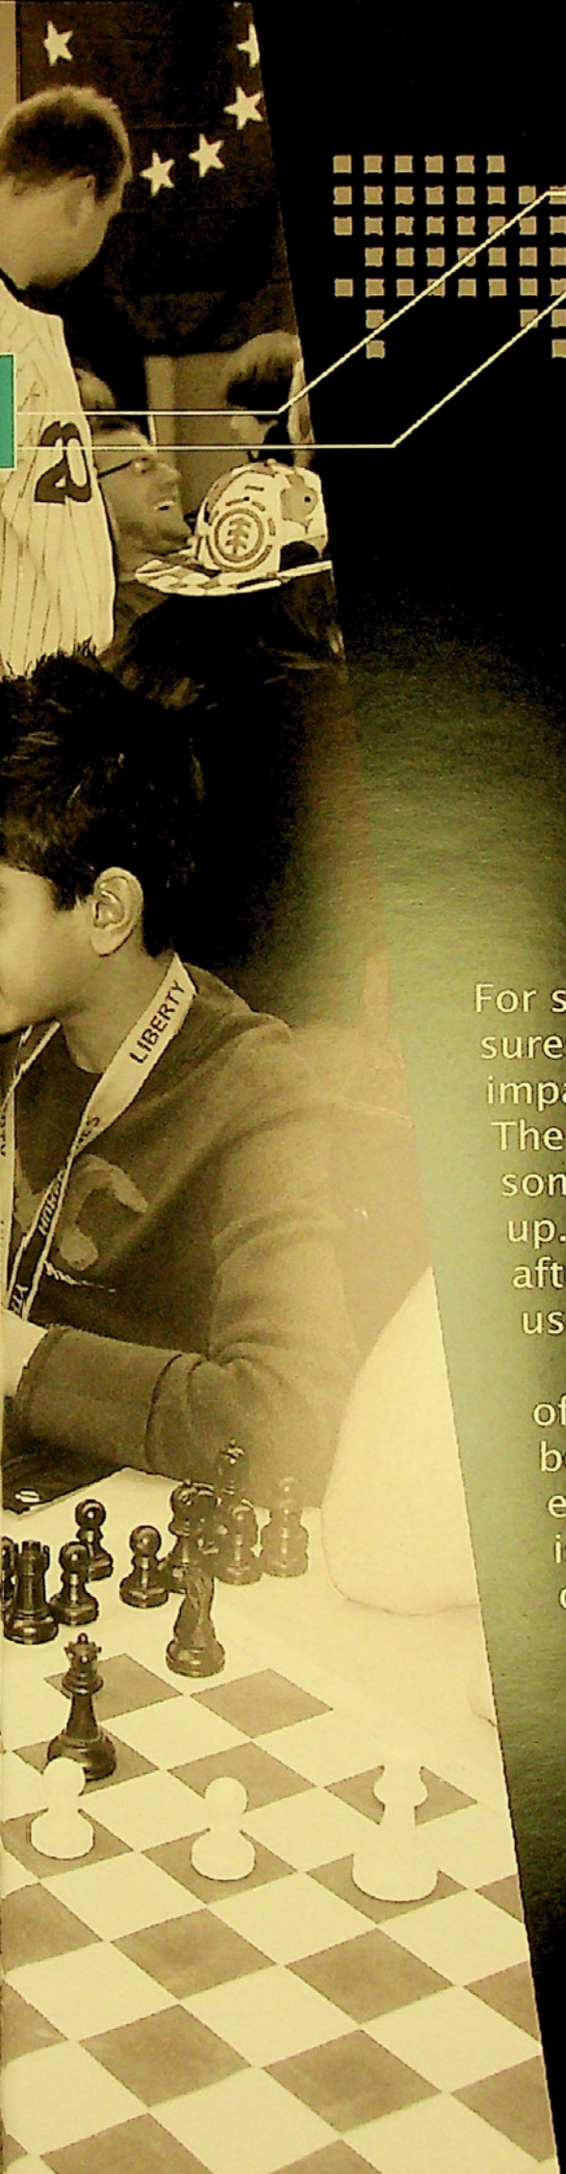
CLUBS & ORGANIZATIONS



For students at this period in their life, dealing with the pressures of school and knowing the choices we make now will impact our futures, takes a toll on everyone at some point. The demands can tend to be extremely overwhelming, sometimes even to the point where you just feel like giving up. That's why Liberty works to ensure there are plenty of after school organizations for kids to get involved with and use as an escape from it all.

These are the years where you start to analyze aspects of yourself, realizing the things appreciate and hope to become. At times, you may feel like you are isolated from everyone around you. The truth is every single student is experiencing those same emotions as you. Our school offers a wide variety of clubs and organizations for students to gain new experiences and have a place to express themselves. The programs range from French, Spanish and German club to challenging your mind with the chess team. Being surrounded by people who accept you for exactly who you are, is one of the greatest appreciations a person can have.

Leaders of TOMORROW

Learning to take charge of the world we live in

In a school with a population that exceeds 3,000 students, many times it 's a struggle for students to find a way to stand out. Student leaders often have the quality of being a leader natureally within them. However, many activities such as student government, National Honors Society, Teen Summit and the Latino Youth Leadership club allow students the chance to learn how to become leaders. These exceptional students make for great role models for our younger generation, and will certainly make an impact on others in the future.

Examining the school to bring all the latest news

A yearbook photo captures the moment, the words record the event. Yearbooks document the people, the places, the emotions, the stories of the year. "Yearbook helps me focus on the skills I need for my future endeavors, and it's really fun, it definitely gives me insight on what's going on in my school" stated Junior Ashley MacDonald.

There are many positions held in the publication process whether you are a writer, designer, photographer, editor, and anything else. The key to success is paying attention to the details and that's what the Yearbook and Liberty Life involves." Since I'm in Liberty Life and Yearbook it's really not that difficult to balance the two clubs out, since I'm a copy editor the things I do in yearbook are similar to what I do in newspaper. It makes it easier to complete my layouts before the deadlines because I know what I'm doing" commented Senior Abbey Lovell.

A writer is not someone who is published or someone who is famous. The members of Young Writer exhibit this quality. Young Writers simply write because they enjoy it. "We enjoy reading poems about Welsh Corgis." said junior Laura Kauer.

Senior Pete Koufalis works hard to finish a layout before its deadline."I enjoyed working on the car layout because it was something I could relate to, and because it's one of my interests in life. I think working on the car layout opened up the doors in creativity for me." said Koufalis.

always A TEAM

No matter what, they are always considered a team

Competition is no stranger to the students of Liberty High School. Between the chess team, scholastic scrimmage, football, and many other sports and clubs, other high schools don't stand a chance. If it requires skill, concentration and competition, we're all over it.

Scholastic Scrimmage participates in three tournaments. The first is a single elimination tournament, which means once you lose once your done. The second competition is against the Eastern Division in the Lehigh Valley Conference. The last one is in Phillipsburg, NJ, which the team doesn't usually participate in. Scholastic Scrimmage came in 2nd behind Moravian Academy, the only school able to beat Liberty.

The chess team came in 3rd behind Parkland and Becca, Becca being in first. Liberty's chess team has traditionally came in second or third for the last ten years. During the chess preseason, the team does a red robin tournament to determine if they will play first board, second board, etc. where they will stay for the regular season. To all of those schools that think we are an underdog, we say bring it. If there is one thing that Liberty always succeeds in it is to refusing to lose.

An ode to SHAKESPEARE

The Fall Play ca
worked togethe
produce a fanta
performance.

The cast of the fall production "Hamlet" lit up the stage on December 5th for opening night. Junior Joshua Mitman stated "Everything about opening night was amazing. Hanging out beforehand and afterwards was really fun, and the show that night went really well. It was one of the best feelings ever". It's hard for one to think of how it must feel to prepare for opening night without being personally involved in the production. Senior Katherine Willmorth expressed " The hardest part about getting ready for the play is that life never stops to let you focus on the show the way you want to. It's hard to try to balance 'real' life with the life you're building on stage". The cast was well aware that many challenges would come with performing such a difficult Shakespeare play such as "Hamlet". Senior Mary Pappalardo stated "I think we all knew that Hamlet was drastically different then anything else we did. We were intimidated because it was Shakespeare, but I think that pushed us to do better and try harder". After the curtain closes and the costumes come off, the cast is still close with one another. While working on such a production, they all made new memories and new friends. Senior Jake Dunn expressed " The memories and friendships made will last a lifetime".

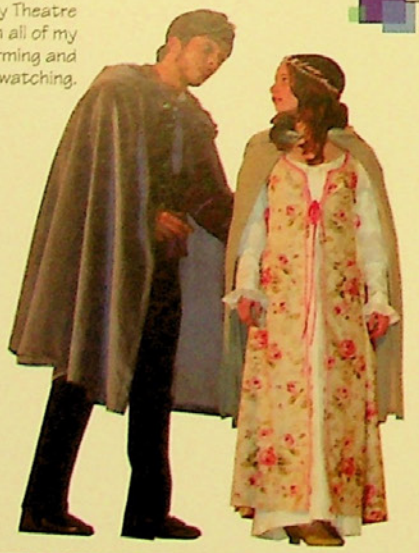
It Takes Hard Work

Preparing for a play such as Hamlet took a lot of hard work. Junior Rachel Schachter stated "Hamlet is definitely one of the most difficult, challenging, and rewarding fall shows that Liberty Theatre has performed in all of my experience performing and watching.



The Entertainers

A group of the cast members converse with one another during a scene of Hamlet. Junior Ryan Mulligan stated " Being on stage, under lights and in front of a crowd is an indescribable feeling".

Celebrating Sucess

The cast celebrates their successful performance by going out for food after the production.

All Hail the Queen

Senior Mary Pappalardo plays the character of Hamlet's mother, Gertrude. Mary stated "I was in a seminar group about Gertrude in my English class so I really got a chance to figure her out and prepare for my role".

Facing the Crowd

Juniors Joshua Mitman and Katherine Mowrer kneel before the audience while performing. Joshua expressed "I'm like Hamlet in some ways. Obviously I'm not into killing anyone, but Hamlet is constantly thinking like I am and we have a similar sense of humor".

Finally HOME

Second to the right and straight on til morning!

The lights dim and Wendy, Michael, and John lay down to sleep, when suddenly the window bursts open and in flies Peter Pan, literally! This year's LHS musical production included an amazing cast and an equally amazing crew and orchestra. Filled with flying, dancing, and singing (sometimes all at the same time), Liberty Theater put on one of the best shows in a lifetime.

"Peter Pan has to be one of the best musicals LHS has put on in a long time. The cast, crew, and pit really came together to put on a good show," says junior Cassandra Haines, who shared the role of Wendy with her twin sister Courtney. Everyone who had anything to do with the musical this year produced a lot of hard work; and all of the hard work paid off when Peter Pan brought home four Freddy awards!

Not only did Peter Pan make an impression on its audience, but it engraved in the hearts of the cast, crew, and pit of the production as well. "The walls of [Liberty's] theater are something else, truly unexplainable. I now have a void in my soul where Liberty Theatre was," senior Thomas Depoer describes about his experience of his last LHS musical. This year's production evoked an indescribable feeling that was cast over all the participants of Peter Pan. When asked for opinions of the show, a common reply given from the cast was "magical", "fantastic", "perfect", "amazing", and just plain old "fun", but the statement most given described incredible love and strength that brought everyone together, and how it shined through the production from the moment the curtain rose.

More Love

"Cocka-doodle-doo," crowed senior Katherine Wilmorth, as she stared as Peter Pan in this years musical. Wilmorth also says, "break a leg," to the future of Liberty Theatre, and Katie "hopes Liberty Theatre brings the same love and happiness it has [her]."

our TUNES

Their voices blend to make a beautiful tune

Mrs. Gayle Justice and Mr. Matthew Klenk work hard to choose the right songs for every concert. At this years Winter Concert, the choraliers sang songs from a variety of languages: Amharic, Latin, Hebrew, and of course, English. Each section of choraliers, accapella singers, women's chorale and ensemble, combine their unique sounds to come together in perfect harmony. In order to prepare for their concerts, they sing warm-up excercises that include the Alma Mater and the National Anthem. They learn and practice their songs every day so that they are ready for their time to shine. The singers that made it to district chorus were Junior Rachel Schachter and Senior George Thanhauser.

playing TOGETHER

Making music as much more than just a team

Most people associate school music with the band, but there's more to it than that. Every year the orchestra conducts a concert, both in school for the students, and in the evening for the community. At this concert, there were a few senior soloists, including Caroline Vail - violin soloist, Colin Johnson - Trumpet soloist, and Zachary Jones - Piano soloist. The orchestra is very happy with how its hardwork paid off in a great concert with positive feedback, and extremely proud of all its members.

Let the Music Play

Freshman Victor Neuman concentrates hard on the music in front of him. The orchestra learns many different pieces of music ranging from classical to upbeat modern songs.

United Together

Many different students join together to play music in the orchestra at the annual concert in the auxuillary gym. The concert each year is a school favorite and draws a large crowd.

Variety is Key

Orchestra members play all different kinds of instruments which contribute to the sweet sounds of the music they generate. Without each and every member, one cannot come to appreciate the musical variety they perform.

