Franklin speaker clears the air

A critical role in health, wellness

BY DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Sixty-nine to 80 percent of pathogens that cause illness and infections are airborne, according to Dr. Kathryn Worrilow, founder and chief executive officer of LifeAire Systems.

That statistic, presented Aug. 23 at a seminar on the mountain-top campus of the Ben Franklin Tech Ventures, should make anyone wary of getting shoulder-to-shoulder in a crowd.

Worrilow's presentation to some area health care professions introduced the critical role that clean air plays in the human health and wellness.

"Greater than 90 percent of all infectious surface pathogens originate from the air," according to Worrilow. She also said conventional minimum efficiency reporting values [MERV] or high efficiency particulate air [HEPA] filtration does not provide adequate remediation.

According to Worrilow's presentation, conventional cleaning protocols do not eliminate the problem.

Worrilow said Life Aire's "advanced air and purification system" kills 100 percent of bacteria that cause such diseases as MRSA, Legionnaire's pneumonia, aspergillus, tuberculosis (TB), staphylococcus pneumonia, streptococcus pneumonia and mycobacterium tuberculosis.

The Life Aire system reportedly kills 100 percent of viruses such as parvovirus H-1, echovirus, coxsackievirus, norovirus, influenza A, avian Influenza virus, SARS, coronavirus, varicella virus, and measles virus.

The system even filters and kills anthrax spores said Worrilow. "If you can kill anthrax spores, you can kill anything."

Worrilow said that St. Luke's and Phoebe Ministries had agreed to participate in studies by allowing Life Aire to

'Medical child abuse' charges can wreak havoc on families

BY THERESA O'BRIEN
Special to the Bethlehem Press

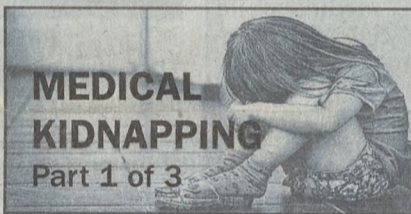

No one wants to see a child harmed, whether the bad actor is a parent or another adult. However, some families unjustly accused of child abuse, as well as family rights advocates, argue that the system is biased too far in the direction of suspicion and doesn't demand enough proof before separating parents from their children - particularly when it comes to the relatively new accusation of "medical child abuse."

Chronic or complex medical conditions afflicting children, mandatory child abuse screening as part of the pediatric hospital admissions process, and deference shown by courts and other physicians to child abuse pediatricians can combine to tear apart families where no wrongdoing has occurred.

This is the first article in a three-part series delving into the concept of medical child abuse and how it affects families challenged with unusual medical conditions. In this series, we share the perspectives of affected families, family rights attorneys, and legal scholars to illuminate this dark corner of the child protection system and point a way toward the better future that is possible.

Research for this series began with an email from a young Lehigh Valley person who, along with a sibling, was separated from their parents for months. Family members were reluctant to speak to the press, but felt it was important to share their story.

A truancy investigation regarding one child rapidly became child abuse investigations concerning both children in the family. Child abuse pediatri-cians (CAPs) told the siblings, who suffered from multiple chronic conditions, that they were not ill. Rather, the doctors told them, they were victims of their mother, who - the doctors said - pretended the children were ill and sought unnecessary medical treatment for them, an unusual diagnosis known as "Munchausen Syndrome by Proxy" (MSBP). The diagnosis is even more unusual, given that the doctor who made it had never met the children's mother.

County child protection workers obtained emergency court orders to take the children away from their parents, based on the CAPs' evaluations of the children and a limited set of their medical records.

After spending time in a local hospital to be "de-medicalized" - taken off multiple treatments they had been receiving for their chronic conditions - both children were placed in "kinship care." During the time they were out of their parents' custody, neither child was permitted to meet with their previous health care providers, despite the fact that these providers were affiliated with major research hospitals and had been seeing the children for years.

The family's longtime medical providers stood by them, willing to testify. The mother underwent a comprehensive mental health evaluation, during which a forensic psychologist determined that she did not have MSBP. A non-jury hearing was eventually scheduled so that the family's evidence could be heard, but it was abruptly canceled by county child protection workers.

After months of hearings before a local magistrate, the children were returned to their parents' custody. Case workers and visiting nurses from the county visited the family regularly to monitor the situation. Then, months after the investigations began, the county's case workers chose to terminate the case. Having witnessed the children's interactions with their parents, they no longer found the original abuse "diagnosis" by the CAPs credible. Both young people are now living with their parents, and they have resumed the majority of their medical treatments.

But a shadow still hangs over the family.

"Because [my younger sibling] is still underage, we're still afraid," the older sibling explains. "Anything that anyone might say could lead to her getting reported again and taken away. Once they're in your life in the first place, it's much easier for them to get back in."

Attorney and author Diane Redleaf has spent decades defending families accused of abuse and neglect, as well as writing about the challenges of vindicating family rights when CAPs have claimed to have professional certainty that abuse has occurred.

Fraud Warning

Police report a resident of the Lehigh Valley received a call from the Bethlehem Police Department non-emergency phone number (610-865-7187) Aug. 26 and were advised that a family member was in trouble and in need of money.

The resident was subsequently defrauded in an amount exceeding $11,000. This is a common fraud scheme in which the victim is convinced that a family member has been in an accident or arrested and needs money immediately to avoid serving time in jail. To lend credibility to their scheme, the suspect cloned BPD's number 610-865-7187.

Similar fraud schemes are occurring in the Lehigh Valley and citizens are encouraged to remember the following tips to avoid phone scams:

- Block unwanted calls and text messages
- Don't give your personal or financial information in response to a request that you didn't expect.
- Resist the pressure to act immediately.
- Know how scammers tell you to pay.
- Stop and talk to someone you trust.

medical conditions requiring frequent treatments are flagged as victims of MSBP, and parents are diagnosed – often by a doctor who has spent little or no time with them – as having a psychological disorder in which they pretend their child is sick, and subject the child to unnecessary medical treatments, or make the child sick, in an aberrant bid for attention for themselves.

Maxine Eichner is the Graham Kenan Distinguished Professor of Law at the University of North Carolina. Although she specializes in legal issues surrounding family relationships and social welfare law and policy, Eichner realized several years ago that classes on family law were not preparing nascent attorneys for the way the system treats cases of alleged medical child abuse.

Eichner's daughter, who has mitochondrial disease, encouraged her to join a task force on medical child abuse organized by MitoAction, an advocacy group.

"I went to the first meeting," she relates, "and heard these parents talk about what had happened to them [...] and I was flabbergasted, because there's nothing that I teach in class that matches what had happened to them, and nobody else I knew who was teaching family law was teaching anything about the way things were happening on the ground."

Realizing that both parents and members of the legal community were being blindsided by allegations of abuse, Eichner traced the evolution of "medical child abuse" (MCA) from its beginnings as "Munchausen Syndrome by Proxy" (MSBP) – a condition first described in 1977 by UK physician Roy Meadow – to its current, much larger footprint. She has published law review articles and pieces in the mainstream media to help people understand cases like that of Justina Pelletier, a girl held for more than two years by Boston Children's Hospital – mostly in a psychiatric unit – because doctors there disagreed with doctors who had previously treated her at Tufts University Hospital.

In the early days, Eichner explains, mothers had to be intentionally making their children sick or deliberately lying about a healthy child having symptoms to be charged with MSBP. Mothers could sometimes disprove the accusation

The Rapier Law Firm handles civil litigation in Illinois. Aaron Rapier is representing an Illinois family in their lawsuit against members of the child protection bureaucracy who took their children away from them for more than a year by demonstrating that their child had a genuine medical condition.

Then things got trickier for parents.

Starting in the mid-1990s, Dr. Carole Jenny, a pediatrician specializing in child abuse, and her husband, Dr. Thomas A. Roesler, a psychiatrist, reconceptualize[d] the condition, Eichner explains. Doctors, they said, shouldn't focus on the parent's mental state but, instead, simply determine whether the child had received unnecessary and harmful, or potentially harmful, care at the behest of a parent.

Problematically, in Eichner's view, Drs.

Jenny and Roesler defined "potentially harmful" to include any unnecessary medicine or diagnostic test that could have harmful side effects, even if the child wasn't actually harmed and should be labeled medical child abuse, and treated like any other kind of child abuse.

In other words, the doctors believed parents should be charged with abuse based solely on the opinion of one doctor that their children were receiving "too much" medical care.

Eichner noted there are problems with relying on Dr. Meadow's original paper for diagnoses.

"Case studies are not empirical studies that have a control group," she explained, and later studies tend to suffer from confirmation bias. Moreover, she pointed out that MCA extends Meadow's original idea into families who are grappling with real illnesses. Mothers said to have MSBP "were said to be making kids sick, or lying [that their kids were sick]. They were [supposed to be] a risk to healthy kids."

Today, most of the cases in which parents are accused of MCA, the kid has some kind of underlying issue, and there's very little evidence to suggest that the parent is intentionally making the kid sick. They've taken that model of the Munchausen mother, and transposed it to MCA, and the idea now is that if they think a parent is giving a kid with real medical issues 'too much care,' they're certain they're going to hurt the healthy siblings, too.

"But there's no good science to show that parents of genuinely sick kids respond anything like the way that those original 'Munchausen's mothers' responded," Eichner said.

In 2007, the American Academy of Pediatrics' Committee on Child Abuse and Neglect adopted the definition of MCA, broadening significantly both the role of the nascent specialty of child abuse pediatrics and the scope of situations that would be reported as abusive.

Family rights attorney Aaron Rapier says that a variety of labels can lead to good parents having their children taken away from them.

"This has been my experience with 'Munchausen Syndrome by Proxy,' or 'factitious disorder imposed upon another,' or 'medical child abuse,'" Rapier said. "Any one of those things means whatever the child abuse pediatrician says it means."

He further explains, "Unlike essentially any other diagnosis you could name, there are no published or generally accepted criteria against which a third party could apply the facts to assess whether the diagnosis is correct."

"In medicine, we can accept that there are differences of opinion," Rapier said. "There are reasonable interpretations within the standard of care." However, he contends, all too often, when a CAP diagnoses MCA, other physicians' opinions are not sought before the child is removed from his parents' care.

