 Murphy's Law
 affects election

BY BERNIE O'HARE
 Special to the Bethlehem Press

Provisions of the Elections Code are strictly followed in every Pennsylvania election. Unfortunately for Northampton County elections officials, another law raised its ugly head in the Nov. 5 municipal election. Murphy's Law, the epigram that anything that can go wrong will go wrong, was in full force during the county's rollout of a brand new voting system called The Express Vote XL.

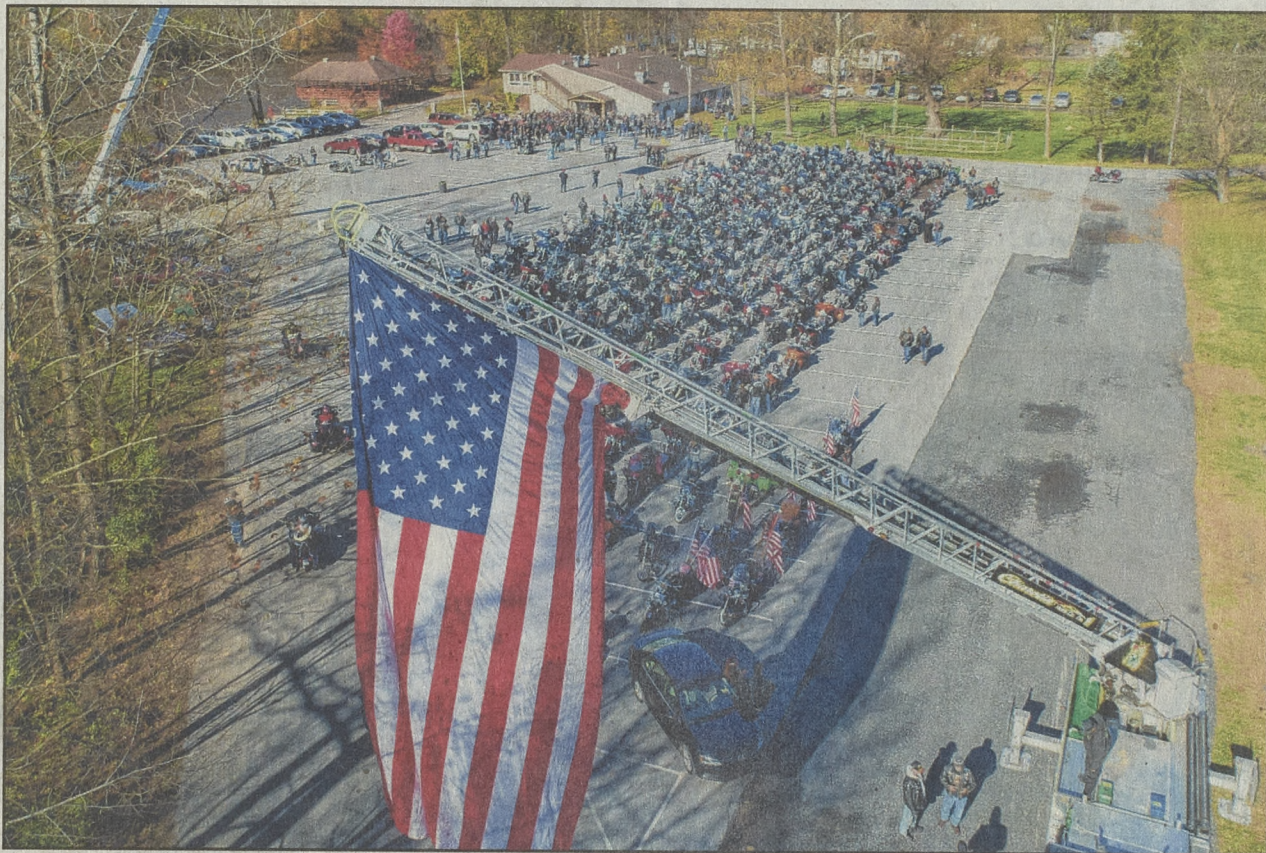

Related voting story on A4

In addition to hypersensitive screens, the touch screens improperly and computed results in the judicial races. After the polls closed, the printed results from the flash drives inside each machine had candidate Democrat Abe Kassis behind Republican Vic Scomillio with less than 100 votes. The voter-verifiable paper ballots, however, say he actually won one of the two judgeships decided. This vote is currently being canvassed, which is a close re-examination of the results in every precinct. Once results are certified, a legal challenge is possible. Republicans have already obtained a court order impounding all voting machines and ballots.

How did we get here?

Prior to Nov. 5, Northampton County was using a stand-alone touch screen to tabulate votes. But as part of the settlement of a lawsuit filed by the Green Party's Jill Stein, Pennsylvania's Department of State directed all 67 counties to select new voting systems with a voter verifiable paper trail, making post-election audits more accurate. The directive added all systems must be in place before the 2020 primary. The statewide cost for this thus far unfunded mandate change is estimated at $125 million to $150 million. Only 46 counties, including Lehigh and Northampton, have introduced their new systems.

TUCKER'S TOY RUN

Great ride, great cause

BY DANA GRUBB

Bikers came from as far away as West Virginia, New Jersey and New York to participate.

The ninth annual Tucker's Toy Run was held Nov. 2, as sunny weather encouraged over 700 bikers to make the ride from Northampton to St. Luke's University Hospital's Fountain Hill campus to deliver well over a thousand toys for pediatric patients throughout the hospital's system.

"The success we have is because of all of you," said organizer Rick Nauman.

The event is run through the Lehigh Valley Community Benefit organization and honors the memory of Pamela Herman and her husband John deliver toys for the children. They live in Bath.

Tucker Stuart, who died in a motorcycle crash in 2011. In addition to the hundreds of motorcyclists on their bikes, the impressive procession also included about a half dozen vans and trucks packed with toys for the kids. The toys delivered are then distributed to the nine, soon to be 10, hospital campuses where children are treated or hospitalized.

Upon their arrival, the bikers unload the toys into pediatric cribs and laundry carts, and bikers are treated to refreshments provided by nurses and the hospital's cafeteria. A new feature for 2019 was a raffle that offered 10 cash prizes and a grand prize of a 2019 Harley Davidson Soft Tail Deluxe motorcycle.

"It's a great ride and great cause," says Orefield resident Dean Ritter.