Caring for EACH OTHER

Our Athletes Shining in the community

Cheering for all

Schools from all over the Lehigh Valley came together for this event. A parade of schools at the beginning of the day brought a sense of unity to everyone involved. The signs added a personal touch to each organization.

During this year's football season, winning was everything. For the athletes who participated in the Special Olympics event, having fun was all that mattered. The event was hosted by our school with the help of students and teachers from around the area. Every athlete participated in three track and field events with the help of their student buddies and parents. At the end of the individul events, students were given ribbons for their hardwork. While this event means the world to the athletes' families and teachers, it also means the world to the students who provide help and care for them. Senior Kourtney Rogers who participated in the event said, "It was a very enriching experience to be able to work with the kids. Seeing the happiness on their faces afterwards made my heart fill with joy". Ms. Landis, a teacher to some of the athletes, stated, "Special Olympics is always tons of fun. Every year, the volunteers make the event possible."

Believe it or not, track and field is not the only Special Olympic event held for these children throughout the school year. Other Special Olympic events include life skills, bowling, and basketball at Freedom. Teacher Ms. Haddigan said, "The kids are always very positive, no matter who comes in first or last".

Early Learning

Students from all grades took part in this tremendous volunteer oppurtunity. It is important to show even freshman that giving back to the community makes for an accomplished high school experience.

Scream and Shout

The athletes always cheered on their fellow classmates with signs and cheers. They always showed support for all of their friends and competitiors.

Encouragment

The day is about more than the competitive events. The way the volunteers bond with the athletes is a unique experience that shines brighter than the sports events.

Opening Remarks

Principal Mrs. Durante and Band Director Mr. MacGill gave opening speeches that uplifted the spirits of the volunteers and students competing in the games.

Comic RELIEF

"...so important to remember that the students are the future of our country" - Dat Phan

Funny Faces

Comedian Dat Phan was constantly making funny facial expressions throughout his show, making himself even funnier.

With so many restrictions on how to fundraise at a school, Liberty's clubs are struggling to come up with new ideas. Clubs can't sell anything that has sugar as the main ingredient, they can't do anything that will keep students out of class for extended periods of time, etc, etc. However, the Cauldron came up with a new fundraising idea that has never been done before but follows all of the guidelines. The Cauldron hired comedian Dat Phan to perfrom stand up comedy in Liberty's auditorium. The event raised over $5,000. Dat Phan had to keep his jokes family-friendly because the show was open to all ages. "I am very happy to have been invited to perform at Liberty High School." stated Phan during a press conference, "I don't get the chance to perform at high schools very often, and I want to connect with these students even though it means making a special trip from California." The Cauldron was especially appreciative because Phan was willing to work for a very reasonable price even though times were tough. "Politics and the economy are crazy right now, but that is why it is so important to remember that our students are the future of our country." remarked Phan.

Real Action

Dat Phan was extremly hyper and excited on the night of the performance, which is exactly what the crowd was looking for.

Creative Comedy

Throughout his show Dat Phan had to keep this jokes family-friendly, which made him even funnier because he had to catch himself and quickly and creativly turn his jokes around.

Funny Favorite

After opening acts by HALA and Liberty's dance team, Comedian Dat Phan performed and had the crowd crying for an encore.

BLOOD DRIVE

The school's top scholars come togeth for a great cause

Liberty High School students are constantly showing their care through community service. Every year the NHS helps Miller Keystone run their annual blood drive. Students willingly donate their blood tp help those who may need it.The students are willingly donating their blood to help those who may need it. Although a blood drive is nothing new for Liberty, it's always surprising to see how many students want to help strangers for the same reason: It's a good cause. Junior Zach Angstadt donates his blood every time there is a blood drive. " I was inspired by my mom, who was always donating her blood. Besides, it's a good cause." Stated Zach. Senior Gaby Pirozzi commented, "It's a good cause and I feel as though my help is needed". When Gaby was asked why she felt her help was needed she responded, " My blood type is O-Negative which is very rare and can come in handy." Whether it is a personal inspiration or a desire to help others, the hearts of Liberty's students are and always will be in the right place.

students against destructive DECISIONS

SADD works together to influence Liberty students

Every two years SADD puts on a performance of what could happen if students drink and drive called "the crash". This act is put on the week of prom and involves seniors as the actors, making it extremely realistic for the senior and junior students to watch. "It was just so real, everything about it. It was almost so emotional that I was fighting back tears, seeing people I know, my friends in that car was devastating," explained senior Megan Pritchard.

On day two of "the crash" students jam into the auditorium to watch the funeral of the two boys who lost their lives in the car collision. It is the very emotional part of the whole experience watching parents, and friends speak. "I would look to my left and see someone crying and look to my right and see someone balling. It was so real, and I never would want that to happen to any of my friends," stated senior Liz Steinberg.

Signing Off

All Liberty students had the opportunity to sign a coffin set up in the lobby. "It was so sad seeing what everyone would do if those two boys actually died," stated senior Emily Fondl.

In Memory Of

Two coffins were set on the stage in the Liberty auditorium. It set the scene of the funeral for Chris Rodriguez and Adam Weaver, both Liberty seniors.

Resisting Arrest

Senior Jake Dunn gets put in handcuffs and moved to a near cop car. "The handcuffs actually hurt, it just showed me even more how I never want to be in that position" explained Jake.

Helping the community one step at a time

Busted is a club devoted to keeping tobacco products away from teens. Teens from all over the state want to tell the tobacco industry that they need to stop targeting teens in our area. The movement is meant to expose the deceptive advertising of tobacco products and empowering young people to stand up against them. 38,100 kids under the age of 18 become new daily smokers each year. They replace the smokers who quit or die from tobacco diseases. The tobacco companies need new replacement smokers to stay in business, and TEENS are their number one target! Busted is a way to keep teens informed about the dangers of tobacco use and that the tobacco indusrty manipulates teens to become new smokers. These industires are BUSTED and will no longer persuade teens into the unhealthy habits of tobacco use.

You Have To THINK

Strategy Club provides a enjoyable environment while teaching important lessons.

Liberty High School has much more to offer than sports, band, or theatre clubs. High-school students of all ages have the oppurtunity to drop in on Strategy Club. This club is run by Mr. Kehler and Mr. Ambrose. These 2 teachers see the value and fun in the strategy games. Even though their budget was cut, this didn't stop them from bringing in their own board games and card games. Today, the participants of this club are ready to put your strategy to the test.

The board games that students like to play include Age of Renaissance, Civilization, Monopoly, Risk, Backgammon, Chess, and much more. A clear victory condition is needed to win a great deal of these games. The students try to think about the things that count toward winning. Usually, every game that is available is being played. Students find ways to keep themselves occupied whether it's using multiplayer to verse eachother on their PSP or interacting with fellow students on a board game or card game. About 32 students show up to each meeting. Not only do the strategy skills of these students improve, but the students also learn social ques and how to win and lose gracefully.

Advisor Mr. Kehler explains, "All types of people come to Strategy Club. Some parents even come . People of all ages including special education and honors students."

The advisors faced a tough time when their budget was cut. They both pitched in because they see a value in the fun of the strategy games and students learning how to think strategically.

Years ago, going to school and getting an education was a low priority for families and their children. Those kids were never given the opportunities to learn the basic subjects of math, science, history, reading and writing that we today experience.

Today our school is built for students to excel in their academics. As high school students, most of us have hopes of graduating and moving on to attend a college somewhere. Whatever the goal or hope, Liberty ensures each individual student that as long as they show dedication inside the classroom each and everyday, then we will work together and strive to achieve greatness.

"Education is not preparation for life; education is life itself."

making HISTORY

PART 1

Learning history is important, but making it is more valuable.

I think any student would agree that learning history can be boring at times. What mostly makes school (especially history class) exciting is not what you learn in the classroom, but what happens in the classroom. Everyone has memories from school that they will never forget. Junior Julia Drexel reminisceses about third grade when mass chaos erupted. "I remember show and tell in third grade when Joe Garvey brought in a box of crickets and they got loose in the classroom. Although it was almost nine years ago, I will always remember that." Everyone has memories such as this and it is important not to forget them because as you grow older, they will become more and more precious. This page was designed for you to document your memories such as your favorite class and favorite teacher so that ten yeasrs down the road you can look back and remember your high school, or even elementary school years.

What LHS thinks about math...

1. If math were a song it would be New Math by Bo Burnham because it is all about math.
2. If math were food it would pizza because it comes in a pi(e).
3. If math were a show it would be LOST because that's how people feel in math.
4. The funniest moment in math class was when Jarrod West and Christian Rodriguez tried to learn.

Making fun of math...

1. There are three types of people in the world...Those who can count, and those who can't.
2. What did one tree say to another?
   Ge-om-e-try (Gee I'm A Tree)
3. What do you call a parrot that left its cage?

New MATH

Live like your data and when you're all set...

There was a time when math was confined to numbers and the four symbols of addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division. The original simplicity of the math world with the complexity of high school curriculum meets in the chaos that is algebra 2, geometry, calculus and the other advanced branches of math. Yet it is the unavoidable moment for high school students to learn and adapt these new concepts, and still everyone wonders what we need this "stuff" for.

"You need this "stuff" for college," Mr. Christopher D'Emilio says, but what about after that? The truth is, a majority of people won't use math after their school career to determine the rate of a falling ladder against a wall, or to find the missing length of a triangle. That doesn't mean learning the different math categories are not important.

"Math is used in everyday life and situations," senior Ashley Alexander says, "such as monetary means."

"It helps you manage your money, and I'm going to have lots of money," sophomore Joseph Hartenstine aspires. In a slightly more realistic sense, junior Jacob Breiner informs how "Math helps people get jobs." No matter what the situation, math is used everywhere. And while many of the subjects you learn in high school may not be revisited, high school is for arming yourself with knowledge and displaying the choices and paths you may take in life.

"It's difficult replicating the processes on the board and putting them on paper, but I know I need this information in the future," junior Jamie Alderiso says. One learns in life that it is sheer knowledge and intellect that will genuinely make them stand out amongst a crowd. Similar to meeting someone amazing in life, or visiting historic monuments, the knowledge one gains makes them better just to have known it...and that is what this "stuff" is needed for.

Propped Up

Seniors Jess Guro and Rebeka Torlay join Mrs. Chickey's AP English class in acting out Anglo-Saxon poetry. "I was just messing around, probably banishing demons or something," said Torlay.

There were the greats like Edgar Allen Poe and William Shakespeare, but no one compares to the teachers in the English department here at Liberty High School. These are definitely a few characters worth connecting with.

"My teacher, Mr. Hahn, taught me how to write lead-ins for quotes. It helped to always know which quote came from which character," explained junior Marissa Vitale. "There were many characters in the story, The Crucible, which made it interesting."

After many suspenseful stories and writing exciting essays, junior Joey Lasko remembered the things he'll need later in life.

"Mr. Hahn taught me how to write a strong thesis with topic sentences so that your essays stay on task."

According to freshman Joe Lule, his English class experience here at Liberty was one he will always remember.

"Miss Stoyko was always fun and she forced you to be creative and think for yourself. She changed a boring subject like learning poems into something fun by relating it to music that you like."

Many students have lost an interest in reading and analyzing stories or poems. But when you show up for an English class at Liberty High School, it's hard to lose interest. Whether it's role playing with Mrs. Chickey, storytelling with Mr. Tone, rockin' out with Miss Stoyko, or putting up with Mr. Hahn's corny jokes, the excitement is endless.

A process of answering the question WHY?

When the word "science" comes to mind, an involuntary groan immediately follows. Yet students find their own reasons for making science fun. For sophomore Isaiah West, the student teacher makes science fun.

"She's fun, outgoing, and doesn't fit the typical personality of a student teacher," West stated, "but I really want to learn about the surrounding environment and habitat." This common desire to learn also comes from the experiments done in science.

"I like working with all the different materials and seeing what they do to each other in the end," explained junior Taneka Johnson.

Experiments are the key words when dealing with science. Although not all teachers choose to teach with an experiment, but most of them do.

"The flame test is my favorite experiment to do with my students," said science teacher Mrs. Herbst.

Although students feel as if science may not be important to them in their career, It can further explain questions that most students need an answer to.

Senior Casey Jo Hill says, " It explains a lot about how the world works. I can better understand certain processes and I can now answer the question "WHY"."

Working on my FITNESS

With new renovations, the gym has become a safe and fun place for all students

For two quarters out of a semester, students participate in Liberty's excellent physical education program. Since construction has commenced, the students now have a large variety of activities. These activities include the fitness room, pool, auxiliary gym, and weight room. Each room is equally used by every class over the two quarters.

Our newly constructed pool is loved by everyone. Senior Dominique Holmes said, " The pool is huge, it's great for students who don't like to run, but love to swim! Kind of like me." While students are in the pool, instructors separate students into groups based on swimming ability. While in their groups, students learn a variety of swimming techniques including the breaststroke, tread water, and the backstroke.