City planners discussed a property vacation July 7; a result of the newly-renovated Perone Armory on Spring Street.

The 89-foot by 16-foot strip of land abuts the property of homeowners Charlene and George Mauers, who have been mowing the grass and clearing snow.

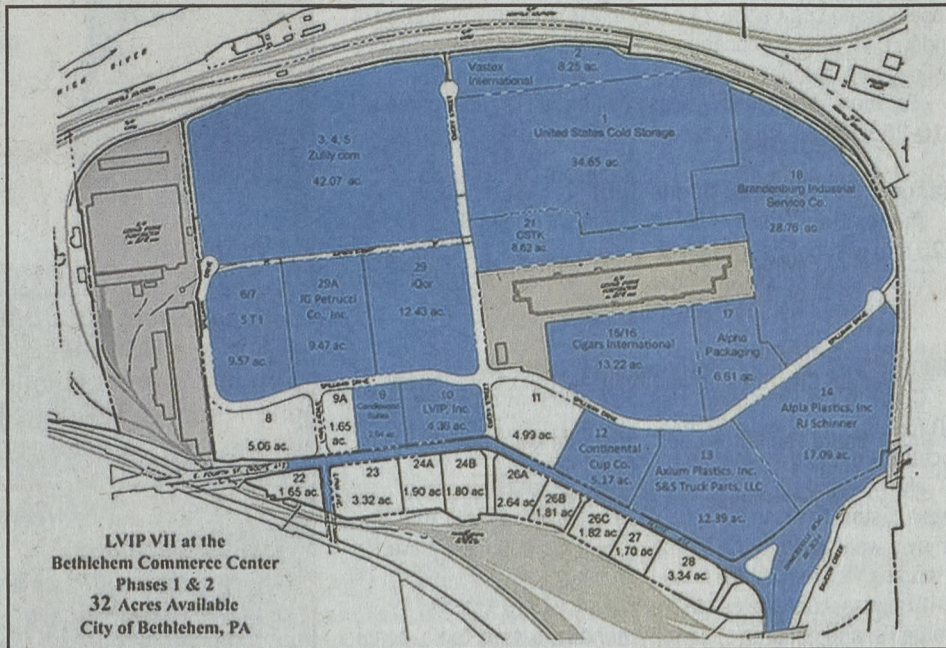

Planning Director Darlene Heller described it as "a remnant piece when the armory was developed. [It's] not large enough to put a home on."

The commission will recommend to council that the city should vacate the parcel, and Planning Commission solicitor Matthew Deschler pointed out this does not qualify as making a deed.

Next were two land development proposals for properties in Lehigh Valley Industrial Park VII. Engineer Andrew Boll of Hanover engineers described the two proposals. The first was at 1010 Harvard Avenue. A 650 thousand square foot warehouse with two driveways, two drive ramps, and 63 parking spaces is proposed for the site. Boll indicated approval from PennDOT was still pending. President Robert Melosky, joining via Zoom, asked about access from Route 412. The access from 422 will be a right turn in and a right turn out, due to the divided highway. Malozi joked that the city was "requesting signage because no one from Princeton [Avenue] wanted to interact with vehicles from Harvard [Avenue]."

Melosky added that the city is "running out of space in LVIP 7, glad to hear it." The commission voted to accept the land development plan.

The second property was 2680 Commerce Center Boulevard. The proposal was for a 156 square foot building for manufacturing and warehouse space for plastic bottles. The site would include eight loading docks, two driveways, and an existing Railroad spur. Planning Director Heller commented this was "one of (the city's) briefest comment letters." She added that the letter mostly explained fees, and listed grants that could be applied for. She noted that Lanta had requested sidewalk connectivity for bus stop access. Malozi asked Boll if the rail access was an important feature of the site. Boll responded "Rail access was one of the things that made the parcel attractive."

The commission agreed to approve the land development plan.

Heller said that SALDO has been "on hold due to a shortage of staff." The former Zoning Officer, Craig Pfeiffer, has now been hired as the Assistant Planning Director. The City is accepting applications for the Zoning Officer position.

The Planning Commission's next meeting was moved to August 18, due to the Plaza in front of the Rotunda becoming a Platz during Musikfest.

Chaired by Vice Chairman Craig Evans, the Bethlehem Historic Conservation Commission granted certificates of appropriateness for three project proposals along Fourth Street at the Aug. 15 in the Rotunda. All voting was unanimous.

Representing 312 E. Fourth St., Rev. Andrew Gehringer, Pastor and Business Manager Joe McCarthy were granted a COA to take down their current aluminum frame pole-mounted exterior illuminated reader board in front yard of the rectory. Their proposal to replace it with a 36-inch by 78-inch reader board mounted on the right front wall of the church and another 31-inch by 67-inch one mounted on the front of the rectory were approved.

The new reader boards would provide flexibility for updating messages and would be illuminated at night with 300K LED gooseneck lighting.

After slightly readjusting the proposed measurements, it was stipulated that shop drawings for the signage and a cut sheet for the light fixtures would be submitted to the historic officer.

According to Historic Officer Jeff Long, the Gothic Revival stone church was constructed in 1865, expanded in 1886 and is currently home to Holy Infancy Roman Catholic Church. The Colonial Revival style brick Rectory on the property was constructed circa 1910.

Architect Christine Ussler from Artefact represented 114 W. Fourth St. with a proposal to relocate a detached garage the board had deemed "historically contributing" at a June hearing and possibly construct a three story, six unit residential building on the site. The detached brick structure sits behind the circa 1880s brick mansion occupied by former Bethlehem Steel President and Chairman Eugene Gifford Grace and his family from 1902-06.

She explained that they were looking for an indication that the board was willing to entertain the relocation proposal. The recessed garage which faces Martel Street would be gene Gifford Grace and his family from 1902-06.

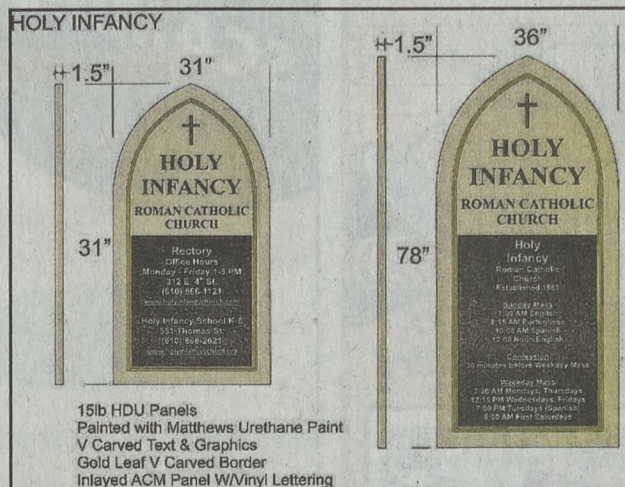

She explained that they were looking for an indication that the board was willing to entertain the relocation proposal. The recessed garage which faces Martel Street would be moved elsewhere on the lot and converted into a studio apartment.

Long opined that moving the garage and repurposing it would be appropriate. Ussler mentioned that this would also solve a zoning issue.

Craig Evans and Seth Cornish liked the idea of relocating the garage as it would enhance the appearance of the property.

Approval for the structure's relocation is contingent on approval for an infill project submission. "There's a lot of work to do yet," Ussler remarked, happy they can move forward with redesigning the new construction.

The historic property is owned by developer Dallas Basha through 114 W. Fourth St., LLC.

Developer Louis Intile was granted a COA for demolishing a dilapidated garage at the back of 512 E. Fourth St.

The three-story brick and masonry Italianate style building facing E. Fourth Street was constructed circa 1900.

The two-story wood frame garage facing E. Morton Street is currently clad with aluminum siding. Long stated that the rear structure appears on a vintage Sanborn Fire Insurance map behind the main building. This indicates they were built at the same time. This, in his opinion would make it a "contributing" building.

District guidelines state that demo would only be allowed if the applicant would experience "undue economic hardship" by attempting to rehab the structure, Long added.

The historic officer noted that an adjacent garage had been razed without permission.

Intile described the garage as in rough shape when he purchased the property "a few years ago" and had tried unsuccessfully to stabilize it. "It was used primarily as a warehouse by 'Sing Out!' Magazine, which operated on Fourth Street," he said. Besides being unstable overall, he mentioned the roof was caving in.

"This becomes a clubhouse for students walking home from Broughal - an old garage makes for a fun experience until it falls on you," remarked Intile.

The applicant was instructed to provide detailed plans for creating a parking pad on the site before he could raze the existing structure.

Intile, from Fifth Street Properties, owns the property through NMC Holdings, LLC. He says that he has been working with the City of Bethlehem to find a tenant.

The Bethlehem HCC is charged with the task of determining if new signs or other alterations to a building's exterior would be an appropriate fit for the neighborhood in one of three designated historic districts.

Obtaining a certificate of appropriateness is only a first step for business owners and residents in a designated historic district who wish to make alterations to a building's exterior. The commission's recommendations are later reviewed, and then voted on by city council before any project is allowed to proceed.

Architect Christine Ussler received a conditional COA to relocate the garage at left to a more practical spot on the property where it could possibly be repurposed as a studio apartment. Council denies Dixie exemptions

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

At the Aug. 18 Northampton County Council meeting, council continued the public hearing regarding the Local Economic Revitalization Tax Assistance act exemptions for deteriorated areas in Wilson Borough.

The Dixie Cup factory, 1610 Van Buren Road, has sat largely vacant for many years, but now there is a potential developer for the 636,000-square-foot building.

However, the building needs multiple repairs in order for it to once again become an asset to the borough. Some of these repairs include new windows, roofing and elevators, as well as the removal of lead paint and asbestos. These costs are anticipated to be high, leading the borough and building owner to seek LERTA exemptions.

At council's last meeting, Councilman Kevin Lott said broken windows are a maintenance issue and asbestos is a normal renovation problem.

At the Aug. 18 meeting, Stephen Barron, county director of fiscal affairs, reported the property is around $400,000 behind in tax payments to the county, borough and the school district.