Several trucks and vans transported well over 1,000 toys for pediatric patients at St. Luke's.

"Tucker was a friend of my wife's family," says Jonathan Warke from Kutztown.

MISSING PERSON
ISABEL SHEA HICKS
October 21, 2019
Bumpass, Virginia

DETAILS
Isabel Shea Hicks was last seen at her residence in Bumpass, Virginia, early in the morning of October 21, 2019. She is believed to be an endangered missing juvenile. In the company of Bruce Lynch, 34, also of Bumpass, Isabel is 24 years old at the time of her disappearance. She is described as a white female, 5'11", 120 pounds with blonde hair and blue eyes.
Bruce Lynch is 34 years of age and described as a white male, 5'10", 180 pounds with brown hair, brown eyes and a beard. It is possible that Bruce Lynch is driving a light blue, almost silver looking, 2003 Toyota Matrix with Virginia tag VEM-9071. Lynch may be considered armed and potentially dangerous.
Contact law enforcement immediately - do not approach - if either Lynch or Isabel are spotted.
The FBI Richmond Division is working with the Louisa County Sheriff's Office. Please contact the Richmond Division of the FBI at 804-261-2044 with information that may lead to the location and safe return of Isabel Hicks.

Girl missing since Oct. 21

A 14-year-old girl is missing from her home in Virginia and may be in the company of a 34-year-old male. Isabel Shea Hicks, of Bumpass, Va., was last seen at her home early in the morning Oct. 21. According to law enforcement officials, Isabel may be with Bruce Lynch, 34, also of Bumpass. Isabel is described as 4 feet 11 inches tall and 120 pounds with blonde hair and blue eyes. Lynch is described as 5 feet, 10 inches tall and 190 pounds with brown hair, brown eyes and a beard. Both are described as white. Lynch might be driving a light blue 2003 Toyota Matrix with Virginia license plate VEM-9071. Investigators believe Isabel and Lynch may be staying in wooded areas conducive to camping, such as campgrounds and parks, to avoid being seen. Lynch should be considered armed and potentially dangerous, according to FBI officials. Witnesses are advised not to approach Lynch or Isabel and to contact authorities at 804-261-1044 chose the Express Vote XL.

What is The Express Vote XL?

This is a hybrid system combining the convenience of a 32-inch touch screen with the added redundancy of a voter-verifiable paper trail. It has been certified on both federal and state levels. In Pennsylvania, it has been certified twice. It cost Northampton County taxpayers $2.9 million, though the state has promised a 60 percent reimbursement.

This system was the choice of a majority of 40 poll workers who reviewed four competing systems. County Executive Lamont McClure endorsed it, and a 3-2 majority of the Elections Commission agreed. At a contentious meeting in March, Elections Commissioner Deb Hunter and other paper ballot purists objected to the cost and insisted paper ballots were the only reliable way to count votes.

Elections Commission Chair George Treisner disagreed, saying paper ballots would be a return "to the old ages."

County GOP Chair Lee Snover agreed. "We have technology for a reason," she argued. "I don't want anyone determining the intent of my vote except for me and the machine."

Northampton County Council approved the purchase in May, after waiting to see how the system worked in Delaware and hearing from their elections officials. Only council member Bob Werner was opposed.

NorCo's voter outreach, training and testing

Northampton County's elections judges and machine operators underwent two hours of mandatory training on the Express Vote XL. In addition, the county demonstrated the new system at numerous venues, from four different senior centers to the Blue Valley Farm Show. Once the ballot was prepared, "logic and accuracy" testing was done on each machine before being put in use. This is done to ensure software has been set up properly to accurately count the specific ballots for that election.

"Your vote will be counted," McClure assured voters just days before the election.

Election Day

Once polls opened at 6 a.m., complaints began to pour in. Two of them came from Judges Michael Koury and Craig Dally, both of whom were up for retention. They complained that voters were unable to vote for or against them. Some of the machines were very sensitive because they are activated by a laser, as opposed to actual touch. A court order was issued, instructing elections judges and machine operators to advise voters to seek help if they have problems making a choice. A second court order issued later that day had even more detailed instructions.

About 30 voters were asked what they thought about the new system after they voted. Some complained it is difficult to see the paper ballot, but most liked to know it was there. "That's a lot better than politicians doing their thing," said one voter. "I never really had a problem with the old system," added another. "I liked the levers; I hate computers," said a third. Some did complain about sensitivity, but were able to make their selections.

As it happens, Judges Koury and Dally were overwhelmingly re-elected.

The real problem started when the polls closed and the machines began printing their results. The most glaring problem was that Abe Kassis had no votes at all when the first two precincts, both from heavily Democratic Easton, reported. As the night progressed, this problem was magnified throughout the rest of the county. It also appeared in other races. Hanover Township Supervisor Steve Salvesen, a Republican seeking re-election, had zero votes in a three-way race for two seats. This was happening in races involving cross-filed candidates.

Obviously, something was wrong.

At this point, McClure sought and received permission from the Department of State to tabulate the back-up paper ballots. The scanning went on all night long until about 5:30 a.m., when the paper ballots showed Kassis had actually won one of the two judicial vacancies.

McClure, Express Vote XL manufacturer, apologize

In a news conference the following day, both Executive McClure and the Express Vote XL manufacturer apologized.

"[T]his is one of my responsibilities," said McClure. "To the voters yesterday who had difficulty casting their ballots, I am sorry. We will do better. To the candidates, their families and supporters who were unnecessarily made anxious by this process, I am sorry."

Electronic Systems & Software Exec VP Adam Carbullido also apologized to Northampton County voters and officials. He said his company is committed to ensuring this never occurs again. He expressed "a high degree of confidence" in the tabulation of the paper ballots. But amazingly, "we don't know the root cause of the issue," he said.

He won't know until he has access to the impounded voting machines.

Council member Kevin Lott told Carbullido he has no confidence in ES&S. "You put this county in a very bad position. We thought we were buying a Cadillac, and it doesn't work."

"I have no confidence in the paper ballots, said council member Peg Ferraro. Without knowing the root cause, how can one be sure the paper ballots are accurate? Presumably it's because voters had the opportunity to review them before casting their ballots. There have been no reports that the paper ballot failed to match the

Problems in other counties

Philadelphia, like Northampton County, also introduced the Express Vote XL on Election Day. Voters there complained of long lines, touch screen sensitivity and difficulty seeing the printed ballot. There were, however, no complaints about the accuracy of the results.