In place of the old gym is the new auxiliary gym which is located right above the new cafeteria. It is now the main gym, where students take part in gym pastimes. Senior Josh Rowe exclaimed, "The new auxiliary gym is very spacious, and we have a ton of fun playing bombardment, mat ball, and basketball." With the gyms new rubber floor and protective mats, students have less impact pain from running and aren't injured as much.

To make way for the new fitness room, old health classrooms have been moved to different parts of the building. The fitness room offers a variety of cycling bikes, treadmills, and yoga mats so students can get their cardio on! Sophomore Virginia Cacciatore said "The fitness room is wonderful because we get to paticipate in yoga, and yoga refreshes the body and mind. It's nice being able to relax during the school day."

Finally, the new weight room is located under the bleachers of the Memorial Gym. The room has a variety of brand new weight lifting equipment, where students can lift during gym to make their after school lifting a bit easier. Senior Ben Bauman explained, "I love the new weight room. It's so much easier to lift during gym, so I don't have to after school."

The construction has truly benefited all students. With these new facilities, students are sure to be having fun while learning great ways to stay healthy!

Before beginning gym class, students get together with their class to do stretching. Limbering up before intense physical activity. Senior Elliot Paden stated, " I love to put on a mean game face to scare the little ones."

Senior Moriah Ernst loves the new auxilary, "Hockey is my favorite sport, its so nice having a new gym to play it in." Hockey is one of many sports students plat during gym class.

Learning NEW CULTURES

is learning through experience

No matter what culture or language, it is widely agreed on that knowledge is best attained through experience. Those who are greatly familiar with this are the teachers of the foreign language department, where teaching a new language is as difficult as learning it. Fortunately, the students of Liberty High are able to show commitment to their learning, especially through the use of field trips.

"Being in the classroom sort of prepares you for speaking with other natives, but in class, your teacher will know what you're trying to say if you aren't saying it correctly. When I went to France, speaking to other native French speakers was like being thrown into a river without knowing how to swim- but in a fun way," said senior Megan Kelleher. Compared to speaking a different language in the classroom, speaking a language where it is native takes one out of their comfort zone, forcing them to be part of a new experience and giving them an essence of authenticity. Not to mention, students find a new sense of fun in their language.

"This is the second year I've gone to Fiesta Ole and both times were great. Not only do we order our food in Spanish and listen to a mariachi band, but we have a tradition of celebrating Ashley Csaszar's "birthday", hence the sombrero," exclaimed junior Mitchell Hanna as he explains the annual Spanish class trip to the restaurant Fiesta Ole, and the fake celebration of a classmate's birthday for the sake of wearing a large sombrero. Even German students find educational fun in their trips to New York City and summer trips touring Germany where they get to experience authentic Germany and the beauty it holds. It is very apparent that Liberty knows the best way to learn, and that is by experience.

Students express themselves through various art classes

An easy way for students to express themselves if through something they enjoy doing. Photography, studio art, ceramics, and graphic art are just a few of the elective classes offered to do just that.

Every winter and spring, artshows are held to display some of the students best pieces that were made during the class. There are over 500 different pieces that are put in each show.

"The art show is an easy way for our pieces to be shown to everyone, and to let them know how much hard work is actually put into them during class. People think that just because it's and elective, we don't really have to put in our time and effort. We get graded, just like any other class" junior Mary Markovich added.

"My pinch-pot made it into the art show because Mrs. Landis thought it was really creative and unique. Everyone liked it alot, it took alot of hardwork too," freshman Staci Zsilavecz stated.

While some students are painting their feelings in studio art and playing with clay in ceramics, other students are expressing who they are through photography.

"During the class, Mr. Creyer taught us various ways to take pictures. He showed us how to develop the photos in the dark room with specific picture chemicals, and how to adjust the lighting to get our picture exactly how we wanted them," explained senior Nicole Cantelmi.

"Art is one of my passions, i love it so much. I'm taking some art classes when i get to college too.."

Business and technology classes provide students with hands-on experience

Very few students are certain of their future career goals by the time they enter high school. Some even graduate and go to college still undecided, because their interests are too varied for them to choose a single concentration.

For those who have their career path more or less figured out, Liberty offers a variety of electives to give students a head start towards their ultimate goals. For students who want to pursue a career in business or go into the technology field, there are over 40 courses offered by Business and Technology Department. These include accounting courses, contract and consumer law, various marketing classes, numerous computer programming courses, digital imaging, desktop publishing, web page design, CISCO networking classes and management courses.

"[The business classes] are realistic to the world. You learn what you need once you go out into the real world," said senior Lindsay McCornac, who has taken five different business and technology classes in her four years at Liberty.

Senior Abhiroop Das plans on getting his master's degree in business administration (MBA) someday. He said that the classes he has taken have provided him with real world applications. "A lot of the books we used are based on real life scenarios. The classes are definitely a step above from all the other classes because they gave me a better feel of what I will experience as a business major. Plus, they look good on your transcript when you are applying to colleges," he said.

For students who want an even larger learning ground for business, they can join the staff of the school store. Students can learn the methods of business management through hands-on experience, selling food and school merchandise to their fellow peers. There are also clubs like DECA and FBLA, which participate in various business competitions against schools around the area.

Cooking up SOME FUN!

Lights, Camera... COOK

The cooking classes that are offered for students are, Basic Foods, Creative Cooking, American Cooking East and West, and International Foods. Students are very fond of cooking classes because they get to eat their creations after they make them.

"Apple crisp was my absolute favorite dessert to make in my cooking class because it was a fun and easy recipe, when we did bake. I never left with an empty stomach," stated Clarissa Guzman. Before the students started a new cooking lesson, they learned about the culture and the background of the countries and or areas in which the recipes they cooked had originated.

Every year an individual from the Art Institute from Philadelphia comes and explains how their school works, and asks if any students are interested in attending. They also show the students a demonstration of a new recipe. It gives students an opportunity to make a decision if they would like to persue a culinary career.

Students also gained a lot of knowledge of the world. Students are taught the basic of kitchen safety and cooking first before they are allowed to start preparing the meal. "If it wasn't for this cooking class I've taken this year. I still would not know how to properly use an oven," laughed senior Karanda Erdman.

Most classes have students in and out of the kitchen creating a variety of different meals. They are properly taught how to prepare foods, from learning how to slice tomatoes, to making a full course meal.

Leaving these culinary courses, students have picked up a ton of information and skills on how to cook and use certain appliances. Students have realized that basically anyone can cook or prepare a meal.

linking GENERATIONS

Students teach children one child at a time

Exploring Childhood is one of the many classes students can take to learn more about careers in Early Childhood Education. Students can to experience first hand how to operate and work in daycare and preschool classes. Even though it is a class, students who are take the course feel as though it is more than just a class.

"I just really like kids," said senior John Fruano, one of the students in the class. "I want to have some of my own one day, you know?"

Mrs. Fowler, teacher of Exploring Childhood has spend the last four of her sixteen years as a teacher, in this class. "The purpose of this course is to prepare high school students for a career in teaching," stated Mrs. Fowler when asked about the course. In that regard Ayse Karaguduk, another senior in that class, feels as though the class is really helping her prepare for her future " My ultimate goal is to return to my country and go to school to learn to become a teacher," remarked Alyse when asked about her college plans. "However, if I were to go to school here I would probably go to Northampton Community College."

This class is a good first step for those of you who want to work with or even raise kids of your own. If you want to be a teacher, a social worker, a parent, or just like kids then this class is for you. The best part of this class is that the kids really enjoy it and have fun. At the end of the day, you walk away from the class with a feeling of pride and joy in the fact that you made a difference in someone elses life. It's always a good feeling to know that you are linking generations, one child at a time.

Music continues to affect the daily moods of students lives

Liberty takes great pride in its music program, which includes a large range of classes to fulfill the thriving mind of talented students. Classes include band, woman's ensemble, choraliers, the fundamentals of music, music theory, music technology, voice classes, jazzy improvisations, and the history of music. While in these classes, students learn a variety of different skills from how to sing and play to discovering the roots of music.

Sophomore Hailee Cruz took a voice class with Mr. Klenk. "It was a great experience, I love to sing and this class really taught me to use my voice to its fullest potential." Junior Christian Conrad found his calling in the music theory class. "Music theory is an amazing class because of the one-on-one with your music teacher while you learn." In music theory students learn how to write chords, even how to write their own music.

"Without our school's music program many students wouldn't be inspired to further their music talents. With this program, students don't just get inspired, they inspire everyone who hears their music," says senior Jake Dunn. Every student who participates in the music program is more than happy to dedicate countless hours to their instruments and their talents.

Junior Whitley Ambrose has been playing piano for two years. "Its so relaxing," replied Ambrose.

Senior Adrienne Gosztonyi has been playing the French horn for four years. " Playing is great," stated Gosztonyi.

The students were seperated into groups and were given a tour of all the different aspects of the college. They were even able to experience some of the programs first hand.

learning outside SCHOOL

We all remember those field trips our teachers took us on in elementary and middle school. They would organize several small trips for the induvidual classes and then plan an exciting end of the year trip for everyone. Some were more educational and less interesting than others, but whether it was something you found entertaining or not, it gave us the opportunity to get out of school for an entire day and spend time with our friends.

This year, the Microsoft User classes were given the chance to go on a field trip to Northampton Community College. They were able to tour the campus and were given an insight to all the different career programs and courses offered. For lunch they were treated to the North-Hampton Winds, where students at the college do all the cooking. It was a great experience for the Liberty students to not only enjoy themselves outside the classroom but to learn something as well.

The Illick's Mill Project celebrates their success

Over the past few years Illick's Mill has helped transformed the local community. Students are given the opportunity to have a hands on experience working with local businesses. Riverfusion is their largerst fundraiser run by the students. It brings local bands, musicians and artists together for a fun experience of cultural togetherness. Bands and artists range from local students to famous artists.

Riverfusion 2009 had one of the most positive outcomes ever for Illick's Mill. This past year Illicks Mill featured the band State Radio, bringing one of the largest crowds to the event.

Restoring the Mill is the priority focus ot the students, it is a large community service project for the better of the community. This will benefit the younger age groups in the future. Children will be able to tour the Mill and exprience the atmosphere. The students in Illick's Mill are a great benefit to the community and are working for a safe enviornment for future children.

Acing the TESTS

Students study, cram, stress and work hard for a good grade.

Stress and aggravation can sum up the dreaded annual Pennsylvania's System of Schools Assessment given to the junior class. The class of 2010 had the most stress placed on them because of the past failing years. The test is a way for the Pennsylvania Department of Education to measure how well the school is performing academically, and how well the teachers are teaching.

It is now a requirement to pass the PSSA in order to graduate from high school. Failed attempts to pass the PSSA in the past years were a main cause of the curriculum to become stricter, and many activities were canceled or restricted in order to put more concentration on the classroom.

Many changes have been made in order to improve the scores of the PSSA. Mentoring programs were added and PSSA practice sheets were given out once week. All of the additions and changes are supposed to help improve the scores.

Most students in the past have never really thought of the PSSA as a serious test. However, Mrs. Durante and the Liberty High School faculty quickly established the importance of the test and how it is necessary to do well. The Juniors are more focused and realize the importance of the Standardized Test. Junior Bryanna Garnett says, "I do take the test seriously and I do not think it is hard," She also added, "I feel the restrictions are not a good thing for students that actually do well on the test." Junior Patricia Leeson says, "I take the PSSA's seriously since it is a graduation requirement." She also felt that, "The test is not hard and the students who do well on the test should not be penalized."

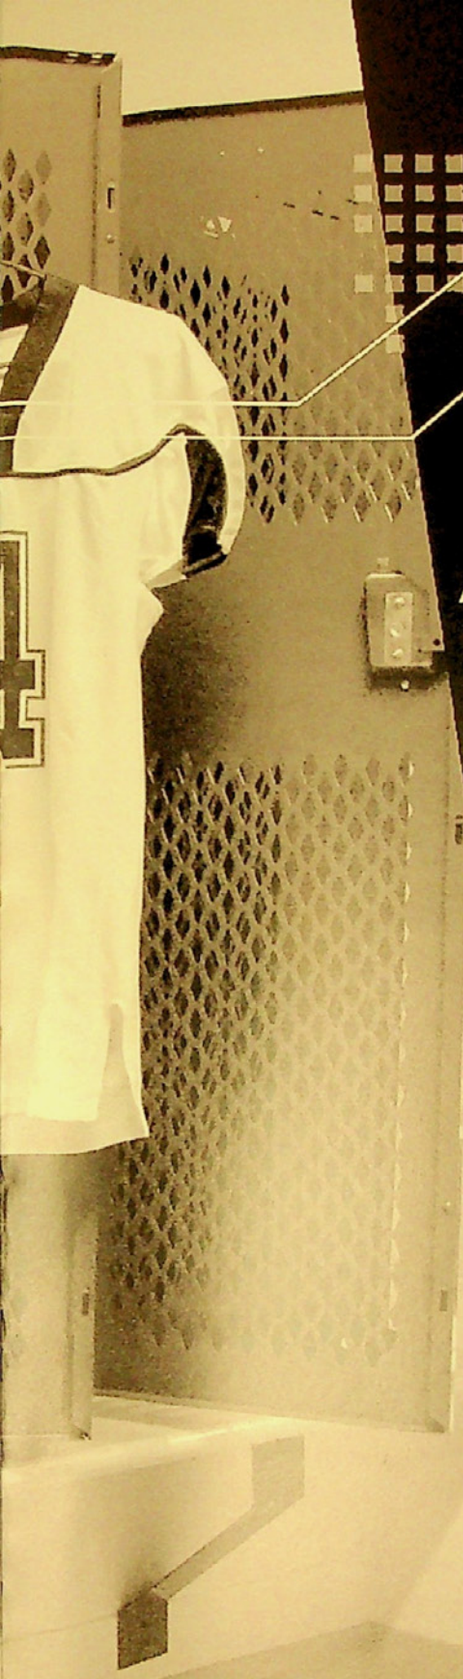
ATHLETICS



All forms of athletics stem back from the ancient gladiators in the coliseums, where winning meant everything. Where winning was based not just on how strong or skilled you were, but by how you and your fellow gladiators were able to come together and think as one, as well as how much blood, sweat and tears you left on the battlefield. Where the only way to earn honor and respect was based on how badly you beat your opponent.