"I invite you to consider the precedent being set if you approve this LERTA," said resident Armando Moritz-Chapelliquen.

Voting in favor of the LERTA would mean granting a tax break to a site that is $400,000

Local scout completes Gold Award project

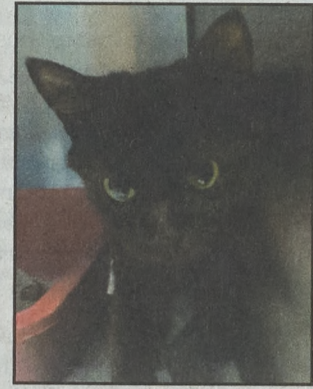

Liberty HS senior and Girl Scout Troop 8825 member Anna Lazewski has completed her Gold Award after working closely with Historic Bethlehem. Lazewski said, "For my project I created educational, interactive trail content at Burnside Plantation, a historic site in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, focusing around colonial history and sustainability. This virtual content includes a self-guided tour and audio tour, art/poetry prompts, small quizzes, letterboxing (scavenger hunt), and more to educate the public about how our town's rich colonial history intermingles with living sustainably. My project covers 4 major topics including the history of Burnside Plantation, the power of the Monocacy Creek (creek on the plantation), the power of native plants and their role in colonial life, and what sustainability is today. There is a permanent sign affixed at the portion of the Monocacy Way trail at Burnside Plantation for visitors to access at any time. Currently, my educational content is in the process of being integrated into third grade curriculum throughout my school district."

Both Wilson Borough and Wilson Area School District have already approved the LERTA exemptions.

County Executive Lamont McClure said, "It occurred to me that tonight is emblematic of what we are trying to accomplish in Northampton County, especially as we push back against warehouse proliferation, increased truck traffic and air pollution that is causing our asthma rates to skyrocket."

Warehouse proliferation, increased truck traffic and air pollution are three of the many reasons residents of Wilson Borough are opposed to the LERTA exemptions.

Building owner Joseph Reibman stated the building is one already in existence. Further, when the building was in use, there were a maximum of 50 to 60 trucks going in and out over a 24-hour period.

After hearing from various speakers, county council voted 8-1 against the LERTA exemptions.

In other business, council approved a motion adding the 42-acre Bodnarczuk Preserve to Northampton County's now 22 parks and preserves. The addition of the preserve brings the county to 3,600 acres of natural area preserved since 2006, with 333 of those acres being preserved since 2018.

Council will next meet 6:30 p.m. Sept. 1 at the county building, 669 Washington St., Easton.

*Yesterday:
Labor Day memories*

BY JEFF MOELLER
Special to the Press

Labor Day was upon us this past weekend, and school is back in session. Even though summer isn't officially over, the mindsets already have turned toward the fall season.

In this week's version of my Yesterday column - a trip back in time to the 1960s, 70s 80s and sometimes beyond - I'll take a look at some early September sports happenings that triggered some memorable seasons as well as some vintage items.

Where were you in 1977? It was a classic year for Penn State and Notre Dame, which both pieced together record 11-1 seasons. The Fightin' Irish were the national champions and the Nittany Lions finished No. 5 in the polls. Notre Dame began the year with a 19-9 win over Pittsburgh Sept. 10, but they then suffered a loss at Mississippi the following week. Third-year head coach Dan Devine was already under some fire for 8-3 and 9-3 seasons the previous two years, but he did end the '76 season with a win over Penn State in the Gator Bowl.

The Irish then ripped off 10 straight wins culminating in a 38-10 win over Texas in the Cotton Bowl, vaulting them from No. 5 to No. 1. Joe Montana began to build a reputation as a comeback and cool-under-pressure quarterback and defensive lineman Ross Browner won the Outland Trophy.

Jerome Heavens and Vegas Ferguson were the running backs, and both likely have been forgotten over time. Penn State began its season with a 45-7 blasting of Rutgers on Sept. 2, and the Nittany Lions opened the year as the 13th-ranked team in the country. They suffered a blow in week four when they dropped a 24-20 decision to Kentucky at home.

From there, they marched through their next eight opponents, culminating in the Sun Bowl with a 42-30, shootout victory over Arizona State.

Chuck Fusina was their quarterback and Curt Warner - remember him? - was the lead back. They also featured local products running back Mike Guman (Allentown Central Catholic), tackle Keith Dorney (Emmaus), and linebacker Matt Milen (Whitehall). Wide receiver Jimmy Ceffalo (Pittston) also added some hometown flavor.

Swamp Fox: On Sept. 3, 1983, Marion Campbell, nicknamed "The Swamp Fox" who succeeded Dick Vermeil, won his first game as an Eagles' head coach with a 22-17 triumph over San Francisco. Vermeil stepped down Bethlehem Catholic head coach Kyle Haas was happy with his team's 21-0 victory over Pocono Mountain West last Saturday, but he wasn't happy with the way they got there.

"We needed to figure out a way to put them away," said Haas about his offense. "The defense played great again. We held them to 100 yards to total offense."

"It seems like our defense is ahead of our offense right now."

Haas realizes the importance of the situation as his unbeaten Golden Hawks (2-0) will travel to Nazareth Friday night with the unbeaten Blue Eagles (2-0) in a game that could either solidify or fracture their season.

Nazareth is coming off a dominating performance over previous undefeated Parkland in which they posted an impressive 28-10 victory. Nazareth rolled up 313 yards of total offense, balanced well between 169 yards rushing and 144 yards passing. Quarterback Sonny Sasso is regarded as one of the best in the Lehigh Valley.

Becahi's Jaiden Ellis-Lahey takes to the air to make a diving catch for a touchdown during the Hawks home victory against Pocono Mountain West.

"We had too many dropped passes and blown assignments," reflected Haas. "We couldn't get a rhythm going all night. We need to mature as an offense. We weren't as mentally ready to play against them as we were Whitehall. The kids were probably thinking about Nazareth next week and that they would get through this one."

"We can't afford another effort like that one."

Haas knows the cupboard will be filled Friday night. "I watched their game against Parkland and it was packed at Nazareth," said Haas. "I don't think I've ever seen that many people."

"They have a very good quarterback, good wide receivers, and a good running back. One of their tacklers is a very good wrestler. They must be in good shape because most of their guys are two-way players, and they play a lot of man-to-man defense.

Whitehall upends the Hurricanes

BY KATIE MCDONALD

A Week Two win was of equal importance to Whitehall and Liberty, having lost their season openers, but the Zephyrs prevailed, 33-22, in a game that appeared to be going Liberty's way.

"For us, it was real big, coming off of last week and the mistakes we made last week, to come out here and get this win, especially coming back the way we did and fighting through some adversity," said Whitehall head coach Matt Senneca. "I think it was huge and a huge confidence booster for us."

Liberty scored early in the first quarter on Hurricane quarterback Tommy Mason's 42-yard pass to a wide open Nico Sciarra. A bad snap negated the extra-point attempt, but the Hurricanes scored on a safety after Mason's punt to the two-yard line.

With time winding down in the second quarter, Whitehall's Kayden Davis-Latsch intercepted a pass by Mason, and the Zephyrs took over at the 50-yard line.

Whitehall quarterback Trey Dogmanits, who threw for 200 yards on Friday night, ran the ball nine yards, connected on a pass to Braden Bashore, and Nigel Linton went in for the touchdown with 15 seconds left until halftime. The Zephyrs' two-point conversion was no good.

Liberty senior Jayden Rosado with 114 rushing yards hauled in consecutive touchdowns in the third quarter, the second on a 35-yard run, and the Hurricanes had their biggest lead, 22-6.

But Dogmanits completed a 57-yard pass to Jack Kocher who was pulled down at the 15-yard line by Sciarra, and Bashore was left open for the Zephyr touchdown.

Then, Aiden Parvel's interception led to Linton's second touchdown of the night.

"We talked all week about having each others' backs, and I'll tell you what, they really showed it in the second half," said Coach Senneca. "We clawed back as a team. Great credit to our defensive coordinator Kyle Beller, shutting them out the way he did in the second half. It was a great job."

Carter Troxell led the Zephyrs in tackles with 15, and Mason Marencik-Delvalle had seven tackles, two for lost yardage.

With eight minutes left in the game, Whitehall took its first lead on Dogmanits' 29-yard pass to Kocher in the corner of the end zone.

"Jack's a grinder," said Senneca. "He's gonna play both ways, he's gonna play special teams, he's not gonna

Marquee battles on tap this week

BY PETER CAR

There are big games every week in the East Penn Conference and that theme continues for two of Bethlehem's programs, as Bethlehem Catholic and Freedom square off Friday night in marquee matchups.

The Golden Hawks travel to Nazareth to take on the highly touted Blue Eagles, while Freedom hosts Parkland in a battle of blue blood programs at BASD Stadium.

Freedom head coach Jason Roeder was enthused about the improvement in play from week one to week two and understands that level of intensity will need to again rise with a showdown against the Trojans (1-1), as they're coming off a disappointing loss to Nazareth.

"Parkland is big and physical up front with great skill guys," he said. "They're well coached and it's going to be a tough game. Nazareth is a very good team with a lot of weapons and they had a good game plan against Parkland. Without getting into specifics, I think there's things we saw on film we can try and capitalize on, but I'm sure Parkland is going to fix things on their end too."

Ethan Neidig completed 10-of-13 passes last week for 173 yards and a touchdown, while adding 62 yards rushing and a score to build off his week one performance. The Pates will need that steady growth throughout the season to reach their full potential.

Jalen Fletcher added 80 yards on the ground for the Pates, while Owen Johnson hauled in five receptions for 70 yards. Justin Peluso led Freedom in receiving yards on his lone catch, a 72-yard touchdown. It was the first varsity catch of his career.

After losing to Emmaus and Parkland to open last season, Roeder would like to not repeat that trend again.

"I don't think we're really going to stress er 227 yards of offense last week, need a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns to put the Panthers away.

With the top-ranked Blue Eagles (2-0) on the schedule this week, slowing down Nazareth's offense will be a challenge, especially after they knocked off Parkland 28-10 last week. Nazareth quarterback Sonny Sasso will be in contention for MVP honors once the season winds down, as he is the engine behind Nazareth's team, as he threw for 144 yards and two touchdowns last week and added 70 yards on the ground.