In Lehigh, where paper ballots are used, there were complaints about voter privacy. This concern is what prompted NorCo election judges to recommend The Express Vote XL.

York County, like Lehigh, opted to use a paper ballot system. It was plagued by problems all day. "We just didn't realize it would be as challenging and time consuming to scan the ballots," President Commissioner Susan Byrnes told York Daily News on election night.

Any Good News?

The silver lining to the dark clouds on Election Day is that there was a voter-verifiable paper trail. This redundancy appears to have saved the day. Although a challenge is being mullied by Republicans, there is a strong public interest in the finality of elections. Moreover, the burden would be on challengers to prove the paper ballot back-up is inaccurate.

Panel explores small-city food challenges

BY LANI GOINS
Special to the Bethlehem Press

On Monday, Sept. 23, an author and a panel of food experts gathered in the commons at the Lehigh Valley Charter HS for the Arts for a book talk and discussion of the food successes and issues in the city of Bethlehem and beyond.

Mark Winne, author of Food Town USA: Seven Unlikely Cities Changing the Way We Eat, started off the evening by introducing himself and reading some of his book to the audience. Of the cities profiled in the book, Bethlehem has the honor of the first chapter. The book was for sale at the event, with the proceeds benefiting The Charter HS Lunch Box Fund, and the Lehigh Valley Food Policy Council.

The discussion panelists included Kelly Allen, of Northampton Community College and the board of the Bethlehem Food Co-op; Diane Elliott, former executive director of New Bethany Ministries; Chris Hudock, of the Rising Tide Community Loan Fund; Fran Molinari, of Molinari's Restaurant; Olga Negron, Bethlehem City Council, and Laura Kuykendall, head of marketing at The Factory, LLC.

Winne's book centers on smaller cities across the United States that have struggled with food issues, predominantly food supply and or food deserts, and have developed cultures and strategies that are helping combat these issues. He read the chapter on Sitka, Alaska, which faces challenges to its food system caused by climate change. He also read a passage from his chapter on Bethlehem, about Fegley's Brew Works.

Much of the discussion centered on Bethlehem, and its four food deserts, particularly the Southside, where no full-service grocery store exists. The lack of space for such a store was mentioned, as was the socioeconomic dynamic of the area.

Some of the local initiatives discussed were community gardens, including the garden at New Bethany Ministries on the Southside; the Bethlehem Food Co-op; and the Lehigh Valley Fresh Food Bucks program. The Food Co-op is in the fundraising stage, with plans to open a grocery location somewhere in the city. Fresh Food Bucks is participated in by certain vendors at local farmer's markets, and offers double benefits to SNAP recipients, allowing up to $10 to be doubled.

Economic growth of restaurants, festivals, and educational institutions was another point of the discussion. Northampton Community College's development of a substantial community garden, and Charter Arts students, faculty and parents seeking lunch and dinners in the area were highlighted. Diane LaBelle, director of Charter Arts, was interviewed for the book, and was present at the event.

The discussion concluded with questions from the audience. Most notable was the final question, "what is a living wage in the Lehigh Valley?" Kelly Allen declared "a healthy food system needs a healthy wage system." Elliot produced the Housing and Urban Development number, and that is $23.15 an hour, for a family of four.

State gives $342K for $2.9M system

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Pennsylvania's Acting Secretary of State, Kathy Boockvar, visited Northampton County recently to present a $341,970 check to help pay for the $2.9 million Express Vote XL voting system approved by county council in May. The county used this system, which combines a 32-inch touch screen with a voter-verifiable paper trail, in the recent election.

This purchase was an unfunded mandate. Last year, Pennsylvania's Department of State directed all 67 counties to select new voting systems with a voter verifiable paper trail, making post-election audits more accurate. They must be in place before the 2020 primary. Though the statewide cost of this change is estimated at $125 million to $150 million, the state has yet to provide most of the funding. In fact, the $341,970 check delivered to Northampton County comes mostly from a federal grant awarded to the states last year.

The state legislature tried to help the counties. In July, the General Assembly passed a bill to reimburse counties for at least 60 percent of the actual cost of these new voting systems.

PRESS PHOTOS BY BERNIE O'HARE

Governor Tom Wolf vetoed the measure because it also eliminated straight-ticket voting.

After this setback, Governor Wolf proposed floating a bond for new voting systems through the state's Economic Development Financing Authority (PEDFA). But Republicans argued the governor lacks constitutional authority to borrow or spend money without approval from the General Assembly. Moreover, PEDFA bylaws prohibit borrowing on behalf of state departments without approval from the legislature.

Acting Secretary Boockvar still held out hope for a PEDFA bond, but Wolf appears to have reversed himself. He is now willing to support a bill nearly identical to the measure he vetoed in July. His spokesperson said that, despite opposition from many Democrats over the elimination of straight-party voting, the governor now views the amended bill as a compromise.

So far, 52 of Pennsylvania's 67 counties have taken steps toward selecting a new voting system. Northampton and Lehigh counties are two of 46 counties which were ready to use these new systems Nov. 5.

Boockvar said Northampton County's Express Vote XL is one of seven systems certified at both the state and federal levels. She added that Pennsylvania's certification process is even more rigorous than the federal review.

Executive Lamont McClure put it more simply. "Your vote will be counted," he said.

In addition to a paper trail for every ballot, the Express Vote XL has been lauded for its accessibility by organizations like the Pennsylvania Council for the Blind.

Treasuring a streetscape

Artist Lynn Beedle Jr. works at his easel, painting a portion of Main Street's historic streetscape Oct. 26. A frequent visitor from his home in Highlands, N.J., Beedle grew up in Hellertown, where his mother still resides. He learned how to sketch while serving in the U.S. Army and later attended San Diego City College, where he studied commercial art. His portfolio includes scenes of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., the Hill-to-Hill Bridge, landscapes, and street scenes from around the Bethlehem area. He also paints seascapes along the New Jersey shore.