All these centuries and empires later, nothing has changed. In 2008-2009, we watched Bethel Park's quarterback drop back to pass at the State Final game and held our breath as we watched Junior Anthony Gonzales go up to intercept the pass. Then we jumped out of our seats in celebration when the referees ruled it an interception, giving Liberty a state championship title. We also watched Sophomore Jess Cygan dash her way to victory at the State Final for Cross Country, as well as Junior Patricia Leeson out swim the competion, placing second in both 50 yard and 100 yard freestyle at States. The girl's basketball team came together as one, winning the district title, as well as the boy's basketball team making it to State Playoffs.

The honor and respect, as well as comradery, that comes along with being on a Liberty sport's team stays with you forever. Now, whether you're family like the football team, or have one focus like the boy's swim team:

This is Liberty, and we are Athletics

The team that made dreams come true

Layout and Copy By: Gabrielle Pirozzi

When you think of Liberty High School athletics, you imagine the competition throughout our district, our fierce rivalry with Freedom, or a sports team moving onto post-season play. The 08-09 Liberty football team concurred the unthinkable and not only made it to the state championship but defeated Bethel Park, and brought home a state title.

"Everything we worked for paid off in the end. Every speed training, practice, and weight we lifted was all worth it," explained senior Obed Cruz.

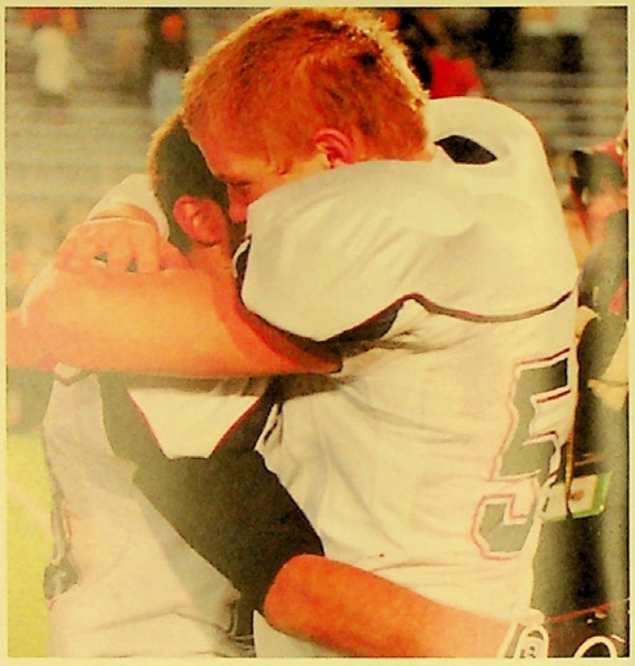
The whole Bethlehem community headed out to Hershey Park Stadium on December 13, 2008 for a 7 o'clock showdown against Bethel Park High School out of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The air was bone chilling and you could easily see your own breath.

"It was freezing outside, but the pain and the cold was all worth it when it came down to winning the state championship," stated junior Rashod Knight.

It was a head to head battle and every second of the game counted. The boys proved that they could defeat the number one ranked football team in Pennsylvania.

"We were not picked to win, and so many people had their doubts, and because some people did not believe in us the victory is even more enjoyable," said senior Christian Rodriguez.

It was the highlight of athletics for the whole entire sports year. It was never accomplished before by a Liberty football team, and the boys will cherish the title forever, being the Pennsylvania State Champions. They made history.



Hold That Line

The defensive line goes head to head with Bethel Park's offense. "The feeling is so intense when you are down in your stance about to tackle the person in front of you," stated senior Al Pujols.

United as ONE

The boys came together as a family to tackle a season full of obstacles.

The most astounding part about the football team for the 2008-2009 season was their unity as a family. With every interview, each player agreed that this year was set apart from others because of how much they bonded. Not only did they win states, but they came together as one. "We played together as a family, not just individuals," replied senior Christopher Rider.

Despite losing their first game this year, they used their determination to have a nearly perfect season for the games that followed. "The focus and determination level rose to a new expectation. Each teammate played for each other," stated senior Obed Cruz.

One may wonder how they came out with such a flawless season, and every player agreed that it all had to do with practice. However, they also agreed that practice was the hardest part about playing football. "The hardest thing about football is definetly practice, but it only makes the games easier!" described senior Connor Williams.

> "People doubted us. They didn't think we would make it as far as we did. But we proved them wrong, we came together as a family, and this has been the greatest season any of us could have ever imagined."
> - Senior Devin Street

However, behind all hard work is a reason for devoting one's self to the game. " Coach Moncman influenced me to play football, and I really enjoy the relationship you build with your teammates and coaches" stated Levi Brown. As the season came to a close the boys became more connected than ever and closer to the largest reward on their road to the state championship.

It was all about working hard and having fun for this years boys soccer team. From the beginning of tryouts, their goal was to be the fittest team in the conference. The tone of the season was set during the first week of tryouts when the players found out that they were going to have two four-hour practices a day for seven days straight. The boys started off strong and worked together as a team to get through the rough tryouts. "We played well as a team and really united as a family," stated senior Daniel Sawyer.

The most important and meaningful win of the boys season occurred against Emmaus. The game was tough and did not end until junior Josh Hoff scored the winning shot from thirty yards away from the goal during overtime. "That was a huge win for us since it was the first time any team that Coach Horvath coached won against [Emmaus]," exclaimed senior Christopher Bedoya.

All of their hard work and dedication paid off when they reached quarterfinals in playoffs. Although it ended with a loss, all of the players including Coach Horvath were proud of themselves for coming together as a whole and making it that far. They didn't play as individuals, they played as a family, and even through the pain, they had fun and were overall satisfied with how the season played out.

Four Brothers

"Me and the captains all got along. We felt like we were all brothers. And the whole team felt like the rest of our family," senior Nick Cygan.

All or Nothing

"Every game we played our hearts out and we tried to leave everything we had on the field," said senior Danny Sawyer.

The girls field hockey team was a very young team this year with only three seniors. At the start of the girls season, they were not favored to have a winning team. The team, led by captains Katie Piazza, Sam Dartouzos, and Victoria DelToro, wanted to prove everyone wrong.

They worked extremely hard the whole summer; running despite the hot summer months, having practices four hour practices each day, and, on top of all that, most of the team volunteered their time to participate in a summer league in order to better themselves individually and as a team.

Junior Ashley Csaszar stated, "Preseason is the most difficult part of the season. Coming back full-time along with the start of the school year approaching is difficult in terms of conditioning, skills, and physical capability for the regular season."

Although the team's record did not reflect that of a winning team, they succeeded in other ways.

"Even though we lost more games than we won, we always tried our hardest and never gave up." commented sophomore Ashley Benbenek.

The girls were not just a team, but more like family.

"No one offers more support than those working towards the same goal-- your teammates," stated Csaszar.

Dartouzous agrees and loves that field hockey is very "team oriented," saying, "The team can't be successful because of one player; [field hockey] brings everyone together."

"This year the girls were the closest the team has ever been, and the team will be really strong next year," commented Piazza. Nothing but a bright future is in store for the upcoming team.

Coming Together

The team may not have had the best season, but they were a close team, always working together. Senior Sam Dartouzos stated, "We worked really hard to beat teams we lost to the first time and prove that we were competition and couldn't be taken lightly."

Senior Katie Piazza displays here skills on offense. "I love the team aspect of field hockey. All the girls on the team gel together. We are like one big family," described Piazza.

Junior Taylor Mihalik drives past a Becahi opponent. "I love playing because all the girls put forth so much effort. Every girl on the team is there for the same reason. It's the drive and dedication that each girl has that makes me love field hockey," described Mihalik.

She Shoots...

Sophomore Sarah Lindemuth attempts to get a shot off the goalie. " The intensity of scoring a goal is so fufilling," described Lindemuth.

Eye of the Tiger

Freshman Alyssa Woefel keeps her eye on the ball with intentions on passing to her teammates. " My favorite part about field hockey is feeling the adrenaline in you when you are running down the field," explained Woefel.

Fighting Back

Junior Meghan Seifert fights for the ball, striving to show off her defensive skills. "I like the aggressiveness of the game because it's fun," described Seifert.

Playing sports in high school is one thing, but playing in college is the ultimate extreme. Senior Victoria DeToro achieved an amazing goal by becoming a member of the DeSales University girls field hockey team. " Playing at a college level allows each individual player to work hard, play hard, and ultimately win. I'm super excited for a whole new level of intensity," stated DelToro. Victoria DelToro has been playing field hockey for five years as goalkeeper. This past season, she was one of three seniors and the only one to persue field hockey at the college level.

You know a team is intense when they can be found running miles around the track during preseason. The girls' volleyball team is all about playing together and staying focused on the court. Unless, of course, you are seniors Emily Keim, Andrea Heimsoth and Morgan Litak, who get focused by dancing together as part of their pregame ritual.

"It gets us relaxed and warmed up for the game. They are my best friends so dancing with them makes the pregame fun," according to Keim.

After miles around the track, hours of conditioning, and a little bit of fun on the side, the 9-7 varsity girls' volleyball team came together to make their season complete with a winning record.

Senior Heather Lawrence thought that the team was very close and no one was excluded. However, Lawrence's favorite memory of the season certainly brought the varsity together—against the underclassmen, that is.

"My most memorable moment was when we drug the JV players out of the car to bombard them with buckets of water and water balloons," Lawrence reminisced.

According to freshman Courtney Kassis, a JV player, the attack was not expected at all. "They [the varsity players] were really aggressive! Both teams were having their own sleepover and they pulled us out of the car and threw water balloons at us."

Whether the girls are attacking their opponents by day or attacking the JV team by night, this volleyball team is connected at the seam.

An unforgettable milestone was reached this season when senior Andrea Heimsoth set 1,000 assists in her career. In volleyball, the team must earn a point from the play for it to count as an assist for Heimsoth after she passes the ball to her teammate.

Coach Ginnie Rohn noted the achievement as one of the biggest of the season. "[Andrea] is a leader and motivator on the court. She plays multiple positions, so she is always in the game. Andrea is the 'quarterback' on the volleyball court," complimented Coach Rohn.

Sweet Serve

Senior Devin Matyus intensely winds up to hit her serve. "There is a lot of pressure when serving because you're the one starting the point. Plus if you miss, the other team wins the point," Matyus explained.

Competitive Edge

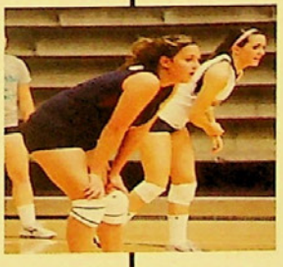
Sophomore Emily Werkheiser leaps above the net to tap the ball over. "The competitiveness in a game is what I enjoy most about volleyball. It helps to play on varsity with juniors and seniors," said Werkheiser.

Take a Breather

First year head coach Ginnie Rohn instructs her team as the girls focus in during a timeout. Senior captain Morgan Litak said, "Timeouts are important because it gives the team a chance to take a break and re-gather.

Rising Star

Junior Katelynn Strohl rises up to attempt to score on the opposing team. Katelynn is one of the girls on the team with a lot of experience. "I've wanted to become a volleyabll player since back in the seventh grade," Strohl recalled.



Keys to Success

Junior Kayla Strunk (left) and senior Emily Keim pay close attention awaiting the next play. Strunk claimed that "It's not hard to stay focused during the game because each player has a desire to win."

The Rivalry

The JV team respectfully shakes hands with their rival, Freedom, after defeating them in a tight game. "Beating Freedom was the most memorable part of the season!" added sopohomore Dior George.

Striving for the FINISH

Despite a young team, boys finish the year with some strong wins

The 2008 season was a great one for the boy's cross-country team. This was the first season with Jeff Karwacki as head coach; in past years Bill Ruth led the team to victories. The team ran twelve meets this season and lost only one against Parkland.

At the Hershey Invitational, the boys were congratulated with eighth place out of twenty-five total schools. As their season continued, the entire team became more prepared to run their hardest and push their limits. Junior John Sorenson said "The hardest part about cross country is pushing yourself to your limits and to keep going as hard as you can to the end, even when you're exhausted and gasping for air."