"I watched Sasso on

'Canes unbeaten to start season

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Liberty's volleyball team is off to a hot start this season, as the Hurricanes have swept all three of their opponents to kick off the 2022 season.

With Nazareth, Dieruff and Whitehall all falling victim to Liberty (3-0), head coach Connor Swigart is happy with what he's seeing.

"We are playing very well as a complete team," said Swigart. "We were mixing some different players in different spots and they moved in there seamlessly. We also had some girls getting their first varsity action and it was great to see them play their role and do well. There are some things that we can improve on but knowing our girls we will get to work to improve on those areas."

With matches against Pleasant Valley (4-0) and Bethlehem Catholic (2-1) this week, Liberty will have a chance to further strengthen their case as one of the top teams in District 11.

"This team is just full of girls who want to keep getting better and growing as players," Swigart said. "They stay late or come in early to get extra reps in. They also have a joy for playing that is very rare. From JV to Varsity they love to play, love to be around each other and want to be the best teammates they can be. It makes coaching them a lot easier when they are so open to feedback and coaching from everyone on the staff."

Becahi is also looking forward to this week's test against the Hurricanes, as it'll be another gauge for the group against one of the top teams in the EPC.

After losing to Emmaus (3-0) in five games of their season opener, the Hawks have responded with wins over Freedom and Easton.

They'll tune up with Pocono Mountain West this week before Friday's tilt with Liberty.

Freedom (0-2) looks to notch their first win this week with matches against Stroudsburg (1-3) and Easton (1-2).

O'CONNOR HONORED

Quinn O'Connor from Bethlehem, Pennsylvania (18020) made the 2021-2022 Academic Top 25 Team Honor roll as a member of the Emerson Women's Basketball Team. The Lions had the highest cumulative GPA of any Division III women's hoops team, with a cumulative GPA of 3.84 this past academic year.

O'Connor is majoring in Journalism and is a member of the Class of 2024.

The Women's Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) Academic Top 25 recognizes NCAA Division I, II and III, NAIA and two-year college women's basketball teams across the nation that carry the highest combined GPAs inclusive of all student-athletes on their rosters for the entire season. The 2021-22 season is the 27th in which the WBCA has compiled the honor rolls.

Emerson was one of 212 teams recognized, receiving honor roll recognition for the seventh straight season.

BOYS SOCCER

LHS boys top Easton

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcDonald@tnonline.com

Sometimes it takes a lead by the opposing team to serve as motivation to take control, as was the case with the Liberty Hurricanes in their 2-1 boys soccer victory over Easton last Friday at Liberty.

"After their goal, we kind of woke up a little bit, and once we settled in and started moving the ball the way we want to, they backed off and started to drop in their end, and that allowed us to gain some confidence to move forward," said Liberty head coach Jason Horvath.

Hurricane forward Kaique Durte-Costa took a shot high enough to roll off the fingertips of Easton goalie Daniel Keane for the equalizer in the 16th minute.

In the second half, Liberty goalkeeper Jonny Smith took over for Owen Cassel and made two consecutive saves in the opening minutes.

"Obviously there's pressure going into the second half of the game, but our back line played a great game," Smith said. "Our outside backs, center backs moved the ball great."

Also helping out on defense was forward Jackson Jobs who tangled with Easton's Jacob Borluca frequently enough to keep the Red Rover forward from getting off a shot.

"Jackson's got a bunch of energy, and he's got some moxie to him, and he worked really hard today," said Coach Horvath. "I'm proud of the way he played."

Durte-Costa scored the game winner in the 48th minute that sailed into the right side of the net from about 18 yards.

"We were having a really tight game and we wanted it, so it's a great feeling," he said. "[Coach Horvath] said,

'Keep going. We were having a great game. Take the opportunities.'"

With plenty of time left in the match, Horvath saw plenty of opportunities for the Hurricanes.

"After we scored the second goal, I would've liked to see us keep going forward. We had chances, but we need to get that third one. I hate being up, 2-1," Horvath said. "They have more fight than I think they realized. They have more ability than they realized, I think, and now, even with the (1-0) loss to Emmaus, I saw the team take the next step."

The Becahi boys are 0-4 so far, dropping games to Notre Dame, Pocono East, Parkland and Nazareth.

The Freedom boys are 2-1 having lost to Pleasant Valley while beating Stroudsburg and Allen.

Field hockey teams off to slow starts

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

Liberty is the only Bethlehem team to scratch a victory from the field hockey season thus far, as all three local schools have come out of the gate slowly.

The Hurricanes 4-1 win over East Stroudsburg South in the opener has been followed by a 7-1 setback to Nazareth and a 3-1 loss to Owen J. Roberts.

Still, the losses haven't depleted head coach Jill Dorn's confidence in the potential for her group.

"I feel that the team is in a position to where we are going to continue to improve as the season goes on," said Dorn. "Starting the year without the complete team means we are preparing players in their absence to increase our depth. We are OK to get this experience in now and are being led by Sarah Fitzpatrick and Ruby Miller in the middle."

Liberty (1-2) gets a chance to get back on track this week against Hazleton and Lake Lehman in a pair of non-conference matchups to hopefully get them back to .500 before getting back into EPC play.

"We have tremendous leadership who know exactly what our program expectations are," Dorn said. "We are proud of what we are gaining and the quality minutes we are able to get some of our younger athletes. Bottom line, they are learning more about the importance of team this year than anything."

Freedom (0-3) and Bethlehem Catholic (0-3) are both struggling out of the gates, as the Pates have failed to score through three games, but look to get some momentum this week with contests against Pleasant Valley and Becahi.

The Hawks are in the same boat as Freedom in the scoring department, but play Pocono Mountain West and then have Thursday's showdown at Freedom.

Yob Reaches 100 Wins

Dave Yob, a 1971 graduate of Freedom High School, recently won his 100th game as the boys soccer coach at Lehighon High School. With the recent 5-0 win over Catasauqua on Sept. 3, Lehighon is off to a 5-0 start in Yob's 13th season leading the boys soccer program. Yob, who played for Glenn "Skip" Rodenbach at Freedom, has been at Lehighon since 2010. In that time, he has directed the Lehighon program to two Schuylkill League championships (2014 & 2015) and four-straight District 11 appearances (2013-2016). He has also earned Coach of the Year awards in 2013 (Allentown Morning Call) and 2014 and 2015 from the Schuylkill League. The program which has had varsity status since 1999, has only had three winning seasons, all under Yob's direction and the team is hoping for a fourth this year.

WHEELER PART OF KUTZTOWN FIELD HOCKEY TEAM

Abby Wheeler of Bethlehem, PA is 1-of-30 student-athletes representing Kutztown University's field hockey program for the 2022 season.

Kutztown University field hockey has been on one of the more successful runs in program history over the last three seasons. KU is two seasons removed from a 15-win, 2019 season, which included a Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference runner-up finish and a trip to the NCAA Division II Final Four.

Under nine-year head coach Marci Scheuing, the Golden Bears have qualified for three consecutive PSAC postseason tournaments. Before that run, the Maroon and Gold made the big dance once since 2010.

The 2022 program is well positioned to continue the winning trend and compete for its first ever PSAC and NCAA championship. Kutztown had six players exhaust eligibility or move on following the 2021 campaign, but there is a large number of experienced returners back to lead the way.

Kutztown opens its 2022 regular season with four consecutive home games. KU will be hosting a four-team tournament and will open with Saint Michael's on Saturday, Sept. 3, at 11 a.m., at Andre Reed Stadium. The Maroon and Gold will then play Southern Connecticut State the following day at 1:30 p.m.

Bethlehem Catholic tennis sitting at 4-1

kmcaldon@tnonline.com

Bethlehem Catholic's girls tennis team kicked off its 2022 season with a 5-2 victory over Nazareth and currently holds a record of 4-1, losing only to Parkland after two weeks of play.

"[Nazareth] was a close match," said Becahi head coach George Harmanos. "Cara (Magliochetti) won at number one easily. Madi (Lennert) was playing number two and she felt dizzy with the hot weather and that kind of thing, and she finished but lost. Lena (Windhagen) won in straight sets. At two doubles, we lost the first set, and came back and won the second and third sets pretty easily, and then we won at three and four doubles. One of those was pretty convincing, and the other was in a tiebreaker in the third set.

"So, we were happy with that because we have five experienced players, and they're really solid. At three and four doubles, we have girls who are new to the sport, so we're going to struggle [there] until we get more experience. We've been plagued by a lot of double faulting, and we want them to get a better sense of where to move and how to cover for each other."

On Aug. 31, the Lady Hawks hosted Whitehall and won all matches except the match at number one doubles.

Magliochetti defeated Alexis Bundra, 6-0, 6-0, Windhagen, an exchange student from Germany, defeated Brenna Pangaio, 6-0, 6-0, and Lennert defeated Afaf Nazif, 6-1, 6-2.

"She hit some short balls that were hard to get to, so when she hit them crosscourt, it was a good thing for her, especially if I wasn't expecting them to be so short.

I think my first set was a bit better, being consistent and making sure I had spin on my shots," said Lennert, a former doubles player. "The strategy's a little different in singles. I did enjoy playing with a partner, but I think, when I play alone, it's my responsibility to get all the balls so I don't have to worry about someone else."

In doubles play, Ava Burkart and Claire Zaza defeated Giovanna Yacoub and Olivia Toto, 6-0, 6-1, Victoria Botek and Judy Pintor defeated Camila Araque and Kenosh Browne, 6-2, 4-6, 10-8, and Josie Fiorini and Elizabeth Schock defeated Aleksandra Niski and Jessica Lin, 6-1, 6-1.

Whitehall's Enas Saloum and Izabellah Morales defeated Hannah Miskovich and Sophia Fiorini, 8-4.

Becahi is scheduled to host Easton on Sept. 8 before three road trips; then, the Lady Hawks will return home on Sept. 14 to host East Stroudsburg South.

culminating in the Sun Bowl with a 42-30, shootout victory over Arizona State.