AMERICA'S OLDEST TOYOTA DEALERSHIP

'A Christmas City Christmas' comes to Moravian Book Shop

Eclectic author Larry Deibert has autographed "Fathoms: A Novel Of The Paranormal" for Long Island resident Renée Clement at the Moravian Book Shop at 428 Main St. during an Oct. 25 book signing event. The prolific Hellertown-based writer is a retired letter carrier and Vietnam veteran. Deibert will return to the Moravian Book Shop Nov. 29 from 1 to 3 p.m. to discuss and sign copies of his newest book, "A Christmas City Christmas." According to Deibert, "Three immortals show up to visit an old friend," and a hula hoop contest is held on the Hill-to-Hill Bridge" in his recently released novel. He also weaves in plot elements based on stories he has heard from local residents and business owners.

Overflowing With Thanksgiving

The lives of Christians should be overflowing with thanksgiving according to Colossians 2:6-7, "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him; rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving." The Greek word for "abounding" means "to superabound, to be in excess over and above—overflowing." Christians should be overflowing with thanksgiving! We should be, "Giving thanks always for all things unto God" (Ephesians 5:20). We are commanded, "In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you" (1 Thessalonians 5:18). God has given us innumerable spiritual and material blessings for which our hearts should be overflowing with thanksgiving. Even if we had nothing materially for which we could thank Him, we still deeply owe the Lord thanks for providing our salvation!

Some years ago during the Thanksgiving season I was expressing thanks to the Lord. My heart was overflowing with thanksgiving to Him for all that He had done for me throughout my life. Suddenly I became aware that I was singing the words and melody of a chorus that I had never heard before, "Lord, I thank You for all You have done. Father, thank You for giving Your only Son. Thank You Jesus for dying for me. There—on the cross of Calvary." Ever since then, we sing that chorus in our congregation with our hearts overflowing with thanksgiving.

We invite you to join us in giving thanks to God this Thanksgiving season during any of our church services. Come overflowing with thanksgiving as Psalm 100:4-5 instructs us, "Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name. For the LORD is good..."

Mayor outlines $80M 2020 budget

BY DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Mayor Robert Donchez on Friday announced that Bethlehem will have no tax increase in 2020. The $80,150,000 budget includes funding for a climate action plan and other initiatives said Donchez.

He said this budget requires no borrowing. It will depend on existing revenues to balance planned expenses he told a crowd in a ceremony at The Factory on 315 S. Columbia St. in South Bethlehem.

"As my sixth year in office comes to a close, I want to say that I am proud of the continued progress we have made with an emphasis on our streets, parks, downtown, and improving the financial and operational stability of Bethlehem," said Donchez.

In the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce's annual Business Leaders Breakfast, he announced plans to implement a stormwater pollution and flood prevention program. He thanked the Greater Lehigh Valley Chamber of Commerce for sponsoring the event.

He has set a goal of inspecting every rental property throughout the city every three years. "Our Housing Bureau works hard to ensure properties are kept up and maintained," said Donchez.

He took the opportunity to extend appreciation to local universities and colleges and health care organizations for "their support and investment in our community."

The mayor said Bethlehem has been pro-business while continuing to be "an attractive place to live, work, and play."

Richard Thompson, managing director of The Factory on Columbia Street, thanks the attendees for coming, spoke about the mission of The Factory, which is to find businesses to invest in and to use the facility and staff to help refine the product for greater market success.

City officials and members of the public listen to Mayor Donchez present the 2020 annual budget.

He lauded what he described as a "pick-up in pace" of the cleanup at the 53-acre Martin Tower site at 1170 Eighth Ave. and said the owners have submitted preliminary plans for a mixed-use development.

Donchez also said Wind Creek (the company that bought the Sands Resort and Casino) is planning a second hotel, a water park and an adventure center. He recounted the successful consolidation of the city's and Northampton County's 911 centers. "After the 911 consolidation I announced the opening of the Bethlehem Service Center," said Donchez.

He recalled the beginning in August of the $5 million renovation of the Memorial Pool on Illick's Mill Road. He reminded Donchez thanks city council for cooperating over the past six years, resulting in a balanced budget.

attendees of the upgrades at the Bethlehem Golf Club and thanked St. Luke's University Health Network for its five-year, $125,000 sponsorship of the golf club.

Donchez recognized the city council for cooperating over the past six years, resulting in a balanced budget.

"Since 85 percent of our proposed budget is tied up in personnel and debt service, we focus intensely on discretionary spending," to build a "stronger balance sheet," he said.

He said the city's improved financial condition earned an A+ bond rating from Standard & Poor. This, he said, gave the city the ability to invest $8.5 million this year into "many much-needed, long-deferred capital projects and infrastructure improvements throughout Bethlehem without taking on additional debt."

He described the city's investment in public safety, which resulted in the purchase of fire trucks, emergency vehicles, body cameras, radios and security upgrades for city hall. He said over five miles of streets were resurfaced.

CENTER FOR ANIMAL HEALTH & WELFARE

Animals are available for adoption at the Center for Animal Health & Welfare no-kill shelter, 1165 Island Park Road, Easton. The shelter is working to end pet overpopulation by running a clinic so animals can be spayed or neutered before they go home. DISTRICT 11 FOOTBALL PLAYOFFS

Hawks fall to Pottsville in semis

BY JEFF MOELLER
Special to the Press

Bethlehem Catholic head football coach Joe Heinrich knew it was time to break his team's recent skid over the past month, one in which the Golden Hawks had dropped three of their last four games.

A rematch with Pottsville in the District 11 Class 4A semifinal loomed as possible answer. The Golden Hawks thoroughly defeated the Crimson Tide the past two seasons in the same game.

Unfortunately for Becahi, it didn't work.

The Golden Hawks (7-5) couldn't get on track all afternoon, and the Crimson Tide did just enough to come away with an 18-13 victory in Pottsville last Saturday. Pottsville will meet Allentown Central Catholic in the final Saturday night at Northern Lehigh.

It marked the end of a three-year, district title run for the Golden Hawks that extended to the PIAA semifinals in each season.

"We just weren't clicking on all cylinders," said Heinrich. "There was just something there. I don't know what it was. We just couldn't get it going."

One of their biggest issues was their inability to get running back Tavion Banks free in the open space. Banks, who began the game with over 1,300 yards rushing on a 6.6 per carry average, was limited to 84 yards on 22 carries.

In turn, Pottsville grabbed a 12-0 lead in the second quarter before Bethlehem Catholic struck back with 14 seconds remaining when quarterback Jared Richardson hit Brandon Lysek on a 17-yard scoring strike.