At the end of the season, the team competed in three final meets. At the Lehigh Valley Conference meet the boys came in second out of twelve schools. At the District meet they came in first place, and at the final meet of the season, the state meet, the team came in seventeenth place out of a total of twenty-four schools. Their final League standing record was 10-1.

Junior Joe Garvey said, "Running isn't exactly what I would call a fun sport, but I enjoy it because after every work out and race I feel fulfilled and healthy, that's why I like it."

In 1988, the boy's cross-country team broke the school's home course record. In 2008, Jon Bogart shattered that record again. "Jon Bogart makes excuses to be at practice, not the other way around," says Karwacki. Bogart was named LVC boys MVP and LVC all-star, along with Hoffman.

Senior Tommy Hoffman stated, "We weren't expected to be the best in the district but people stepped up and we showed we were the best." Hoffman was also a key runner to the team this season; he was an LVC and District 11 championship medalist. Besides some significant injuries on the team this season, the boys took the District 11 title by one point. They came together as a team, worked their hardest, and it paid off.

Ready...Set...Go!

As the boys cross country team starts off one of thier first races of the season, they start off strong and ready to push through any obstacles that may show up along their course.

Push to Finish

Senior Jon Bogart said, "The mental focus is the hardest part about running cross-country, it takes a real determination to stay focused." Bogart will be attending Seton Hall in the fall with an athletic scholarship for cross-country.

Teamwork Pays Off

The boys this year were a very close team. Many of them were even close friends. Senior Tommy Hoffman said, " What I enjoy most is being with the team, they're really fun kids to hang out with.

Last Stretch

Sophomore Keegan Boyle said, "Pushing yourself past the naturally set limits that your body wants; unlike other sports cross country requires extremely good fitness and an individual longing to win."

Way to Finish!

Junior Brian Borosky explains, "The hardest part about cross country is having a bad race, nagging injury, or a period of fatigue."

Starting off Strong

Junior Josh Hitchings states, "You have to find your pace for the first mile and work to maintain that pace throughout the whole race."

Congratulations!

After a race the boys congratulate each other. During races they cheer each other on and give everyone encouragement.

Staying Together

Seniors Tommy Hoffman and Jake Dunn stick together during a race. Junior John Sorensen follows close behind. "Running with the team and training to get in shape is the best part of cross country," said Sorensen.

Navigating the COURSE

A team that works together wins together

Layout and Copy By: Alana Augello

The sound of the shotgun firing, the heart beating non-stop, feet quivering. Before they have time to blink, the girls are off and running at full speed, going and going, pushing and pushing until the split second when they cross the line. These are the intense feelings racing through the runners mind during a race. A team that works together wins together. This year the girls cross country team proved this statement true. The team placed 2nd at districts as well as placing 4th out of 264 runners at states. These were both amazing successes that brought the team together.

Senior captain Erika Smull stated, "Pennsylvania is one of the most competitive states for running and to rank 4th in the nation is a major accomplishment."

Many doubted the team because of the loss of the legendary Mr. Bill Ruth as head coach. Despite the loss, new head coach Mr. Jeff Karwacki assisted, pushed, and supported each girl individually as well as a whole team and as a result they scored times better than ever.

The sweat dripping from their foreheads, the feet scampering around the track, the sun beating down, these girls never stopped. Even when there was injury they were still finding some way to keep up with the team. Dedication, perseverance, positive attitudes, great work and great work ethic are just a few ways to explain their strive for success. Countless hours spent preparing and training for their upcoming season. A mere two weeks after the school year is complete the team immediately begins to train. As well as training and preparing for meets the team also bonded together off the track.

"All the girls are really close. The seniors are very supportive and encouraging," stated freshman Amy Darlington.

All teams will bond in and out of season. Members of this team take bonding to the next level. Traditions are a big role in keeping the teams bonded as one. The annual pasta party is a time when these girls get together and spend time with one another. It is a very relaxed atmosphere and a great way to talk to members of the team for inspirational messages before upcoming meets. Besides pasta parties, the team blasts music in the locker room and gets pumped up for the meets together by having enjoyable moments together as a team.

Sophomore Ellen Walker stated, " I run cross country because of the team, it makes it fun."

Blinding Success

Despite the baking sun and the intense anxiety of having to race your fastest, Senior Lily Morgan leads the team through their final stride. " There are certain moments when you know the whole team is ready to race and we all work off the energy of each other," stated Morgan.

It's in the CLUB

Golf is a mental game; success is found in choosing the right club

Golf is a graceful sport of concentration and talent, where one swing of the club can cause a whirlwind of frustration, or it could lead you to the sweet taste of success. Hard work and concentration helped Seniors Scott Kalamar and Aaron Thieme find success by achieving their goal and making it to districts. "I just did what I thought was my job by coming in as low as possible every match to give our team a chance to win," comments Senior Aaron Thieme.

Senior Andrew Danga-Storm, who has been on the golf team for 1 year, recalls one of his fine moments of success this season, "I was behind a tree and I knew where the hole was but the tree was in the way. So I hit it over the tree and got it into the putting green." The team as a whole faced many obstacles but it was the individual player that helped the team overcome Danga-Storm believes such success comes from "trying your best."

Senior Ryan Pacala believes the best way to focus is to just relax when taking a swing. "I try not to take it too seriously. I just try to have fun with it," explains Pacala.

The team's effort lead them to a quite successful season, considering the loss of many players, ending with a record of 6 wins and 7 losses, including the team's best score in a match, 85, against Stroudsburg. Adding to the team's record were the district qualifiers, Seniors Scott Kalamar and Aaron Thieme.

A few, seemingly short years down the road, one of these talented golfers might be seen on the screen, playing alongside Tiger. Just remember, always keep your eye on the ball.

Junior Rachel Hoffman played her part in making a name for the girl's tennis team this season. She finished in fourth place at the LVC tournament, and was extremely proud of her accomplishments as well as those of her teammates.

Determination!

A perfect combination of diligent work and fun paid off this season for senior Julie Brugger. "I practiced hard and still had a lot of fun and our season went really well," Brugger said.

Working hard and making history

Seventy-eight feet of dark green asphalt is what the girl's tennis team has to look forward to at the beginning of each school year. The girls began their season with a 6-1 loss to Stroudsburg, but battled back to achieve a winning season, and to extend their efforts into disrtict playoffs. Junior Rachel Hoffman said, "This is the strongest team so far, with solid players in both singles and doubles."

Senior Nikki Arnold and junior Catherine Noack placed fourth in district doubles, and Noack, along with Hoffman, took fourth place in the Lehigh Valley Conference Tournament. "No one ever thinks of Liberty girls' tennis as being decent, so it felt good to be a part of the team that made it the farthest in districts in our team's history," Noack said of the team's accomplishment.

The girls unwavering perserverence in the face of their opponents paid off when they ended the season in third place in the LVC. "Two years ago we made it to the second round in districts, but lost to Bangor, and this year we made it to semi-finals," Hoffman stated with pride.

The team, coached by Mr. Leo Schnalzer, made school history, advancing to district semi-finals, and managed to prove that their team was a force to be reckoned with. "Next year, other teams will see us as a bigger threat and a possible championship contender," said Noack.

Junior Catherine Noack was extremely proud of the success that her team had this season. "It felt good to know that every individual victory counted for the total team's success," Noack exclaimed.

Lasting Support

Becoming a family was a leading factor of the successes this season. Senioir Evelyn Snyder said, "No matter what the outcome was, we always cheered each other on and supported the girls on the court."

Senior Bond

A tight-knit group of senior girls helped to lead team this year. Katie Milite, Julie Brugger, Nikki Arnold, Candace Copio, Evelyn Snyder, and Adriana Rivera, rounded out the successful seniors. "We had really good senior leadership and we were all really close," stated Brugger.

Flying To VICTORY

Some don't consider it a sport, but it is more than that.

Most senior cheerleaders will tell you that their football season ended the same as every year, but the seniors of 2009 will tell you a different story. Senior Gabrielle Pirozzi explains, "football season is my favorite season, and I never want it to end, but ending it with a State Championship was the icing on the cake."

When this group of girls aren't cheering their team to a state championship, they are also entertaining the students at the pep rallies, but no pep rally was more entertaining than the co-ed cheerleading. "Co-ed cheerleading allowed us to show the guys what cheerleading is really like," comments senior Emily Fondl. Senior Paige Johnson says, "I love co-ed! It's most peoples favorite part about prep rallies and for me its probably one of my favorite things we do during cheerleading. It's fun to see all of the guys cheer and shows them what we are about and we gain the respect of them."

Not only was it a championship season but the girls also had an exciting experience by going to a competition in Florida. This wasn't easy for them, the girls had to fight for the school board to let them go. Cheerleaders had to do numerous things to go on this trip. They had to fight at the school board meeting, raise lots of money, and fundraise like no other.

Season Highlights

Varsity made the state playoffs for the 4th year in a row. Varsity won their first league title in over 40 years. Junior Varsity ended the year with a 10 game winning streak.

Slam it through FOR TWO

There was something absent from the team this year. They had the talent and determination to win but the lack of their late coach, Todd Rothrock. Coach Landis had a tough act to follow when he took over the position of head coach. As the team was missing coach Rothrock, another uphill battle was forced upon the team when four of their five starters were not able to attend the games in the beginning of the season. Three of the starters, Juniors Jarrod West and Anthony Gonzalez, and Senior Christian Rodriguez were part of the football team and as the basketball season began they were still on their way to becoming state champions. The fourth starter, Darrun Hilliard, unfortunately entered the season with an injury.

"It was a big disappointment not being out there with my team, knowing I worked so hard and I wasn't able to be playing the first two games of the season," explained Sophomore Darrun Hilliard.

The season started off on a rocky road. Landis did not panic and worked patiently with the team, and as the four starters quickly came back, the season began to progress. Teamwork, motivation, and determination lead the varsity team to an overall 18-10 record, which proceeded to the LVC finals with a 10 point win against Parkland. Being league champions was a huge accomplishment for the team. It was Liberty's first league championship since 1963. They continued on to districts where they placed 3rd and ended their season in the PIAA State tournament.

Slam Dunk!

Junior Jarrod West makes the crowd go wild by dunking the ball for a sweet victory. "It's a lot of pressure trying to keep the game in our hands but in the end the hardwork pays off."

In memory of Todd Rothrock

Todd Rothrock served as a head coach of Liberty High School boys basketball team. He ended his seven-year career at Liberty with a District 11 AAAA championship in 2008. He was named co-coach of the year by Morning Call and in 2006 coach of the year by The Express Times. To all he was much more than just a coach. " Coach Rothrock was a huge reason for the success that I've experienced while playing for Liberty. On and off the court, he was someone who I respected and loved and I will never forget what he taught me and I'll be a much better person because of him," stated senior Aaron Thieme. At the age of 48 he was stricken with a series of strokes and passed away a few days later. A ceremony was held in his memory before Friday nights Liberty-Becahi game in the memorial gym. The video tribute featured comments from coach Landis, opposing coaches, former players and Todd's son Tyler. A framed red sweater vest (Rothrock's predominate game wear) was presented to his family as well as a plaque that will be presented in Memorial Gym. $3,100 of donations was given to the Todd Rothrock Memorial Scholarship Fund. Todd Rothrock is missed dearly but he will forever have a place in our hearts.

Against ALL ODDS

With a major loss, the girls come back and prove themselves.

Its been 9 years since the girls took home a District 11 title, but the 2009 Girls Basketball Team brought the trophy back to Liberty. They had a very successful season under the leadership of Senior captain Brianna Knipe and Coach Tone.

"As much as I hated practicing everyday for two and a half hours, all that hard work payed off," explained Junior April Andrews.

The teams success can be attributed to the numerous hours of hard work, dedication, and perserverance.

Senior Brianna Knipe explains, "Winning Districts was one of my most favorite moments of this season."

The Girls Varsity Basketball Team overcame many obstacles throughout their season. Dealing with these obstacles the team grew closer together as a family and a team.

Junior Catherine Noack states, "We've been through a lot but still work hard and end up successful."

The team compensated for their missing players and kept on working hard to cover the holes that were left.

One Team ONE FOCUS

With new facilities and new goals the boys strived for their best this season.

As competitors in a sport that requires not only physical strength but mental endurance as well, one would expect swimmers to be pretty tense and totally stressed out. According to the boys swimming and diving team this year, this couldn't be farther from the truth. "We have a very laid back attitude with no tension among us," explained senior Kyle Troxell, "We motivated each other and cheered each other on."

The boys made it to the 2009 District 11 Championship meet, unfortunatly they didn't place. Even though the boys lost four big meets against Easton, Parkland, Freedom, and Emmaus, the rest of the season was very successful. The 400 Free Relay team accomplished placing fourth at districts and had the fastest free relay time since 1997. Junior Evan Klokis was part of that relay team, he stressed, "One of my goals for this season was to place at districts, and we accomplished that."