Chuck Fusina was their quarterback and Curt Warner - remember him? - was the lead back. They also featured local products running back Mike Guman (Allentown Central Catholic), tackle Keith Dorney (Emmaus), and linebacker Matt Milen (Whitehall). Wide receiver Jimmy Ceffalo (Pittston) also added some hometown flavor.

Swamp Fox: On Sept. 3, 1983, Marion Campbell, nicknamed "The Swamp Fox" who succeeded Dick Vermeil, won his first game as a Eagles' head coach with a 22-17 triumph over San Francisco. Vermeil stepped down in September citing "a burnout" from coaching, and compiled an overall 54-47 record in seven seasons.

Campbell struggled to a 17-29-1 record in three seasons during December 1985, and David Shula was the popular choice to replace him. Who did? The Eagles began a unique run with the legendary Buddy Ryan.

Shake, Shake, Shake: In early September of '77, Disco still had a hold over the country.

On the charts during the first week of September, KC and the Sunshine Band were jumping with "Shake Your Booty" along with Andy Gibb's "I Just Want to Be Your Everything" and the Emotions "Best of My Love" were controlling the top of the month.

We all became enamored with Mecos' "Star Wars Cantina Band," which helped set afire that saga.

Another Classic Game: Friend and head coach Eric Snyder recommended another game he played as a youth, and another that I didn't have.

"NBA Bas-ket" by Cadaco was a game that initially emerged in the early 1970s, and was still on the market in the early 2000s.

There was a court with six holes apiece on either side in which you could shoot a small round ball toward a basket. A backdrop of logos from all the NBA teams provided the perfect scenery. If you had an earlier game, you could see some of the classic NBA teams from the 70s, such as the Kansas City Kings and Baltimore Bullets.

You and your opponent could see how many baskets you could make in a time period.

Back to School: It was the traditional week when everyone goes back to school. There are plenty of memories along the way, and probably too many to mention.

Some recently recalled ones included book covers. There were the traditional brown bag ones, and those that were sponsored by local businesses. Remember those? I recall the blue and white business covers.

There also were the Friday pizza lunches in my Catholic elementary school in Nazareth when we lined up on my school stage to get our pizza. The kitchen was located just off the stage. The pizza slices were thin and would be considered cardboard slices today.

Back to the Beatles: Unknown to many, The Beatles played their last US venue and last concert 56 years ago this week at San Francisco's Candlestick Park on Aug. 29, 1966.

The Fab Four played in front of 25,000 fans, 7,000 short of a sellout. Attendance for concerts began to diminish in some cities, citing John Lennon and George Harrison's sharp criticism of the country's involvement in the Vietnam War.

At Candlestick, the Beatles played just an 11-song set, and their breakup was apparent.

They did reunite in January 1969 to play a final set on the roof of the Apple Building in London. According to several records, they only played a 10-song set with their swan song being "Get Back." However, some publications list "The Long and Winding Road" as their finale.

Final Summer Thoughts: When you were younger, do you remember catching fireflies? We would see their "lights" and rapidly scramble to catch them, and then place them in a glass jar. We would watch them move around the jar. It was simple, and now you wonder why we did it.

Also, I remember returning glass bottles in the paper six-pack holder to the grocery store for a handful of cents. Again, it was a simple task, but one that we looked forward to doing. The challenge was not to break any bottles before you got there.

Do You Remember? Every week, I'll mention a likely forgotten player or manager from yesterday. Do you remember Eagles' tackle Stan Walters? He was traded from the Bengals to the Eagles before the 1975 season, and became an All-Pro left tackle who started 122 consecutive games before his retirement in 1983. Walters' fame was raised when he served as Merrill Reese's color commentator in the radio booth from 1984 until 1997. Walters was known for his brash and frank style behind the mike.

but they kept playing. Our defense was solid. I think this was an attitude adjustment for us and we need it going into the last eight games. Consistency builds confidence and it's still too early to see how confident we are as a team."

Freedom (1-1) bounced back from their season-opening loss to Emmaus with a 33-20 victory over Easton last week.

Pete's Top-10: Eagles soar to No. 1 spot

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tnonline.com

It's week three of the poll and we have a new top team, but maybe Nazareth should have been at the top all along. With quarterback Sonny Sasso being the top signal caller in the conference, it's no surprise they've jumped out to an impressive start.

Northampton keeps making the case that it might actually give the big boys in the EPC South a run for their money in the postseason, while Bangor continues to play well in Colonial action.

What will Week 3 bring upon the District 11 landscape? Check out the picks below.

"We can't afford another effort like that one."

Haas knows the cupboard will be filled Friday night.

"I watched their game against Parkland and it was packed at Nazareth," said Haas. "I don't think I've ever seen that many people."

"They have a very good quarterback, good wide receivers, and a good running back. One of their tackles is a very good wrestler. They must be in good shape because most of their guys are two-way players, and they play a lot of man-to-man defense."

"We can't afford mistakes."

Against Pocono Mountain West, quarterback Luke Thomas went 12-for-20 for 145 yards with a touchdown. Running back Rahmel Terry rushed for 98 yards with Haas stated Terry left the game early due to an ankle sprain. He was held out of practice until Wednesday, and should be able to go against Nazareth. Jacob Sutton added 42 yards.

"We share the wealth running the ball," said Haas. "When (Terry) gets holes, he can find a lot of room. He is still getting his legs back from his surgery last year."

The key to success for the Hawks for the rest of the season will be to find their identity on offense.

"We need to figure out what we do well and stay with that," stressed Haas. "We have been doing a combination of things."

Yet, Haas appreciates the overall climate around his team this year.

"I'm glad we had this game," he said. "We'll take the win and we need to put it behind us."

But there is no finger pointing this year. That's big for us."

two games. They plastered Dieruff, 48-6, in their opener... Many will remember last year's matchup between the two teams in which Nazareth rallied for 28 second-half points to stun Becahi, 42-41 ... In the shortened 2020 COVID season, Nazareth blanked the Hawks, 21-0 ... The Golden Hawks hold the top spot in the District 11 Class 4A bracket, while the Blue Eagles are No. 3 in the 6A bracket ... This looms as a huge character test for Becahi, and Haas will rely on his defense.

Their offense has to be more consistent, and the Golden Hawks have the firepower. Becahi can't afford to fall behind early as Nazareth will bring plenty of momentum to the table ... Hawks can hang tough here, but it looks to be too much firepower to handle. If they can play ball control with Terry and the running game, it will be tight in the end ... Making a Mummy

It took time to make a mummy, or mummify, an animal. First, the animal's organs were removed. The body was rubbed with salts to dry it out. Then, it was covered in special oils and wrapped in cloth.

Some animals were put into special jars made to look like them.

Lehigh Valley Pops at St. Anne's

The 55+ Club at St. Anne's Catholic church in Bethlehem hosted a visit by the Lehigh Valley Pops Orchestra, conducted by George Fennell, Aug. 17. Playing a rich variety of music, the orchestra delighted the audience, which was made up largely of St. Anne's parishioners. The concert opened with the national anthem of Ukraine, followed by the "Star-spangled Banner." Then came Fauré's consisting of 55 members. All sections of a classical orchestra are represented. The players include retired professional musicians, among them the cellist Mardi Metzger, who played for years with several professional orchestras in the Valley. But most players are amateurs who have retired from other careers. According to Mr. Fennell there are no auditions to join. "You just have to be able to play the music." The orchestra rehearses on Thursdays at the Active Life Center in Allentown.

In the 20 years of the Pops' existence, this was the tenth concert at St. Anne's, according to Mr. Fennell. The orchestra plays a dozen concerts a year, all of them free to the public.

haunting "Pavane," which was followed by Broadway favorites and four tunes made famous by Louis Armstrong. A highlight was a performance of Cole Porter's "Night and Day," sung by guest artist Christine Catiello.

The LV Pops is an all-volunteer orchestra

Concert Master/Mistress Peggy Pearson is the first among instrumentalists in the orchestra. Among other things she leads the orchestra as it tunes before each performance.

Violist Ron DeGrandis is also a retired professional musician. He is joined by his student, Brooklyn Vasquez, who is still in high school in Easton.

U.S. Senator Bob Casey (D) has announced his approval of the Biden administration's federal student debt cancellation. This will give them the freedom to invest in their future, buy a home, or take a risk and start a business. It's an important first step forward in helping borrowers saddled with student debt. Moving forward, we must work to lower the skyrocketing costs of college so that future students are able to get an education without signing up for a lifetime of debt." 'Improving the health, well-being'

Capital Blue Cross recently donated $250,000 to support the St. Luke's Dental Van Campaign. Over the next five years the funds will help replace an aging fleet of dental vans that visit schools throughout the Lehigh Valley to provide oral health services to students.

The program provides much-needed dental care for those without insurance or access to reliable transportation at 40 schools within Lehigh, Northampton, Carbon, Schuylkill, Bucks and Monroe counties. One-third of the children treated on the vans are not covered by health insurance, and about half of the children have never been to a dentist.

For many students these vans are their only access to dental care.

"Capital Blue Cross is committed to improving the health and well-being of both our members and the communities they call home, and our ongoing work with St. Luke's reflects that commitment," said Capital Blue Cross Senior Vice President of Sales & Marketing David Skerpon. "The dental van campaign will not only help keep kids healthy, but it will also help us reach children who otherwise might not be able to access preventive dental care that benefits entire families and communities."

Capital's support of the St. Luke's van is part of its larger commitment to improve dental health across Central Pennsylvania and the Lehigh Valley. Since 2021, Capital has committed $835,000 toward a variety of dental initiatives in its 21-county service area.

Research shows that dental health and scholastic success are closely linked, and that untreated dental conditions can lead to pain, weight loss, missed school days and decreased self-esteem.

Capital's support of the dental van program is one of several ways the insurer collaborates with St. Luke's to bring high-quality, affordable care to the Lehigh Valley.

The check presentation was held on Aug. 11 at the Hispanic Center of the Lehigh Valley (HCLV), a nonprofit organization whose mission is to help low-income community members overcome obstacles that accompany poverty, including access to healthcare.