Banks accounted for the Golden Hawks' final score in the fourth quarter on a two-year run with just under two minutes left in the game.

Heinrich was optimistic his team could find its niche.

"They were really motivated," he added. "They were excited about the opportunity. I don't know. We got outplayed today in some ways. These kids worked hard, and we had a good week of practice.

"In the beginning, we were really tentative and too afraid to slip up. So we were a couple of steps slow on everything. I still think we're a way better football team than the way we've been playing. But what you do on the football field is what matters. We weren't good enough today.

"It's still football and you still have to go play."

Trojans rally to top Freedom

BY TODD KRESS

If a regulation football field was 99 yards, there's a chance Freedom could be playing for a District 11 Class 6A championship on Friday night. Instead, that extra yard helped No. 3 Parkland hold off the second-seeded Patriots and get a bit of revenge after last year's semifinal went the other way.

The Trojans scored 23 unanswered points and took a 14-point lead with just under two minutes remaining. But Freedom scored on its next possession, then recovered an onside kick, which set up one last-second Hail Mary from the Patriots' own 40-yard line. Senior Jared Jenkins' pass ended up in the hands of Owen Johnson-McCormick, but was tackled by a pack of Trojans a yard shy of the end zone to cement a 40-32 victory at BASD Stadium.

"I told our kids to knock it down; they didn't knock it down," Parkland head coach Tim Moncman said. "That's something I guess I better drill. That's who they are, too. Freedom battles back. That's how Jason [Roeder] runs his team and his program."

The win sets up a meeting against No. 1 seed Nazareth on Friday night. Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. at Northampton High School. Freedom, in winning last year's district title, defeated Parkland in the semifinals round (35-21).

A year later, it was the Trojans with a bit of revenge on their minds. But it certainly didn't come without some late drama.

Patriot players worked hard until the end

Over the past four years, Freedom's football team has gained chunks of yardage through the air and on the ground.

For the better part of the first half of their District 11 Class 6A semifinal playoff game against Parkland last Friday, the Patriots appeared to be on the same path toward a successful night with a 17-point advantage.

Freedom was the first team to beat Parkland, 21-18, in week three, and the Trojans (10-2) then went on to win seven straight. But Freedom's offensive attack was reduced a few gears most of the second half, and ironically, it came to an end one yard short.

Freedom receiver Owen Johnson-McCormick was stopped on the one-yard line by a host of Parkland defenders as time ran out as the Trojans captured a 40-32 victory at Bethlehem Area School District Stadium.

The thud in the Bethlehem night was the shock of the run led by a group of 16 Patriot seniors behind quarterback Jared Jenkins and running back Jalen Stewart that produced two district final visits and a title over the last three years that came to a screeching halt when many expected them to playing Nazareth Friday night.

"It is tough to reflect upon," said Freedom head coach Jason Roeder. "But I had an unbe-

SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

Weird thought, but does Kyle Busch have a shot at Homestead?

GODSPEAK: He is fighting only three other drivers, so his chance of winning goes up to at least 25 percent.

KEN'S CALL: Given his winless streak, he does seem to be the odd man out right now. But given the nature of this season, he'll probably win.

How should Hendrick Motorsports react to Chase Elliott's lackluster playoff showing?

GODSPEAK: Hendrick Motorsports is still playing catch-up to Gibbs Racing and Stewart-Haas. They need to stay the course.

KEN'S CALL: It'll all be forgotten by February, but still, there will likely be some personnel shuffling under that big Hendrick roof.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

BUBBA WALLACE VS. NASCAR:

Wallace admitted to a reporter at Phoenix on video that he intentionally spun his No. 43 Chevrolet at Texas Motor Speedway to bring out a yellow flag. Oops. Bad idea.

GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: After NASCAR officials heard the open confession, they fined Wallace $50,000 and 50 championship points. Wallace's team said it would not dispute the penalty.

WINNER: Denny Hamlin
REST OF TOP 5: Kevin Harvick, Martin Truex Jr., Kyle Busch, Chase Elliott

HOMESTEAD

THREE THINGS TO WATCH

1. Excessive success

Joe Gibbs Racing has enjoyed a wealth of success this season. Denny Hamlin's victory at Phoenix took JGR to 18 wins through 35 races. Three of Gibbs Racing's drivers are in the Championship Round at Homestead-Miami Speedway. "We work together at the race shop, try to prepare things, solve problems," Gibbs said. "When we get to the race track, it will be three cars going for it; an all-out effort."

2. Race within race

Denny Hamlin, Martin Truex Jr. and Kyle Busch, who are Gibbs Racing/Toyota drivers, and Ford's Kevin Harvick will battle among themselves for the NASCAR Cup Series championship. The driver who finishes highest among the four will be crowned champion. The playoff drivers don't have to win the race, but since this format was introduced in 2014, the champion has won the season finale.

3. Elite company

Denny Hamlin has an opportunity to join an elite NASCAR club; drivers who won the Daytona 500 and the championship in the same year. Only five drivers have done it nine times since the 500 was added to the schedule in 1959. Jimmie Johnson was the last driver to accomplish the double in 2013 (he did it 2006, too). The others in the club are Lee Petty, Richard Petty (four times), Cale Yarborough and Jeff Gordon.

PHOENIX

THREE THINGS WE LEARNED

1. Walk-off homer

In baseball terms, Denny Hamlin hit a walk-off home run in the ninth inning to win a pennant and land his team in the World Series. Hamlin would have not have made the Championship Round if not for winning at Phoenix. "I knew that we needed to win," he said.

2. Logano languishes

Joey Logano won't get the chance to defend his 2018 championship. Despite leading 93 laps at Phoenix, his No. 22 Ford went sour, and he finished ninth. "It stinks," said Logano, who was beat on points by Kyle Busch. "I don't know how disappointing it is, put a number on it. It hurts."

3. Chevy, out

For the third consecutive year, Chevrolet will not be represented in the Championship Round despite fielding the most cars in the Cup Series. The last Chevy driver to make this final four was Jimmie Johnson in 2016, when he won his seventh NASCAR crown.

— Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

What if Denny doesn't win?

I'm saying he firmly establishes himself as the second-best racer who never won a NASCAR championship. Mark Martin, with 40 career wins but, more importantly, those five championship runners-up, is king of the non-champs. Junior Johnson and Fireball Roberts generally place second and third on most lists, but while winning a combined 83 races, neither of those Hall of Famers ever made a full-schedule championship run. It was a different world then. Denny's 37 wins and 14 full-time seasons would put him just behind Martin on that list.