The boys were all about team mottos this year to achieve their goals. "If they're going to beat us, they will have to try their absolute hardest." This is what head coach Reik Foust said before every meet, and it worked. Many of the boys said this helped them get pumped up and ready to swim their hardest. Senior diver Elliott Paden made it to districts and sophomore Jacob Kelhart came very close. Although there were only two boy divers they did exceptionally well and made it farther than anyone expected them to.

This season there was a group of four boys who, as a team, reached a goal that they never thought possible. Senior Kyle Troxell, and Juniors, Evan Kokis, Alex Clow, and Josh Hitchings worked together at practice every day. Just like everyone else they put in their time and effort many hours a week at morning lifting practice and after school practice as well. These four boys were district medal winners in the 400 yard freestyle relay.

Straight up out THE WATER

With my swimming goggles

For many people, swimming is a solo sport. But to this group of girls it is a family. During the season, each teammate considered one another as sisters. "We do a lot of team bonding and we are always together. Even after the season ended, we still hung out and did things like go out for dinner," stated Senior Lauren Leon.

They showed their strong loving compassion for the sport not only by cheering each other on, but by making it to states and placing outstanding new records. Juniors Patricia Leeson, Andie Breslin, Katie Cowen and seniors Taryn Lushinsky, Lauren Leon, and Randi Bosch represented the swim team at the PIAA State Swimming Championship at Bucknell University during two days in March. "The most memorable part of the season was making it to districts and states. It was an amazing experience and I'll never forget it," described Senior Randi Bosch.

Aside from having strong agility, the girls found another way to prepare themselves for meets. To stay occupied and become more focused, they put on their headphones and got their "head in the game" while listening to upbeat music. "I always jam out to my ipod. I listen to anything that can pump me up while dancing around. I love to shake it like a polaroid picture." explained Junior Patricia Leeson.

Saying Goodbye

"We were superduper close this year with the seniors, so it was hard knowing it would be the last season with them. Everyone was beginning their search for colleges and it was a reality check of how soon they were leaving." stated junior Patrica Leeson.

Reverse the ACTION

Competitors turn to charms, routines for luck on the mat.

Most rituals and superstitions are derived from fear, and there's nothing a wrestler fears more than losing. Sometimes it's as simple as a stuffed doll, a necklace, or even playing a song over and over again that gets 'em pumped. Wrestlers have been known to use the same warm-up outfit before each match and refuse to wash it until a particular streak has been broken. Some won't shave before a match, others won't cut their hair until they lose. Junior Garret Henning stated, "I break a sweat, warm my body up so I am ready to compete!" The goal is to find that final focus before walking out onto the mat.

Another part of their fear is making their weight class. Junior Zachary Price said, "cutting weight is the hardest part about wrestling." To every wrestler, a scale is not just a scale. It's the judge. It is the gateway to your success. If you don't make weight all of your hard work and sacrifice are for nothing. The more sacrifice, the greater the reward. The harder you work and prepare, the more meaning the outcome. A normal diet for the wrestlers consists of power bars, fruits, salad, bagels and powerade mixed with water. There is nothing more definitive and complete than beating another man on the mat.

Coach Jody Karam gives the boys rough practices usually every day, He also switches up the routine daily to keep the boys in shape. Coach Karam starts them off with a mile run around the track, which prepares them for the mat and their next competition. "Practices are really challenging, especially the PTA, which requires us to run the bleachers carrying weights, or each other," stated junior Ryan Kisslinger.

The varsity wrestling team finishes their season with sixteen wins and five loses while the junior varsity finished with fourteen wins and 1 loss. "It has been a great honor throughout my years of wrestling, the season this year definitely will lead me to future success." said senior Matty Royer.

A calm, mental mindset is the key to winning this sport

Unlike most sports teams, the rifle team does not have adrenaline rushed, excitment filled pep talks right before the team faces an oppenent. There is no trash talking and there are no hyperactive team members. There is nothing but a quiet, calm rifle range. This is because rifle is a sport that requires extreme mental concentration. If one of the team members gets excited or something happens that upsets them right before they shoot, their aim can be way off. In this sport, they need to remain calm and collected. Missing by just a little can cost the team points, which in turn, can cause them to lose a match. As for the Liberty rifle team, losing is not an option they care to entertain. Ready, aim...

More than JUST A GAME

The girls combined friendship and winning

The returning varsity players lost many talented seniors from the previous season. They entered this season worried about the amount of players that woud come out for the team. When they stepped onto the turf field to start their first spring practice, they realized there was no need for their worrying. Senior girls including Nikki Arnold, Liz Steinberg, Victoria Deltoro, and Morgan Litak, decided to return and give soccer their last try since not playing for many years. Each of them helped immensely in their last high school sport season, while Litak scored the only goal in the Emmaus game. She stated, "I played soccer my senior year because my friends went out for the team, and I've always loved the game. I didn't want to leave high school with the regret of never playing in my four years at Liberty". With the help of these seniors and the returning allstars, Coach Jason Horvath lead them to an incredible season. While the team didn't make it to districts because of their loss against Freedom, their upset over Easton topped the whole season. Senior Devin Matyus scored the winning goal, assisted by junior Rachel Hoffman, to make the final score 3-2. "The win over Easton was one of the biggest wins in my four years of being on the team, and it may have been the biggest in our program history. The goal was all teamwork, but it was a great feeling to be a part of it", Matyus recalls. Hopefully the upcoming senior girls will get the same amount of help next spring season.

Season Highlights

This season the boys volleyball team had a rough start. After their first seven games their record was two wins and five losses. They turned things around at the Central Catholic game, winning three to zero. After that the team won eight straight games in a row, even defeating Emmaus three to two. It was one of the most thrilling games this season. They continued their winning ways and ended with a record of ten wins and seven losses. The season as a whole was good for this impressive volleyball team.

Another Successful Season

At the end of a successful season, the Hurricanes quailified for a District XI pool play and had an overall winning record of 10-7. The team had a slow start, but worked hard to win. "We turned it on halfway through the season, winning 8 straight games at one point," said Coach Ammary.

One of the biggest highlights from the season was the 3-2 upset win over Emmaus. This was the team's turning point, winning another 4 straight games after that.

Seniors Taylor Bates and Tim Haddigan worked hard all season and were honored as League and District All-Stars. "I worked hard all season and it felt really good to recieve an award for all of my achievements," explained Bates. The team proudly ended their season as fifth in the Final League Standing.

Season Highlights

The boys tennis team finished 4th in the Lehigh Valley Conference. In the LVL Tournament, senior Sean Morrison took 3rd place in #1 singles, while junior Chris Conrad placed 2nd in #3 singles. The doubles teams of seniors Sean Sakdiponephong and Abhiroop Das and junior Gardiner Kreglow and senior Lovel Elvins both took 4th place. The team made it to the District XI playoffs, where they were seeded 4th. They lost, however, to Stroudsburg in the 1st round. Morrison and senior Michael Stehlin competed in the doubles district tournament, where they made it to the quarterfinals, before losing to a tough Parkland team. Morrison was also named first team All League this season. Overall, the team was very successful and exceeded the goals they had set in the beginning of season.

All in

Coach Leo Schnalzer talks to the entire team during a practice. "Our preparation for districts was really no different than preparing for every other match. We followed the same routine and focused on what we had been trying to improve upon all season."

Chemistry is key

Taking a dive

Junior Avinash Lingwal dives for the ball during a doubles match against Allen. "A lot of the doubles players struggled this year, since we had a lot of new players coming in and few of us have played this position before," he said.

TEARING UP the courts

To end the season with a winning record and a district qualification was the boys' tennis team goal from the start. And they did just that - capping off with a 10-4 record and a 4th seed at districts.

But at the end of it all, this year's season meant more to the team than numbers and records.

"We had a great record, but beyond that record, we've been very successful. It all comes down to how we performed throughout the season, and I think we have definitely worked hard to improve our playing," said junior Gardiner Kreglow.

The team began their season with a shaky start, due to a number of adjustments in the lineup. They also had to deal with uncooperative weather that forced a lot of their matches to be postponed, taking away from the team's practice time.

They rallied as the season went on, however, and managed to pull off a key win against Freedom and deliver impressive performances at the Lehigh Valley Conference tournament.

The team ended up losing their first round match at team districts against Stroudsburg, however, after two players sustained injuries during their matches.

Past the wins and losses, the overall experience of the sport has made a lasting impact on each player, especially for the graduating seniors.

"I'm definitely not going to stop playing, just because high school tennis is over. It just sticks with you," said senior Lovell Bivins.

Sliding to VICTORY

With young, promising players, Coach Giering looks forward to more great seasons to come.

"This was the best team I have had throughout my softball career. We are all pretty close and that's why we worked so well together on the field. I am truly going to miss this team," Senior Abbey Boyd explained. This year the girls softball team made their season a great one with a final record of 12-9, qualifying for AAAA Districts, winning the first round against Easton 11-3, and becoming 2nd place east division champs.

A few individuals attained personal goals also this year. Sophomore Dior George was the 1st team all conference champ. She stated, "Our goal was L.D.S., (leagues, districts, states), and we tried hard to reach those goals. We always fought to the end of every game." Junior Taylor Mihalik and Senior Julie Brugger were also honorable mention for all conference. Senior Sam Dartouzos was The Morning Call player of the week.

JV Softball also had an outstanding record of 15-2. Coach Lauren Malacsics stated, "This was an excellent season with a group of very hard-working and respectful girls." Throughout their season they beat Parkland who was undefeated. Freshman Kiana Keiper was the overall MVP, Megan Alisio was the defensive MVP, and Katie Souders was offensive MVP. Sophomore Dior George described, "Our team this year had the whole package and even though we will be losing some key players, we will be very strong next year. We can hit, we can field, and we can win."

Finishing out the season with a record of 18-4 and a title as the winner of the East Division, the baseball team has come a long way. The boys trained all year for their spring season and their hard work definately paid off. A top victory for the boys was their win against Parkland with a final score of 3-2. The team pulled it together in the 7th inning making a great come back with 3 runs to take the lead and celebrate another victory.

The boys finished out the regular season with a bang but lost in the first round of district playoffs to Northampton. Liberty played a tough game with a final score 4-1. The baseball team also competed in the Cenference playoffs but lost to Parkland with a final score of 8-4.

Great victories and a spot in the playoffs isn't all the team accomplished this season. "We grew together as a family. That was very important," explains senior Kevin Bicknese.

The baseball team showed that family is one of the most important motivators a team can have. "We really are like a family, I don't consider them teammates, we're all like brothers," says junior Colin Gotzon.

This year's baseball team proved what hard work, dedication, and togetherness can accomplish anything.

Striving FOR THE WIN

perserverence pays off as girls become LVIAC champions

Overall the girls did extremely well this season, finishing with a record of 9-0. They were undefeated with pride and worked extremely hard, never giving up. With their motivation and dedication, the hard work truly paid off. "The coaches and veterans of the team really helped the younger girls who were new to the team this year. They pushed us to reach our goal which was to be undefeated, it was an awesome experience to achieve our goal," stated Sophomore, Caitlin Clearie. This year the girls were lead by head coach Kevin Bush. " He really pushed us and encouraged us. He was very supportive and it paid off when we went to states," described Senior Morgan Litak.

The girls accomplished many great achievements individually as well as a team. They earned first place in the LVIAC meet and many athletes found success at states. Senior, Sarah Finn took fifth place at the state competition and the girls 4x100 relay, including Seniors, Morgan Litak, Sarah Finn, Jackie Akabogu, and Junior, Danielle Narlesky, took eighteenth place. School records were broken by Kayla Howland, making a 5'6" high jump, as well as in the distance medley relay by Amy Darlington, Amanda Miller, Julie Horwath and Jess Cygan, with a time of 12:34. The girls all bonded as a team, especially before states which helped lead to many victories. " As a sophomore, this season for track was one I will never forget. Going to states was so fun and I hope that next year I will do just as well as I did this past season," explained junior Kayla Holland.

Ready, set, go!

"Before every meet, tons of thoughts race through my mind. All I can think about is getting down in the stance, taking a deep breath, and waiting for the sound of the gun shot to fire," stated Sophomore , Vanessa Chambers.

Pushing to the Finish

The girls 4x800 team worked very hard this year. "We knew we had a shot at states, and we went for it at districts. Next year we will be even better yet," said Junior, Julie Horwath.

Tough girls beat THE ODDS

It took a lot of work even before the girls stepped on the field

Sure we all have heard the stories about the football and basketball teams, but one of Liberty's best kept secrets is the girls lacrosse team. This year the girl's lacross team's chance to play was almost taken away. However, this didn't stop them for one second. The girls were determined to be recognized by the school as a sanctioned team. Attending multiple school board meetings, the girls persuaded the members of the board to give them a chance to exhibit their talent. Finally the girl's hard work payed off. "We fought so hard and then when we won our case we all felt so accomplished!" recounts Senior Kristi Muretta. They became sanctioned by the PIAA to play against other teams in the area including Parkland and Emmaus. Being able to play other teams in the league gave the girls a sense of competition that wouldn't have been achieved otherwise.

The team consisted of 28 inspereable girls and had 4 dedicated captains. The seniors really had to help keep the spirit of the upperclassmen up through their tough times. Senior Krista Shafer stated, " Because I was a captain I had much more responsibility. There was also a lot of pressure because my girls and my coaches relied on me, but it was an awesome experience."