Searching for young filmmakers

Becahi program begins as extra-curricular activity

Daniel Roebuck, Bethlehem Catholic "Distinguished Alumni" is bringing filmmaking to his Alma Mater.

Roebuck, a native of the Lehigh Valley, has amassed a resume of well over 400 hundred movies and television episodes. As a writer and director, he has helmed three movies filmed locally. The first, "Getting Grace," has garnered a number of awards, many favorable reviews and been seen around the world.

Recently Roebuck turned his attention and experience toward making faith-based films that celebrate relationships with a higher power through the non-profit he co-founded, A Channel of Peace (www.achannelofpeace.org).

Since its inception, ACOP has also been dedicated to creating opportunity for young people to participate in the creation of those film projects through internships. Co-founder Tammy Roebuck had benefited greatly from an internship she enjoyed as a teenager which led her toward her own successful career in broadcasting, commercial directing and producing.

Danny and Tammy Roebuck finish the first edit of "The Hail Mary."

"Telling these stories is such an honor for us," Tammy said, "but we can't go on forever. Finding and teaching the next generation of artists the reality of this business and the art of filmmaking is a very joyful part of our mission."

"Let's not just talk about it theoretically," Daniel said, "let's roll up our sleeves and teach these kids how to do it from the ground up. Thanks to our films, we already have the greatest team of talented partners to help us teach the kids. I'm excited to get started."

Partnering with his former high school seems like the perfect place to build and grow such a program.

Lucas Wilde, new Bethlehem Catholic principal, welcomes the Young Filmmaker Program and sees it as being in line with the Catholic Church's emphasis on the use of digital communication tools to spread the Good News of the Gospel. Pope Francis recently said "Indeed, it is not enough to use the means of communication to spread the Christian message and the magisterium of the Church; it is necessary into the school's curriculum. It is A Channel of Peace's intention that once the program is successful it can be offered at other schools. However, Bethlehem Catholic will be the only place the program will be offered for the foreseeable future.

Student participation in film productions would include writing, acting, sound design, camera operation, crewing the films, editing, and directing. Participants would also have an opportunity to work on local ACOP productions. The goal of this program being the advancement of the art form and the discovery of future film making partners. The courses will be taught by many of the professional team that have helped Roebuck on his film projects as well as Diana Tice and other of Bethlehem Catholic's teachers.

"This program is a dream come true for us at A Channel of Peace," says founding board member Erin Maclean. "What an exciting opportunity to support wholesome educational space facilitating the creative talents of our youth and future filmmakers."

A Channel of Peace operates solely on donations and is especially reliant of its corporate partners to create and continue programs such as the Young Filmmakers Program. Both Embassy Bank and The John and Alice Freeh Faith in Families Foundation have committed to seeing the program through its first year.

Godfrey's fall season: Page B2

Bakithi Kumalo mixes jazz and world music to create his own sound that is spiritual and joyful.

Kumalo returns to a favorite venue, Godfrey Daniels, to begin its 47th season.

Miriam Clancy and Bakithi Kumalo featuring The South African All-Stars, perform at 8 p.m. Sept. 10 in the south side Bethlehem venue.

Kumalo, who is from South Africa, toured nearly 36 years with Paul Simon.

Kumalo has accompanied in concert and in the recording studio many artists, including Cyndi Lauper, Joan Baez, Gloria Estefan, Randy Brecker and Herbie Hancock.

Kumalo has played on five Grammy-winning albums and is ranked as one of the world's best bass players. He is known for the bass solo on "You Can Call Me Al" from Simon's "Graceland" album.

On a Zoom call from the studio in his Bethlehem home, Kumalo spoke about the Godfrey's concert, which is his sixth appearance there:

"It is always a special show there. I always bring different people for a little excitement."

He met Clancy, a singer-songwriter and New Zealand native, when they were doing a photo session at Godfrey's.

"We just connected and started doing music. We told stories, and I told her I played in New Zealand."

The small size of Godfrey Daniels appeals to Kumalo, who has often performed for audiences of many thousands. "I love it. You are so close to the people. It teaches you about dynamics because you can't play loud."

He is known for his relaxed shows there. "I got

A Lehigh Valley icon, as well as a national theater icon will be honored when Pennsylvania Playhouse presents "A Tribute to Sondheim & George B. Miller," 7 p.m. Sept. 16 at the theater, 390 Illick's Mill Road, Bethlehem.

Stephen Sondheim (1930 - 2021) was a "significant force in shaping the Broadway we all know and love today, and his music and shows have entertained millions for over half a century," says the revue's director John Corl.

"We pay tribute to the man and his music with a cabaret devoted to some of his most memorable songs," Corl says.

In 2021, the Lehigh Valley lost one of its own theater icons when George B. Miller died.

"George was an actor, director, teacher, mentor, radio show host, friend and so much more to so many people. He touched hundreds of lives in the Lehigh Valley theater community and well beyond," Corl says.

Lehigh Valley artist, playwright and puppeteer Doug Roysdon is exhibiting a collection of his illustrations and puppets in "Town and Puppet: Backstage Drawings," through Sept. 23, Rotunda Gallery, Town Hall, Bethlehem.

"They called this 'Town and Puppet' because we did our first show here in about 1980," says the puppet-maker and artistic director of Mock Turtle Marionette Theater, founded in 1978. "Basically, it had a relationship with the city all this time."

Roysdon has written three puppet-performance plays that relate to Bethlehem: "The Secret" (2019), about Bethlehem poet Hilda Doolittle; "My Name Is Jeremiah" (2004), spotlighting Lehigh Valley canal history, and "Biblio-Bedlam" (2001), a tribute to the Bethlehem Area Public Library.

Roysdon crafts the puppets from wood and stitches the intricate costumes by hand. "Sewing drives me nuts," he says.

30 concerts this fall at Godfrey's

Folk music, blues, Celtic, jazz and more by acts young and old from across the United States and across the pond are gearing up to bring their distinctive grooves to Godfrey Daniels this fall.

Godfrey Daniels, the Lehigh Valley's premier music listening club, is kicking off its 47th season with more than 30 concerts scheduled.

Co-founded in 1976 by local musician Dave Fry and community activist Cindy Dinsmore, Godfrey Daniels has been a landmark at 7 E. Fourth St., Bethlehem.

The season opens with a three-act weekend featuring United Kingdom-born Americana duo The Black Feathers, Sept. 8; singer-songwriter Blake Christiana, founder of roots superstars Yarn, Sept. 9, and Bakithi Kumalo & The South African All-Stars in a new collaboration with New Zealand native singer-songwriter Miriam Clancy, Sept. 10.

Ramona LaBarre, Godfrey Daniels managing director, says the club is maintaining pandemic protocols as it heads into its second season since Covid shut down live entertainment. "We are still coming back from being closed during the pandemic, and the season has many Godfrey's favorites, along with some artists new to our stage," she says.

A season highlight is the collaboration with Touchstone Theatre of Bethlehem's fourth annual "Festival Unbound," which includes a residency by Godfrey Daniels legend singer-songwriter John Gorka.

Gorka performs a solo concert at Godfrey's, Sept. 29; reunites with the Razyzy Dazyzy Spasm Band featuring his old friends from Moravian University, Sept. 30; present a singer-songwriter workshop with folksinger Anne Hills, Oct. 1, and is back at Godfrey's, Oct. 2, for a second solo show.

Also: Irish rock superstars The Glengarry Bhoys, Sept. 22, for their annual pre-Celtic Classic concert, and folk duo The Kennedys return for their annual Christmas show Dec. 16.

Singer-songwriter Carsie Blanton is in concert Oct. 20. Blanton opened Godfrey's 46th season, its first back from Covid, with a concert of songs from "Love and Rage." Her new tour, "UnDressedUp," features two shows in one night: a solo show and one with her band.

The schedule includes: Solas fiddler extraordinaire Winifred Horan, Oct. 23; New Orleans folk rock diva Lilli Lewis, Oct. 28, and Pierre Bensusan, a guitarist from France, Nov. 12.

Grammy Lifetime Achievement Award-winner Tom

Paxton is with The Don-Juans, Oct. 26, in a rescheduled show from earlier this year.

The Nighthawks perform Nov. 19 to celebrate the blues and roots-rock band's 50th anniversary. "I was seeing these guys before I ever knew what Godfrey Daniels was," says LaBarre. "It's such an honor for me to be working at a place where we're presenting these artists I've been in love with for decades."

Among the Lehigh Valley-area performers is a tribute to Bucky Pizzarelli, the jazz guitarist, featuring his grandson, John Pizzarelli, and Frank DiBussolo, Oct. 8, and roots and rock band Tavern Tan performs Oct. 14 in support of the group's latest record, "Tandemic."

Covid protocols remain in place at Godfrey Daniels, including requirements for performers, staff, volunteers and patrons to be vaccinated or show proof of a negative PCR test. The wearing of face masks is required. The number of tickets sold continues to be reduced. Protocols continue to be evaluated.

nervous playing with Paul [Simon], but not my own stuff. I can let my instruments speak.

"Sometimes, I will even call out the wrong song and the band says, 'We did not rehearse that.' I don't worry. I'm not a machine."

Morris Goldberg on horns and David Bravo on keyboards, who will accompany Kumalo for the Godfrey's concert, previously played there with him. His band will include a drummer-percussionist.

Kumalo is bringing a variety of instruments to the concert. There might be a piccolo or a stand-up bass, and perhaps an amplified kalimba (thumb piano) and aerophone he played on his most recent album. The aerophone is a digital wind instrument with voicings that emulate other instruments.

His latest album, "What You Hear is What You See," was released in 2021.

"I had the structure for the album in 2012, but I was busy touring. I would write pieces and leave them alone and put them away."

As with most musicians, Kumalo had more time at home during the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic shutdown.

"In 2019, I started putting this together. I was looking for a producer with an ear for this type of music, not just anybody. I found Maxfield Gast, who is a beautiful sax player."

Gast is one of 31 musicians on "What You Hear," which was recorded remotely and assembled over the Internet.

"Everybody who had a studio had a job," says Kumalo.

Kumalo has six solo albums available in United States. He has released 10 albums, including those he made in South Africa when he was a studio musician there.