But ...?

But like Godwin Kelly nearby, Mr. Hunch here likes Hamlin at Homestead, where he has two career wins and three poles. In a year like this, though, it's been too easy to hitch your wagon to the current hot shoe, only to see that shoe go elsewhere on Sunday.

STATE SOCCER PLAYOFFS

Patriots advance by topping Council Rock

BY KATIE MCDONALD
kmcdonald@ttonline.com

Freedom's girls' soccer team took no time in making an early statement against Council Rock South in the Patriots' 3-1 victory over the Golden Hawks in the first round of the PIAA State soccer tournament on Tuesday at J. Birney Crum Stadium in Allentown.

Patriot forward Abby Sipel scored what turned out to be an emotional goal in the first minute on an assist by KK James.

"During the season I didn't get to play much field because I was in goal, so when I got the ball from KK James I kind of went into my own zone and afterward I broke out into tears because it made me so happy that I could finally score," Sipel said. "Honestly, through this whole season, we've had the same mindset, go have fun, and like any game, you have your mind set to win. Where we are now is perfect."

Council Rock tied things up at 22:22 on a goal by Alexandra Jones from an assist by Samantha Jones, but that's all the Golden Hawks would be able to get past Freedom goalie Megan Raffino.

"I've had a lot of goalie trainers growing up and that was the big thing, you have to be aggressive because you don't see that a lot in girls' soccer. And having an older brother who is an amazing goal keeper, he helped me through that, so I was always taught to be aggressive," said Raffino. "Putting myself out there and getting that ball is what I have to do."

That's not to say there weren't some nerve-wracking moments on Council Rock corners, but Raffino handled those too.

"That's a lot of anxiety on those, especially when they bounce around a lot, but I have to stay composed," she said.

Freedom's offense game through in the second half when Patriot forward Haley Gschrey scored on a hard shot free kick at 29:25 and then, again, at 23:48. The latter goal saw Gschrey get by three defenders and around Council Rock goalie Carli Dickel.

"I dribbled as fast as I could past the defense and I saw the keeper coming out. I took a touch around her because I saw her coming out and I knew she was going to slide," Gschrey said.

The Patriot victory put Freedom into the state quarterfinals on Saturday.

"We really wanted to make a statement for our team," Gschrey said.

Abby Sipel, a junior, looks to try and win the ball against a Council Rock player during last week's victory at J. Birney Crum Katie Flynn, a senior captain, looks to make a play during the opening round of states.

Junior Caitlin Donello out races an opponent to the ball during last week's victory.

FHS girls season ends vs. Conestoga

kmcdonald@ttonline.com

Two goals late in the first half by Conestoga ended Freedom's girls' soccer season in the PIAA State quarterfinal on Saturday at Spring-Ford High School in Royersford by a final score of 2-0.

"Honestly, our slip-ups on the defensive end were not marking exactly who we were supposed to mark, and that ended up costing us the game," said Freedom defender Kira Yost. "They were a good team, though. I'll give them credit. We've all made it this far but we had a few slip-ups."

With 3:38 remaining in the first half, Conestoga's Calista Courtney fired a shot into the top right corner.

The Pioneers scored again with :28 left in the first half on a goal by McKenzie Coleman on an assist by Emily Burgess.

"At practice, we did some drills that were cutting off the short passes, but as I've said, those were the slip-ups. That's what we talked about at halftime, actually," said Yost.

So as the Patriots were able to hold the Pioneers scoreless in the second half, the Pates were unable to score themselves.

"The effort's been there today and every day," said Freedom coach Bob Eaton. "It goes back to early June when we were having early workouts. The leadership from the captains has been phenomenal. They got the most out of this team that they could and far exceeded my expectations."

Freedom goalkeeper Megan Raffino made outstanding saves throughout the second half, one at 20:39 directly in front of the goal, and a diving save on a free kick at 6:55.

"Very honestly, the two goals they got weren't great goals. We kind of had mental lapses and that hurt us, and who knows what would have happened if we don't give those up?" Eaton said. "We tried to go out and play our own game, and today it didn't work. They're a very good team, and there's nothing wrong with losing to a good team."

Two Saturdays ago, the Pates won the district championship. This Saturday, however, wasn't the outcome they hoped for.

"Absolutely, I think today wasn't our day," said Yost. "We've proven that we could get this far and it feels amazing. We just had our banquet the other night, and for the first time, that was the only banquet we've had that hasn't been the end of our season. It's been amazing, and I'm really proud of these girls."

Outdoors: Ski resorts preparing for season

BY NICK HRONIAK
Special to the Press

With the cold temperatures and occasional snow flurries we're experiencing, it may be the incentive to think about the upcoming skiing/snowboarding/tubing season.

In a prepared press release, Tricia Matsko, Director of Sales and Marketing at Blue Mountain Resort in Palmerton, said they put their snow guns in service last Friday night thanks to below freezing temperatures and low humidity. It's their first attempt this year to make snow and to build a base on the major trails of Lower Main Street, Vista, Come Around, Valley School and Snow Tubing Lanes.

The Blue is also preparing for their Black Friday/Cyber Monday deals on midnight, Nov. 28. At that time, off-peak (midweek) lift tickets will be discounted to sell for $39, Peak (weekends & holidays) are $49, and there is no limit to the number purchased and there are no blackout dates. Gift cards too, adds Matsko, will also be on sale with an opportunity to get Blue Mountain Bonus Cash.

For updated snow conditions and operations, check www.skiblue.com or call 484-633-6510.

Down at Bear Creek Mountain Resort in Macungie, Jeff Zellner, Bear Marketing Manager, said they will begin snowmaking efforts on Dec. 5 followed by a proposed opening for skiing and riding Dec. 13 at 9 a.m.

This will mark the resort's 19th season with limited terrain, excluding snow tubing, but all lifts will be operating.

This season will include favorite winter events such as Waking Winter, terrain park competitions, snowmobile drag races and more.

Bear Creek will also be offering special early season discounted lift tickets and rentals and the pricing will be what it was for the 2018-19 season. For example, Zellner said they're offering a choice of ticket packages such as 3 for $109 or 5 for $150.