Season Highlights

The team started out with their season up in the air. The future of the team lied in the hands of the school board. However, when they were granted the right to play they didn't waste time. Their first two big wins had their opponents only scoring minimal goals. They continued to persevere on and won against both Parkland and Easton. The girls finished fourth in the league!

Standing Strong

Sophomore ... does a hand stand on parallel bars. In order to do this she says, "You should be very strong. You can't be afraid of trying new things. Also you need great balance."

Flippin Out

Senior Brenden Ramos does a backflip while snowboarding at Lake Tahoe's back mountain. Brenden states "I've been snowboarding for eight years and I love it. My friends and I normally go snowboarding different places every year, and this year Ethan Hahn and I went to Lake Tahoe".

Liberty has a plethora of in-school activities available to students; however, students participate in other activities outside of school as well. Students at Liberty are involved with many clubs, organizations, and programs. Senior Jessica Guro says, " I've been swimming for about 10 years now. I swim for Lehigh Valley Aquatic club formally known as Atlantis swim club."

There are a multitude of activities students express interests in that are not provided by Liberty. As a result, many students find organizations outside of Liberty to accommodate such interests. Sophomore, Joseph Blaise Cosenza, has been apart of a competitive gymnastics team for 14 years now. " My mom told me I was rolling and jumping around the house, right then when I was two she signed me up for classes right away", states Cosenza. The external activities don't end at gymnastics, the sports range any where from snowboarding to competitive Olympic swimming.

Many students balance Liberty sports as well as competitive sports not affilliated with Liberty. Between school grades, Liberty provided athletics, and individual community activities students may find it difficult to manage. Junior Courtney Milham says, "It's very time consuming. I have cheering on opposite days of twirling. If it interferes, I make up twirling practices I missed."

Through student's participation in these activities, they gain experiences that Liberty cannot offer to them. Cosenza explains, " I get to travel across country. I have been to California, Las Vegas, and Miami for gymnastics competitions. The sport is all year round so you never get out of shape. There never is a break. I love it." It is apparent that hard work, focus, and dedication are necessary to manage these sports in addition to school.

Jump for the Gold

Junior Ashley MacDonald does an irish dance jump over her trophy after winning a competition . " In order to win you need determination, focus, and willingness to work towards my goals. When I win it is the greatest feeling," explains MacDonald.

Olympic Bound

Senior Jessica Guro swims at the Olympic trials in Omaha, Nebraska.

Twirl Away

Junior Coutney Milham has been twirling for 13 years. " Through twirling I have made great friends from al over, instead of just Liberty, this is something Liberty twirling alone could not offer, " says Milham.

Sibling TUG-OF-WAR

To some, sibling rivalry is more than a friendly competition.

Students at Liberty High School are very competitive. Whether it is in band, chorus, playing a sport or even academics. Sibling rivalry may be categorized by friendly competition or going into a duel. While some siblings find it easy to participate in the same activities, other find it difficult. Senior Paige Johnson stated about the competition with her sister, "We are really competitive in school. She always gets better grades than I do and I try to beat her but it never works! We always like to see who's better at what and we usually end up arguing about it because we never let the other person win."

> "He is my most beloved friend and my bitterest rival, my confidant and my betrayer, my sustainer and my dependent, and scariest of all, my equal."
> -- Gregg Levoy

Being involved in the same activities as other siblings may become a hindrance to some students. Parental pressures and many other pressures have an impact on the competitive atmosphere. Senior Ryan Muhl expresses, " My brother and I are competitive in everything and anythinganything, but I usually win!" Regardless, throughout all arguments, conflicts, and misunderstandings between siblings, it's all about love in the end.

Sister, Sister

How do you like having a twin sister?

"Well you have a best friend forever and she knows you so well. I can tell her things, that I can't tell anyone else. We both trust each other a lot, I don't know what i would do without her." Angela Gomez

"It's like having another "you". We have everything alike, we even finish each others sentences! Sometimes we fight, but mostly we get along very well." LadyAnn Gomez

Coaching to SUCCESS

Coaches, trainers, and athletic directors are the key to every win.

Whenever athletes need something, who do they turn to? During a game, who gives them inspiration and tough love?

Coaches and trainers. They are the drive and dedication behind every win. "I know that I have an impact on my players. Sometimes, I wish I didn't. There's a lot of responsibility that comes with coaching. I hate to think about how much self-esteem I destroy, but in the end it's worth it if I'm able to leave more than was originally there. I love to help people find out what they're capable of achieving. Like most of the other coaches here, I feel good knowing that I've played a part in creating a brighter future for a kid. I've seen some real success stories that will stay in my mind forever," described Boys Volleyball coach Neiad Ammary.

The coaches at Liberty High School are always working to better themselves and their athletes. Everyone has a goal and with a coaches help that goal is reachable." In the beginning of the season we set our standard high; we expect a 100 percent commitment through out all of the seasons that we cheer for," stated Varsity Cheerleading coach Sara Barlok.

Whether it's on the field or in the trainer's room, Liberty's trainers are always working their hardest to keep our athletes in tip top shape. "Using everything I know to help an athlete get back into the game when he or she would not otherwise be able to is my favorite part about being a trainer," explained Tibor Bodi.

Best in town!

Tibor Bodi and Kyle Hutton, two of Liberty's athletic trainers, are always there to make sure every injury is cared for. " I loved being an athletic trainer for Liberty because I liked being able to help the athletes get back to playing," described Hutton.

A helping hand!

Trainers Tibor Bodi and Kyle Hutton help Brandon Brader off the field during the State Championship game. "There is a lot of things that go through your mind when someone is injured. In Brader's case he was able to return in a couple plays. That's what you aim for as a trainer," stated Bodi.

PEOPLE

For the past few years our school has been under construction. It is now completely remodeled with new state of the art products include a brand new swimming pool. But the building is only one aspect of Liberty High School. It's the staff and students who fill that hallways everyday that lie at the heart of it.

Our school is represented by such a diverse group of staff and students. Each student is different in his or her own way. Although this may seem to cause problems, it's what makes us unique. We are able to embrace each other's characteristics that make us who we are, to form one school, one family.

"Individually, we are one drop. Together, we are an ocean."

Name: Katie Piazza (St. Joseph's U.)

Birthday: May 18, 1991

About me: Ever since junior year, I have wanted to go on a missions trip. I was really interested in joining the Peace Corps after college and traveling to Africa for a missions trip. However, you must be 18, so my dad suggested looking at Habitat for Humanity. I became a part of the Youth Immersion program, which sends 15 kids to cities across the U.S. where poverty housing is a problem. We did things like painting, made driveways, put up siding, cleared sites, and gardened. We also went to a community set up by the government as an experience. We wanted to give these families a house they can be proud of and a place to feel safe. I can't wait to go on more missions trips!

Name: Eliana Ortiz (Northampton CC)

Birthday: November 14, 1990

About me: I was chosen for the 2009 YWCA Teen of the Year Award which I am very proud of. I recieved a one thousand dollar scholarship and an award dinner at the Candelight Inn. I was nominated for this award because of my hard work, good grades, and my involvement and dedication in school and in my community. My mom and the SSC 103 secretary, Jackie, have been my main supporters. Jackie was like my second mom in school, so I was always in the office visiting her. Sometimes I would rather be in the 103 office than be in class. But overall, being the 2009 Teen of the Year has allowed me to show my peers and teachers that hard work really does pay off. I gave Liberty and hispanics a good name in our community.

Co-ed Festivities

The senior boys enjoy their time to shine at the homecoming pep rally where they performed their cheerleading routine. "We practiced all week and it went very well, cheerleading is no joke," stated senior Mark Kratzer.

Name: Patrick Foose (Northampton CC)

Birthday: June 27, 1991

About me: I was born with Asperger's and crossed eyes, and I have had 4 eye surgeries and may need more. I went to Hillside School which is for students with learning disabilities. I then transfered to Nitschmann for 6th grade, where I was still in learning support classes. By the time I got to 8th grade, I was in mostly regular education classes and I joined the band. When it was time for me to start my years at Liberty, I only had a handful of friends and had a hard time transitioning into the new school. I joined the band and stayed a member for all 4 years, became a member of NHS, and was elected Student Body Senator and Treasurer. Being a student here has helped me find a voice. I know what it is like to feel isolated and I want to help others who feel the way I used too. There are so many people in the world, nobody should feel alone.

Inspiring Quote:

"Once you begin a great movement, there's no telling where it will end. We meant to change a nation, and instead, we changed a world." – President Ronald Reagan

Name: Lily Morgan (U. of Vermont)

Birthday: February 10, 1991

About me: I have been a part of the Illick's Mill project with Liberty and attended Quaker meetings all my life. I have also been involved in a group called ASAP, which stands for Association of Students Activating Peace. All of these programs have contributed to my interest in studying enviormental science. I like peace, to put it simply. Growing up a Quaker, I have been raised to cherish things, whether it be friendships, education, running, peace, or nature. I find myself always interested in the natural science and Illick's Mill helped me realize this. I know that I want to learn about the earth and nature in every way possible and then apply it. I look forward to college more so that I can persue this.

Inspiring Quote:

"Last year's words belong to last year's language, and next year's words await another voice." – T.S. Eliot

Name: Kayla Virgone (Cornell U.)
Birthday: December 15, 1990
About me: Last summer I traveled to Urubamba, Peru to spend an amazing month doing community service projects as well as traveling and experiencing Peru's rich culture. I was one of 26 student volunteers from all across America who joined together to work on a variety of projects. I was able wto see the ancient ruins of Machu Picchu, I hiked the massive mountains of Peru, I got a taste of Peruvian food like guinea pig, and I learned some new dances in the clubs. From my time spent, I developed a great passion for the work that I did and I created close relationships with many of the native people. It's an indescribable feeling to get up each morning anticipating the day ahead of you. I have acquired a new outlook on life and have been inspired to live my life to the fullest.I hope in the future to join to Peace Corps, travel to impoverished countries to help them become self-sufficient, and ultimately become knowledgeable about the world and all the beauty and culture it has to offer.

Name: Nate Rawlings (Lehigh U.)
Birthday: February 15, 1991
About me: I first began coaching a youth soccer league my sophmore year of high school, but it wasn't until my junior year that I really became focused on it. My soccer playing career had come to a haulting stop due to a heart disease. My doctor had noticed that I had a slightly irregular heartbeat. After a few months of testing, they determined I had a dilated aortic root. This is a well-known cardiovascular manifestation in children and adult patients with connective tissue disease. I have been working with FC Lehigh, a non-profit soccer organization, for the past two and a half years. FC Lehigh has been working tirelessly to become one of the most elite youth soccer clubs in the Lehigh Valley and I am proud to be a part of it. I hope that in the future I can continue to coach soccer no matter what my condition is.

Letter from the Principals

Letter to the class of 2009,

We the class have finally reached our destination after starting this journey together at Freshman Campus. You are my very first graduating class here at Liberty High School, and I am very proud of you. This class has gone through many assitant principals, and one dean of students. You have come a long way. From the first pep rally where the LHS band paraded you from the Freshman Campus to Liberty High School....to Hershey Park where we won the state championship in football. From squirrels taking out the electricity almost weekly ...to all the fire drills at Liberty High due to construction. I could go on and on about your four year journey that has led to graduation.

The voyage has been a long and difficult one for this class. But you are strong! The class of 2009 will go on to be productive members of our community. You have the personality of success, perserverance, enthusiasm for life, and a passion for your friendships. I would like to give you a few reminders on how to live life. Thank your parents for supporting you in everything you do in life, listen to and respect them, and most important of all, laugh...everyday!!!

You are apart of the Liberty High School family, and Liberty High School is apart of you. I look forward to our paths crossing again as you grow and live life.

Antonio Traca
Friend and Assistant to the class of 2009

Dear Seniors,

Taking ownership into the Liberty Spirit, was very different for your class. You began your high school career at the Freshman Campus (the old northeast). Through your stay, you navigated congested hallways, incomplete buildings, and rocky and dusty conditions. You struggled with the state testing process, but you continued to work hard for the good of Liberty.

This was a championship year in every sense of the word. You have set a "gold standard" when you simply won at everything that you competed in. Winning has been everything for your class. You made history with a State Championship in football, traveled to the Tournament of Roses parade, saw play off action in every sport, and academically excelled in every competition.

You have created fond memories for all of us and you have been great mentors to the underclassmen. Work hard. Play hard. Be successful. After all, your refusal to lose, allows you to sit in any seat in the house.

Good luck! Class of 2009-you have left your mark on Liberty's rich history!

Mrs. Durante

3 reasons why highschool is the best time of your life?

1. You make tons of new friends, and some will last a lifetime.
2. You get the independence you do not get in middle school.