"What You See" shows Kumalo mastering his combination of jazz and his South African roots. African chants, vocals and spoken word blend with contemporary melodies and a few improvisational turns.

Kumalo plays keyboards, percussion, guembri (a three-string bass from Morocco), kalimba and aerophone. On one song, he hands over the bass playing to Biodun Kutu.

Kumalo has appeared at SteelStacks' Musikfest Cafe and Levitt Pavilion SteelStacks with his "Graceland Experience" band, featuring songs from the Paul Simon album.

This summer, Kumalo returned to teach at the Lehigh University Music Master Mentor Program Summer Camp for 25 area middle and high school students.

"I like to work with kids and share the experience of music with them."

"They are from different schools, but by the end of camp everyone is part of the same family. If someone has trouble playing something, other kids will step up and help."

The hands-on experience he shares goes beyond playing the music:

"I will show them how an instrument works, how to take it apart and put it back together."

"I might take someone's bass and fix it, so then they will say, 'Now I can practice every day.'"

"Music is a business that can work for you if you treat it the right way. And you can use music to heal yourself," says Kumalo.

Future mother-in-law as wedding planner

Dear Jacquelyn,
I am getting married in a few months and my future mother-in-law is not happy with our decision to not have "first-look photos" taken prior to the wedding service. She is interfering by forcing her own opinions on us and suggesting that our way is inconvenient for guests. In the wedding planning discussions between my future husband and myself, we both really want for the first time he sees me to be when I walk down the aisle. She doesn't like the idea of the wedding party arriving an hour later than guests to the cocktail hour. How do I deal with a future mother-in-law who's voicing a strong opposing opinion without ruining

RESPECTFULLY YOURS
By Jacquelyn Youst

our relationship?

Dear Reader,
When it comes to wedding planning, it's natural for mothers on both sides to want to be involved.

Problems arise when one wants to be way more involved than you're comfortable with.

First of all, discuss this issue with your future husband. You both need to be on the same page.

Then, together you can sit down and kindly inform your future mother-in-law that your plan to not do a first-look photo is a mutual decision.

Share with her the reasons why. Let her know that you want to share this sweet magical moment with guests, wedding party and the family.

The new tradition of doing first-look photos isn't for everyone. If you don't do a "first look," chances are you'll be taking most of your photos after the ceremony.

Your future mother-in-law is correct. While your guests are enjoying cocktail hour, you'll be tackling photos. On the plus side, you'll actually be married for these portraits, which means you'll both be wearing your rings.

It's highly likely that your future mother-in-law does not mean to be dishing out unsolicited advice. Giving advice could be her way to feel needed and included. Avoid screaming and yelling matches, and try a more honest and open approach instead.

Keep the lines of communication open. You can do this in a polite way that doesn't damage your relationship. It's possible to be polite while still doing things differently, and at the same time appreciate her advice.

One way to push past this glitch is to include her in other wedding planning tasks to show you really value her opinion.

Opinions are always nice but, when it comes to weddings, final decisions are ultimately the bride's choice.

Respectfully Yours,
Jacquelyn

People who make a difference

A few weeks ago I wrote about my admiration for Fred Rogers and his delightful Mr. Rogers Neighborhood programs for children.

I mentioned the unusual way he reacted the night he received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the National Academy of Arts and Science.

Instead of making that moment about him he paid tribute to all those who helped shape him throughout his life.

He asked his star-studded audience to close their eyes for 10 seconds and think of all those who "loved you into being ... those who cared about you and made a difference in your life."

As the cameras panned the audience, it showed many were moved to tears by recalling those who cared about them.

Mr. Rogers believed we all are shaped by many throughout life. I feel the same way.

I picture each of us as a snowman in progress. Some add significantly, adding the snow that shapes us and defines us into being.

Others may just give us a pat or two but that, too, helps define us in some way. And others put the finishing touches on our snowman. But it's those finishing touches that gives the snowman character.

What I'm trying to do with this snowman analogy is to show it's not just one person that makes us who we are. Instead, it's a lifetime accumulation of influences.

Ask anyone who they believed shaped them the most and they might say their mother or dad.

When I was young I would have credited my dad as being the most influential person in my life. When I got older I realized it was my mother who did the most for me, and, in the process, greatly influenced the person I became.

My brother mostly palled around with my dad doing guy things. Yet as he got older he said he realized it was our mother who taught him life's most important lessons.

We learned our money management skills from our mother but the most important thing we learned from her was that we could always count on her, no matter what.

I'm sure I modeled my parenting after her. The family values she imparted have been passed down through two generations.

But I have to confess, I never said I wanted to grow up and be just like my mother.

My hero, the person I most looked up to and wanted to emulate was my Aunt Rose.

When we needed a place to live she brought us into her small home. Her sisters may have had bigger homes but she had a bigger heart.

One story that most tells her character was how she brought home a mentally challenged man because he had no place to sleep.

Her sisters were horrified. They said, "What will people think?"

WARMEST REGARDS
By Pattie Mihalik

Aunt Rose never worried about what people would think. She believed in helping anyone in need. She didn't just "do good" when it was easy or convenient.

I always wanted to grow up to be like my Aunt Rose. I fall short when I try to emulate her but she did give me something to aspire to.

Mr. Rogers was fond of saying sometimes we can have a positive effect on someone even if we only have a brief casual contact.

I've been spending time this week during my morning gratitude walks thinking about people who came into my life only briefly. But they are unforgettable for the impact they had on me.

It was seven decades ago that two caring neighbors reached out to help a little girl whose world suddenly collapsed.

Her parents were divorcing, her father was moving far away and her mother was struggling to find a job and a home for her children.

The little girl's life was in turmoil but she felt at peace when Mrs. Kreiger brought her into her beautiful garden. She encouraged the child to just sit there, relax and take in the beauty whenever she wanted.

Two other neighbors let the little girl have a daily playtime with their prized German Schnauzer, knowing the healing a pet can bring about.

I, of course, was that little girl and what I remember was how those neighbors gave me comfort when I needed it.

To this day I believe every single encounter we have might be enough to uplift someone's day.

We never know how a little encouragement can help someone.

A few months ago at a women's Emmaus meeting a woman came up to me and said she needed to thank me for the hug I gave her at the last meeting.

"It made me aware that someone cares," she said.

A woman who had just lost her husband told me that same thing.

We never know what impact our brief encounters can have.

The more I think about those who made an impact on my life the more I realize how many people shape us or help us in a significant way.

I thought this week about Mary, the Palmerton woman who helped me take care of my late husband Andy then helped me through the grieving process after he died.

I may not see her again but I will forever hold her close in my heart.

I owe a debt of gratitude to so many people. And if you think about your own life, you may realize you do, too.

It's a cool time for cool-season vegetables

Before plunging into the topic of growing fall vegetables, there are two important and relevant horticultural terms you should understand: warm-season and cool-season vegetables.

A warm-season vegetable completes its life cycle in one growing season. Warm-season vegetables are often transplanted when the soil has been warmed, and in some cases, may also be directly seeded into the soil.

Examples of warm-season vegetables include tomatoes, eggplants, beans, cucumbers, peppers, sweet potatoes, watermelon and summer squash.

A cool-season vegetable needs the cooler temperatures to germinate and set seed. Cool-season vegetables may also be referred to as fall or shoulder vegetables because not only are they some of the first to be planted in the spring but may also be planted later into the season. These fall crops are excellent candidates for use with season extenders and tend to be leafy greens and root crops.

Common cool-season vegetables include Asian greens, asparagus, beets, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, chives, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, Swiss chard, kale, leeks, lettuce, onions, parsnips, peas, radishes, spinach and turnips.

Cool-season crops may grow in warmer temperatures, but the quality of the produce may suffer from the higher temperatures. A good example of this is the radish left in the soil too long. The radish will become fibrous, spicy and will also bolt. Bolting or "going to seed" is caused by a change in temperature and/or day length.

You may have heard people say that certain vegetables taste sweeter following a light frost.

This is called "winter sweetening" and is a phenomenon you often see in vegetables that grow naturally in cold weather.

While the first frost of fall will kill lots of plants, there are many varieties, root crops in particular, that will survive these much colder temperatures. This is because, in part, to their ability to convert starch into sugar.

Over the course of the growing season, these vegetables store up energy in the form of starches. When temperatures start to drop, they convert these starches into sugars, which act as an anti-freezing agent for their cells.

This change doesn't happen overnight, but as long as you pick your root vegetables sometime after the first frost of autumn, chances are good that they'll taste a lot sweeter than if you'd picked them in the summer.

Carrots, turnips, rutabagas and beets are all roots that get sweet with frost. Some other vegetables that get sweet in winter are cole crops such as Brussels sprouts, broccoli, kale and most leafy greens.

Some vegetables can remain in the garden. Parsnips and horseradish can be left undug, or stored, in the garden over winter. These vegetables withstand freezing, but alternate freezing and thawing damages them. If you store them in the ground, mulch them lightly at the end of the growing season.

Keep them covered until outdoor temperatures are consistently low. Then remove the mulch to permit thorough freezing. After they have frozen, mulch them again deep enough to keep them frozen.

LVHN administering Novavax vaccines

Lehigh Valley Health Network (LVHN) began administering Novavax COVID-19 vaccines as another primary series option for adults over the age of 18 at the COVID-19 Vaccine Clinic - MacArthur Road, Whitehall Township, Sept. 2.

The Food and Drug Administration and Centers for Disease and Prevention (CDC) authorized Novavax in July.

Novavax is a two-dose primary series and is given at least three weeks apart, but can be given up to eight weeks apart if necessary.

The Novavax vaccine uses a different type of technology than the mRNA vaccines developed by Pfizer-BioNTech and Moderna. It uses a more traditional protein-based approach like other vaccines used to prevent illnesses.

The Novavax vaccine is not indicated for use as a booster and is only available for those who have not received a previous COVID-19 vaccine.

"Novavax is a great option for those who have not been vaccinated because of an allergy to an mRNA component in the other available vaccines or for those who have been waiting for a different option," said Alex Benjamin, MD, LVHN Chief Infection Control and Prevention Officer, Infectious Diseases.