These ticket deals will end Dec. 23, but the resort will offer discounted window prices as well as daily deals through Liftopia.com. Season passes will also be offered at last year's rates and 2019 passes will soon be available with stretch pay.

"This is an effort," explained Zellner, "to get more youth involved with winter sports and hopefully convert them into lifelong skiers and riders."

Offered too will be the Midweek Ski & Stay hotel package, college and club days, Sunday Night Special and lower ticket window rates on all retail products.

As for lessons, Bear Creek has new groups lessons starting at $69 (rentals and lift ticket) as well as a 3-lesson package for $145 (rentals and lift ticket included).

Bear Creek is located at 101 Doe Mountain Lane, Macungie. For more information check bcmr.com or call 610-682-7100.

Area teams ousted

BY PETER CAR
pcar@tronline.com

The championship aspirations for Liberty and Bethlehem Catholic came to a close last week in the District 11 volleyball tournaments, as both teams were ousted from their respective tourneys via sweeps.

Liberty (16-4) fell in three games to Parkland in the 4A semifinals, while Becahi (16-6) couldn't overturn a regular season loss to Southern Lehigh in a sweep in their 3A semifinal.

Both Parkland and Southern Lehigh went on to win their respective classes.

For first-year Liberty head coach Connor

Swigart, the season may not have ended like he hoped, but he has an eye moving forward.

"We always have the expectations of coming in every year with our focus on growth, so I'm very excited to see how we progress," Swigart said. "Although we didn't reach our ultimate goal it was still a good year and I think the girls grew from the experience. I know as a coach there are things I can work on and be better for them next season."

With Liberty losing to Parkland in the EPC tournament, as well as districts, the Trojans found the right time to get hot.

"Parkland is always improving," Swigart said. "They were able to pick on us in some keys ways and we couldn't make the adjustments we needed to in a timely manner. That comes down to coaching and that's something I will improve at doing."

Southern Lehigh knocked off another EPC opponent in the 3A finals, as they topped Central Catholic in five games to win the crown.

The PIAA tournament got underway Tuesday night with Parkland (17-5) taking on Central Dauphin at Catasauqua at 7 p.m.

Southern Lehigh (16-1) kicks off the action at Catty with a 5:30pm matchup against West York.

Stewart added the final score of the first half on a 46-yard gallop that gave the Patriots (10-2) a seemingly commanding 20-10 halftime advantage.

However, Parkland took their cue from some late first-half momentum and rose to the occasion toward their sixth consecutive Class 6 A title. They defeated Freedom, 30-6, last year for the crown.

Caton caught seven passes for 110 yards with a touchdown, while Jenkins completed 13 of 24 passes for 270 yards and three touchdowns and also ran for 89 yards and a score. Jenkins, who holds 11 school passing records, finished the season with over 2,500 passing yards and 26 touchdowns. Stewart finished with over 1,00 yards rushing this season, and he is the school's all-time rushing touchdown leader.

"We fight to the end no matter what," added Roeder. "We accomplished a great deal with a great group of seniors. I'm proud we fought to the very end, but that's the expectation. That's what these kids have done time and time again."

Jenkins and the Patriots showed their fight. He connected with Axel Vega on an 11-yard touchdown that cut the Trojans' advantage to 40-32 after a blocked extra point.

"I was kind of yelling at my coach, 'Put me in. Put me in.' Once I had that ball in my hands I was not going to let anyone tackle me," Santos said. "I was going to run as hard as I could, and that's what I did."

Freedom kept its hopes alive by recovering the ensuing onside kick with under 30 seconds to play.

"It was very nerve-racking," Santos said. "I didn't expect them to get the onside kick, but when they got it I was very nervous. I was just glad that they didn't get that touchdown and we won this game."

Jenkins' fourth-down throw had a bit of magic to it as time expired, but not enough to complete a late-game comeback.

"Our defense in the second half was phenomenal," Santos said. "The first half was a little rusty, but I told them that we had to kick it up and we did."

Freedom jumped out to a 20-3 lead in the first half after two passing touchdowns from Jenkins and a 46-yard run from Jalen Stewart. But the Trojans were able to find the end zone late in the second quarter when Ty Tremba hit Jordan Lewis for a 39-yard touchdown, a score that Moncman thought was crucial.

"If you go [into half-time] down 20-3, things are a little different with them getting the ball to start," Moncman said. "That's what we preached. We got it in and I said we have 24 minutes and we're only down 10. Let's see how we play on defense on the first series and let's go."

That momentum seemed to translate into the second half. After Parkland blocked a Freedom punt on its second drive of the half, Santos scored from three yards up the gut to get the Trojans within 20-17.

Jenkins would give the Patriots a bit of breathing room after capping Freedom's next series with a 3-yard read option touchdown. But as the game went on, Parkland's defense was able to get a better read on the elusive Jenkins.

"We were in and out of some nickel packages and things, and they checked out of it," Moncman said. "Then we settled down. We went to some of our danger defenses—bring the six backers in and we got caught once or twice. But to win you have to take some shots, and that's what we decided to do."

Isiah Rico kept Parkland's offense rolling. During a nine-play drive that include eight runs, he scored from four yards up the middle to cut Freedom's lead to 26-24 with 9:11 remaining in the game.

Santos capped Parkland's next drive—also a nine-play one—with another short touchdown run that gave the Trojans their first lead of the game with 3:35 left on the clock.

"We started getting pressure on [Jenkins] and started getting a couple of sacks," Moncman said. "We knew if you let him sit back there he was going to pick you apart. Our kids amped it up in the pass rush, not only in the blitz but just getting four after him."

Lehigh Commissioners OK tax raise

BY DOUGLAS GRAVES
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Lehigh County Commissioners held their final bi-partisan compromise vote Oct. 23 on the $514.6 million 2020 budget with amendments, passing a tax increase to 3.78 mills.

Before the vote, Commissioner Brad Osborne, who moments later voted against the budget, made a statement saying he has respect for the ability of Financial Officer Tim Reeves, but objected to the procedure by which the administration and members of the board of commissioners reached the compromise presented in the final version of the bill.

Osborne described the compromise process as "back and forth bartering" held via a pre-meeting phone call.

The 2020 budget passed 7-2, with Republicans Osborne and Commissioner Marty Nothstein voting against it. Voting for the budget: Geoff Brace (D), Nathan Brown (R), Percy Dougherty (R), Marc Grammes (R), Dan Hartzell (D), Amanda Holt (R) and Amy Zanelli (D).