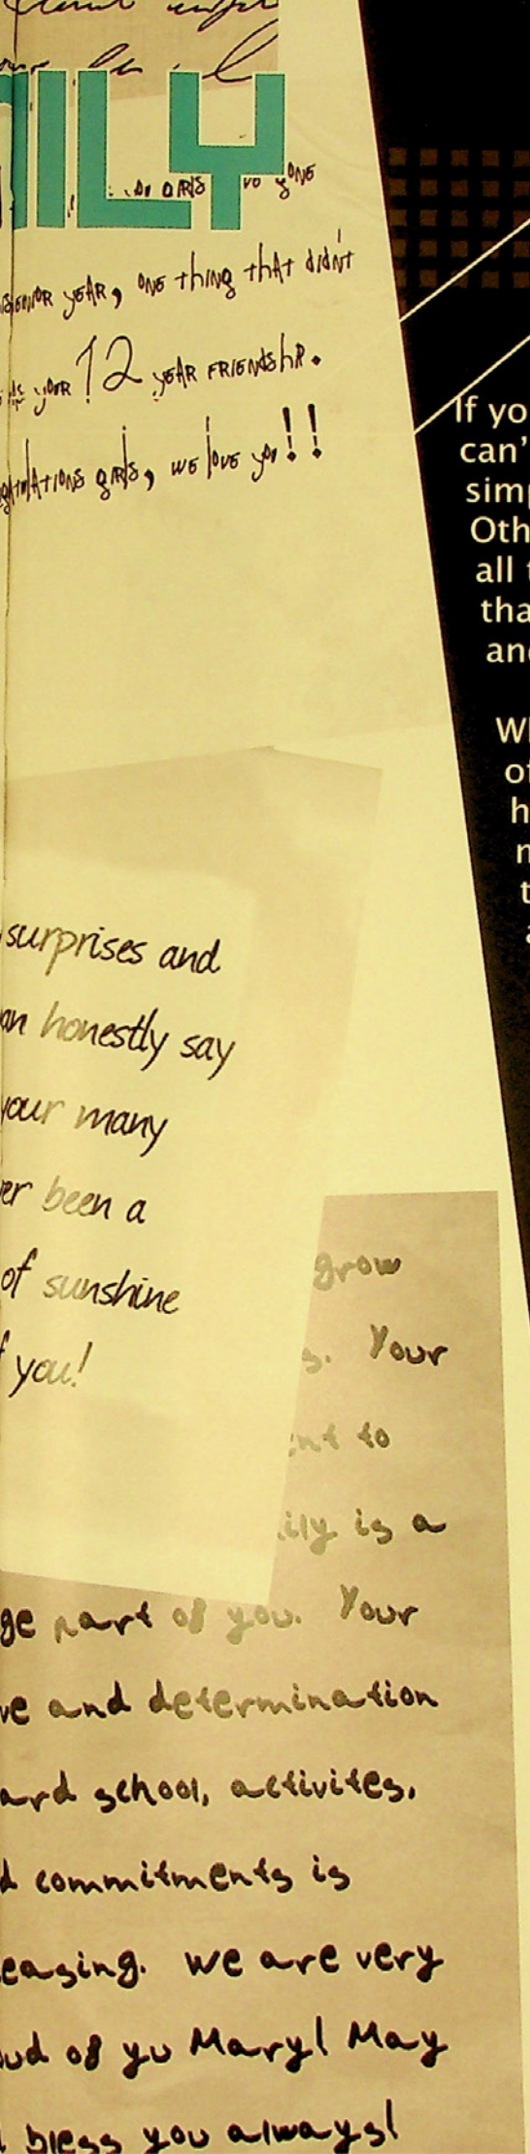
FRIENDS AND FAM

To a very special grand daughter who has brought us happiness all through the years. We are very proud of you. Words could never express how special you are.

In life where there are so many dissapointments, your mom and I we have never been surprised by accomplishments and you have ne dissapointment. You are truely a ray in our lives. We are so proud Congratulations!

I can't believe you're graduating and on your way to college! I loved watching you growup and supporting you in all of your events. You're my best friend and mean everything to me. I'm so glad we are as close as we are. I love you with all of my heart.



If you were to ask yourself right now what is the one thing in life you can't live without, what would you say? Some would probably say the simple answer of their cell phone, iPod, T.V., videogames, money or car. Others might say something like love, happiness or their health. Sure, all these things have their own importance to us, but that one thing that we all can't live without that we tend to overlook are our friends and family.

When taking those very first steps into the halls of high school, most of us are overwhelmed with a mixture of emotions. We feel hopeful, unsure, excited and nervous knowing that the decisions we make in these four years spent here are ones that will affect our future. Sometimes we allow the pressures of dealing with boyfriends and girlfriends or keeping up grades to ensure getting accepted into a decent college or even leading the team to victory, get the best of us. It's just something we all go through at one point. So we lean on the support of friends and family to get us through it. Friends understand the ups and downs you experience in high school better than anyone because they are experiencing it themselves. Going through this period in your life with one another and just having that ability to be able to rely on each other no matter what, is one of the most valuable things a person could ever have.

Then of course there is family. Most of us, especially at this age, take advantage of how important our families really are. They are the people who accept us for exactly who we are and don't turn away when no one else is there. Every single student has a family. Whether it's in relatives or just in friends that have stayed with you through thick and thin, being part of a family is something we all share and cherish.

"What greater thing is there for human souls than to feel that they are joined for life – to be with each other in silent unspeakable memories."
-- George Eliot

the COLOPHON

The 2008-2009 Cauldron, Volume 84, was printed in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania by the Herff Jones Yearbook Company. Under the guidance of our advisor Lisa Gilliard, and our company representative Nancy Tunis, the Cauldron staff was able to produce an original concept book in full color.

Over 600 copies of the Liberty Cauldron were sold this year, with each senior receiving a copy free of charge with the payment of their class dues. Underclassmen were charged with a base of $85, with nameplates being an additional charge of $5-$10. World yearbook inserts printed by Herff Jones were an also additional $5, and is offered in 16 pages of full color.

All senior and underclassmen portraits were taken by Christmas City Studio, located in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. Christmas City Studio also provided the yearbook staff with group and action pictures of Liberty athletics and events. Club and Orginization pictures were taken by Lisa Gilliard and fellow yearbook editors.

The 2008-2009 Yearbook was created using Adobe InDesign CS2 and Adobe Photoshop CS2 and CS3. Advisor Lisa Gilliard and editors Gabrielle Pirozzi, Kelsey Bedics, Abbey Lovell, Kyle Troxell, Emily Murray, Megan Pritchard, Marissa Strunk, Caitlin Smichowski, Colin McShane, and Natasha Morales designed all original headlines, copy designs, folios, and captions.

The entire staff would like to thank the secretaries of Liberty High School, and the administration of the Bethlehem Area School District for helping us with daily needs.

Sincerely,
Gaby Pirozzi (Editor in Chief)

THE STAFF

THE EDITORS

Going into the 2008-2009 school year I had thought I pretty much mastered yearbook. The task of editor in chief was hard at times, but never boring. This past year being my fourth year on yearbook, I saw the typical things that occur throughout the school year. Horrible grammer, mispelled names, and the occasional dance party in class. I can definitely say, there was never a dull moment in the yearbook room. Thank you, to all the staff, you guys really pulled through with everything when needed. Thank you, to my editors, you all really delt with my frustration, and I love you all. Last but not least, THANK YOU, to Mrs. G, without you I would definitely not have obtained the knowledge I have throughout these past four years. Without those people, Liberty High School would not have the book of this size and outstanding quality. I will always remember yearbook 3rd period (I had it every 3rd period since sophomore year). The things I have learned will stay with me forever, and the memories I have gained will last me a lifetime.

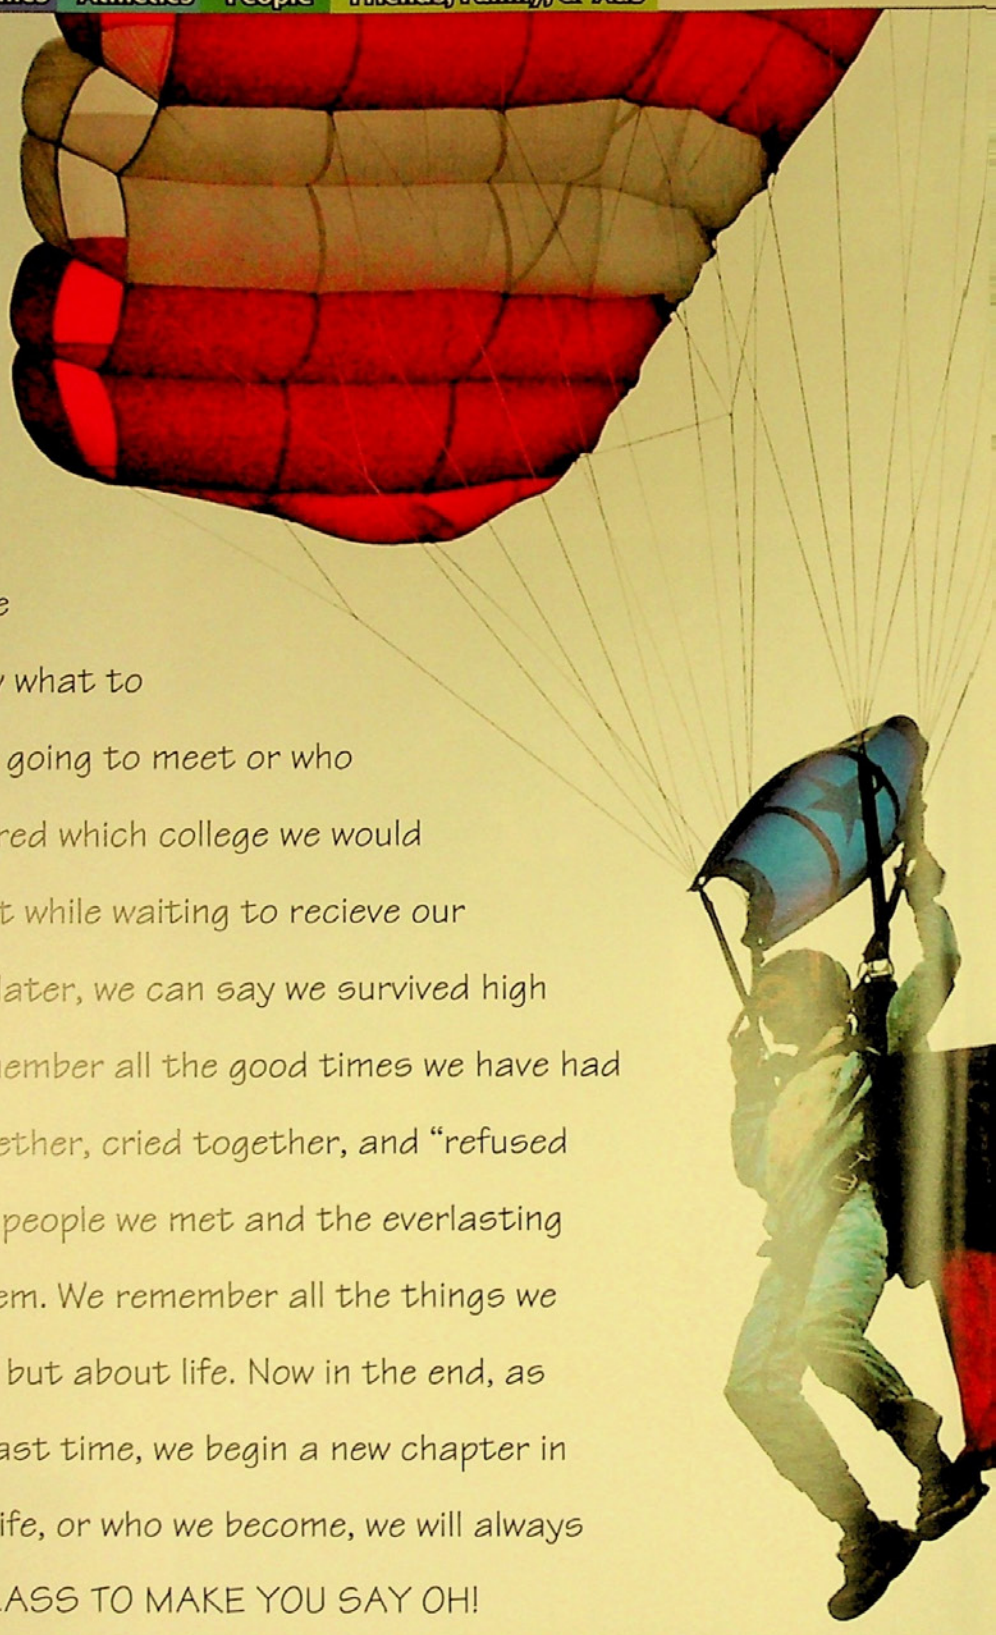
Advisor



Just like all freshman, when we started high school, we did not know what to expect, we did not know who we were going to meet or who we would do academically. We wondered which college we would want to go to and then stressed out while waiting to recieve our acceptance letters. Now four years later, we can say we survived high school. As we look back we don't remember all the good times we have had together--the times we laughed together, cried together, and "refused to lose" together. We remember the people we met and the everlasting friendships we have created with them. We remember all the things we have learned, not just academically, but about life. Now in the end, as we walk the halls of Liberty for the last time, we begin a new chapter in our lives. No matter where we go in life, or who we become, we will always be the Class of 2009. THE LAST CLASS TO MAKE YOU SAY OH!