"Vaccines remain the best defense against complications from severe COVID-19 infection," Dr. Benjamin said.

Scheduling is encouraged and can be completed through MyLVHN, or the COVID-19 vaccine hotline, 833-584-6283 (833-LVHN-CVD). The hotline is open 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

While appointments are recommended, walk-ins are accepted at the COVID-19 Vaccine Clinic-MacArthur Road location.

Solomon's UCC to host annual Polka Worship Service

SEPTEMBER 11

CONTRIBUTED ARTICLE

Solomon's UCC in Macungie will host its annual "Polka Worship Service" 10:15 a.m. Sept. 11.

This traditional liturgical music service will be provided by the Heidelberg Brass Band from Lancaster County under the direction of Rev. Glenn Beard Jr., who also leads the congregation in song.

The band features four trumpets, a baritone, a trombone and drums and has performed for more than six decades in Lancaster and Berks counties and more recently Lehigh County at Solomon's UCC in Macungie.

The worship service songs are inspiring and set to catchy, familiar polka tunes such as "Beer Barrel Polka," "Pennsylvania Polka," "Baruska - Bohemian Polka," and "Liechtensteiner Polka," to name a few.

Initially it sounds crazy to think of these songs being the basis of a church worship service; however, the words are befitting of any church hymnal. Every tune is fun to sing yet is respectful and appropriate for church.

The polka service is one of Solomon's favorites.

ionettes and drawings of scenes to serve as reference points in his collaborations with other artists assisting with the productions.

"The performer would understand who he was by looking at the mask," Roysdon says.

Illustrations created for a book Roysdon is working on are on display. The scenes are from performances with space reserved for poems or text. He plans a limited edition print run as gifts for puppeteers and those involved with his plays.

There are seven intricate ink drawings featuring what the artist says is Bethlehem's "mythic pseudo history" from a set of 12 that are to be published in a "Bethleanna" calendar "someday."

Much of the exhibit, created during the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic shutdown, features characters and scenes for future performances, such as a graceful female "Fashion Plate" puppet and related renderings inspired by the New York Times Fashion Magazine.

"Look at these people posing. They are the best puppets," Roysdon says, "I could not ask for a better model for puppets." He looks to explore "What are they thinking?" when they strike "inscrutable" poses for a fashion photographer.

A pair of wood and fabric characters wearing top hats is one of 10 sets of puppets from "My Name Is Jeremiah."

"The play was premiered in 2004 at the Ice House about 15 feet from the canal itself," says Roysdon.

He spent one year writing and creating puppets for the project in a partnership with the National Canal Museum, Hugh Moore

Park, Easton. "Puppet H.D.," a red-haired marionette in a blue dress, is of Bethlehem, artist Hilda Doolittle, subject of "The Secret."

Rounding out the exhibit are a few of Roysdon's unpublished pen and ink political cartoons. "I might have become a political cartoonist, but I became a puppeteer," Roysdon says.

The Mock Turtle Marionette Theater, based in Bethlehem, has presented productions in Germany, Lakota Indian Reservations, the Virgin Islands, The Kennedy Center, Philadelphia Museum of Art, Lincoln Center and the New York International Fringe Festival.

In 1996, Roysdon opened The Loft Theater at the Charles A. Brown Ice House for Mock Turtle's "The Saturday's Child Family Series."

Roysdon and his puppets are appearing in Bethlehem Area School District classrooms for presentations about climate change and other topics.

Roysdon received degrees in art education and art history from the University of Akron, University of Arizona and Kutztown University.

The exhibition is sponsored by the Bethlehem Fine Arts Commission.

Make it a Djinn & tonic

AT THE MOVIES
By Paul Willistein
pwillistein@tnonline.com

"Be careful what you wish for, lest it come true."

"Aesop's Fables"
(Circa 260 BC)
"3,000 Years Of Longing," which is about a djinn (pronounced "gin"), or genie, in a bottle, rubbed me the wrong way.

Michael "Movie Maven" Gontkosky of Whitehall said it best, "After seeing this film, I need a djinn and tonic."

Call it "The Djinn Game" or "The Djinn Mill," there have been numerous movies about the genie in a bottle.

Genie in a bottle-themed movies are often based on "One Thousand and One Nights," a collection of Middle Eastern folks tales.

In the Islam faith, a genie, or djinn, is a spirit, angel or devil. Some believe that a djinn can take the form of a human. Some say a djinn has the power to produce hallucinations in humans.

That is the direction that director George Miller took with "3,000 Years of Longing." You don't know whether seeing is believing.

Miller co-wrote the screenplay with Augusta Gore, (feature film screenplay debut), based on a short story, "The Djinn in the Nightingale's Eye" (1994), by A. S. Byatt.

Genies have popped out of bottles for a century in cinema, at least 60 movies by my count, including:

"The 7th Voyage of Sinbad" (1958), a Technicolor feature film; "Ali Baba Bunny" (1957), a "Merry Melodies" Bugs Bunny cartoon short directed by Chuck Jones; "Bowery to Bagdad" (1955), starring the Bowery Boys; "The Thief of Bagdad" (1940) and "The Brass Bottle" (1964, 1923), based on a 1900 novel.

Many genie in a bottle movies devolve into horror films when a dream wish turns into a nightmare. Yes, be careful what you wish for.

Most famously is the Walt Disney Motion Pictures' animation feature film, "Aladdin" (1992) with Robin Williams voicing the Genie, and a live-action remake, "Aladdin" (2019), starring Will Smith as the Genie. Smith's wish might be to make his 2022 Academy Awards' host Chris Rock smack-down disappear from the viewing public's collective consciousness.

And, of course, there's TV's "I Dream of Jeannie" (1965-1970), starring Barbara Eden as "a 2,000-year-old sultry genie." I'd like to meet her plastic surgeon.

"3,000 Years of Longing" has a lot to live up to, not the least of which is "Kazaam" (1996), starring Shaquille O'Neal, and "Duck Tales: Treasure of the Lost Lamp" (1990).

In "3,000 Years of Longing," The Djinn (Idris Elba) is released from an ornamental bottle purchased by Alitheia (Tilda Swinton), a British scholar of story and mythology, during a trip to Istanbul, Turkey, to deliver a lecture, "Adventures in Narratology." The Djinn grants her three wishes.

The movie-goer has some wishes, too. Read on.

The movie djinns it up with computer generated imagery. The special effects are impressive. The film is interesting to a point.

CONTRIBUTED IMAGE: METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER

Elba ("The Beast" 2022; "Avengers: Infinity War," 2018) and Swinton (Oscar, supporting actress "Michael Clayton," 2007) are fine in their roles.

The film is mostly a two-hander, with Elba and Swinton yakking away in her hotel room. They wear five-star hotel standard-issue white terry-cloth bathrobes. At times, it's more like 3,000 years of lounging.

The hotel Istanbul scenes are very chaste, although Swinton does shoo away room service. Apparently, Eggs Benedict was not on her wish list.

The film consists mostly of flashbacks whereby The Djinn recalls centuries of his lost loves: the Queen of Sheba, the harem of Suleiman the Magnificent and a nervous loner in the Ottoman Empire.

The backstory is tilted in Elba's favor. My first wish was to know more about the character played by Swinton.

Sure, she heads to "Istanbul (Not Constantinople)" as The Four Lads or They Might Be Giants sing. The film is slight on the whys and wherefores of the underwritten character.

My second wish was for something more from director George Miller (Oscar, animated feature film "Happy Feet," 2006).

Missing is the intensity of "Mad Max: Fury Road, 2015; "Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome," 1985; "The Road Warrior," 1981, and "Mad Max," 1979"; the whimsy of "Babe: Pig in the City," 1998; the scholarly inquiry of "Lorenzo's Oil," 1992, and the intrigue of "The Witches of Eastwick" (1987).

My third wish was for symbolism, significance and metaphor, more along the lines of "One Hundred Years of Solitude" (1967), the novel by Colombian author Gabriel Garcia Márquez.

Perhaps there's a shelf life involved. "3,000 Years of Longing" is a long time.

"Ay, there's the rub," Hamlet bemoans in his soliloquy, "To be or not to be" (William Shakespeare play, "Hamlet," Act 3, Scene 1).

Yes, that's the problem: One can run out of wishes.

"3,000 Years of Longing," MPA rated R (Restricted Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian. Contains some adult material. Parents are urged to learn more about the film before taking their young children with them.) for some sexual content, graphic nudity and brief violence; Genre: Fantasy, Drama, Romance; Run time: 1 hour, 48 minutes; Distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Credit Readers Anonymous: "3,000 Years of Longing" was filmed in Australia and Istanbul, Turkey.

At the Movies: "3,000 Years of Longing" was seen in the standard format at AMC Center Valley 16. I was surprised that the film wasn't screened in the Dolby format.

Theatrical motion picture domestic box office, Sept. 2-4 weekend box office results were unavailable because of the early deadline for the Focus print newspaper section because of Labor Day holiday.

Unreel, Sept. 9: "Medieval," R: Petr Jákł directs Michael Caine, Ben Foster, Sophie Lowe and Matthew Goode in the History Action Drama. It's based on the story of 15th century Czech icon and warlord Jan Zizka, who defeated armies of the Teutonic Order and the Holy Roman Empire.

"True Things," No MPAA rating: Harry Woodliff directs Ruth Wilson, Tom Burke, Hayley Squires and Tom Weston-Jones in the drama. A young woman falls in love with a stranger.

"Lifemark," PG-13: Kevin Peeples directs Isabelle Almojan, Lowrey Brown and Kirk Cameron in the drama. A teen's life is turned upside down when his birth mother shows up.

Unreel, Sept. 13: "Clerks III," R: Kevin Smith writes, directs and stars (as Silent Bob) in the sequel. Also starring in the comedy: Ben Affleck, Rosario Dawson, Sarah Michelle Gellar, Justin Long, Fred Amisen, Brian O'Halloran (Dante), Trevor Fehrman (Elias), Jason Mewes (Jay) and Jeff Anderson (Randal). Dante, Elias, Jay and Silent Bob are asked by Randal to make a movie about the convenience store where it all began.