In other business, commissioners passed a bill defining the procedure by which an individual commissioner can substitute a health care vendor for the vendor recommended by the administration.

Commissioners also extended the lease of the Lehigh Valley Zoological Society, which manages the property that comprises the Lehigh Valley Zoo.

At the beginning of the regular meeting, commissioners honored the emergency services personnel who responded to the three-alarm fire at the Heather Glen Senior Living Center in Upper Macungie Township, which started around 3 a.m. Sept. 22.

In a resolution, the board honored emergency service personnel from Lehigh, Northampton, Berks and Montgomery counties who "selflessly risked their own safety in preserving the lives of these vulnerable residents and loved ones in the execution of their duties that morning." Eighty-two residents and five staff members of the senior living center were rescued.

Developer sues over Green Pond fees

BY BERNIE O'HARE
Special to the Bethlehem Press

After years of debate, lengthy meetings and several plan revisions, Bethlehem Township Commissioners voted over a year ago to approve an active senior community at Green Pond Country Club. But if you drive by, you'll see no homes being built.

The environmentally sensitive wetlands next door to this planned community, located in the middle of an Audubon-designated "Important Bird Area" called Green Pond Marsh, are still there. Migratory birds still visit. But no seniors. Is developer Traditions of America (TOA) having trouble getting a highway occupancy permit or environmental approvals? No, it has them.

So what gives? According to TOA, it's the township's engineer, The Pidcock Company. In fact, TOA has sued Bethlehem Township over what it contends are excessive fees.

On Oct. 11, Traditions took the rare step of filing a mandamus action in Northampton County Court. It is asking that the court order Bethlehem Township to replace Pidcock with its backup engineers, Arro Consulting. Since the developer already has all of its approvals, it essentially is accusing Pidcock of a shake-down. In one instance, the engineering firm billed for 35 hours to prepare a one-page email with eight comments. In another, multiple individuals charged to prepare for meetings they never attended. Pidcock billed 30 hours to review stormwater plans even though DEP had already issued a permit.

When TOA complained, Pidcock stopped working on the project, effectively shutting it down. Though the township convinced the engineering firm to return, Traditions asserts Pidcock is now throwing up roadblocks to prevent development. It is insisting on using an outdated procedure for utility line construction, which will add another two months of delay.

Both Pidcock and the township declined to comment because of the pending litigation. The township was served Oct. 22.

The Pidcock Company is a 90-year-old engineering firm representing numerous public and private clients. Among its 11 public clients is Bethlehem Township. In addition to Pidcock performing services directly to the Township as its engineer, Bethlehem Township is authorized by state law to charge developers "reasonable and necessary fees" to review developer plans and inspect the actual improvements.

Back in 2012, former Commissioner Marty Zawarski complained about Pidcock's billing. He also groused about the mileage being charged, noting that Pidcock is located near Route 309, a 40-mile round trip from the township. "There are very, very good engineering firms within 10 minutes of here," he observed.

Bethlehem Township's adopted budget this year sets aside $60,000 for Pidcock's direct services to the township. Based on a review of this year's budget, along with billing statements attached to the agendas of every meeting, Pidcock had charged at least $130,000, with two months to go. Township Manager Doug Bruce has confirmed that Pidcock is 217 percent over budget.

Bruce defended Pidcock: "The board of commissioners and the township's staff rely on Pidcock for thorough and professional engineering services, delivered in a timely manner, for widely varied projects: traffic, public safety, stormwater, land development, public infrastructure, sink-holes," he said.

In addition to the $130,000 directly billed to the township, Pidcock has submitted $653,000 so far this year in bills to developers like TOA.

I also appreciate learning Spanish because I get to connect with more people through language.
Activities: Co-president of Debate Club; participant of Lehigh and Delaware Valley Science Fairs; Jazz Band and Wind Ensemble (trumpet); Indian Classical Dance; Mixed Martial Arts; Pride Mentor (assist new students in their transition into the Upper School)
Next steps (after high school): College, medical school
Career goals: Doctor
Heroes: My parents are my biggest heroes because they teach me all of the important values of life and enable me to follow my dreams.
Hobbies: Dancing, playing the trumpet and the piano, reading, writing, and drawing/painting
Volunteer/community work: Meals on Wheels fundraising; tutoring at a Kumon Math and Reading learning center Likes: Traveling and spending time with family and friends; anything tropical, particularly the beach and palm trees

Dislikes: Close-mindedness, since you limit your access to more knowledge when you do not keep your eyes and ears open to new ideas
Greatest accomplishment (so far): Completing a four-hour solo classical Indian dance recital at the Zoellner Arts Center this past summer Advice for peers: Always maintain a positive attitude and appreciate the opportunities you are given. Time flies, so make the most out of everything.

Pursuit of success

Moravian Academy has been buzzing with energy since the start of the school year. Students have been in the grind, completing many class assessments while simultaneously excelling in extra-curricular activities.

From the first day of school, students at Moravian Academy have experienced many special events. This year marked the first for the Upper School Retreat, an overnight trip to Camp Canadensis to kick off the new school year in a recreational setting. Students received the opportunity to engage in a variety of outdoor activities, mentor freshman groups to ease their transition into high school and solidify connections within the community.

Moravian Academy also celebrated the 20th anniversary in September of Red and Gold Games Day, a field day with students from all divisions. Red and gold streamers, glitter and silly string adorned the Upper School campus as students were divided into the Red and Gold teams and faced each other with spirited competition. The community always enjoys seeing enthusiastic first graders connect with seniors at the games, further strengthening the student body at Moravian in a lively manner.

In addition to eagerly hosting unique all-school events, Moravian Academy celebrates the success of the fall sports teams, who have been flying high with remarkable seasons. Both the boys and the girls soccer teams defended their District XI titles and carried their winning streaks to the PIAA State Tournament. Similarly, the field hockey team qualified for states, after earning the silver medal in the district finals. Girls tennis captured the district team title and the first singles title, and challenged their formidable opponents at the state tournament. The boys cross country team also hopped on the train of success, as they raced to obtain the district title for the first time in Moravian's history and sent additional runners to states. Golf had an impressive season as well, placing second at districts and competing at the PIAA Golf Championship.

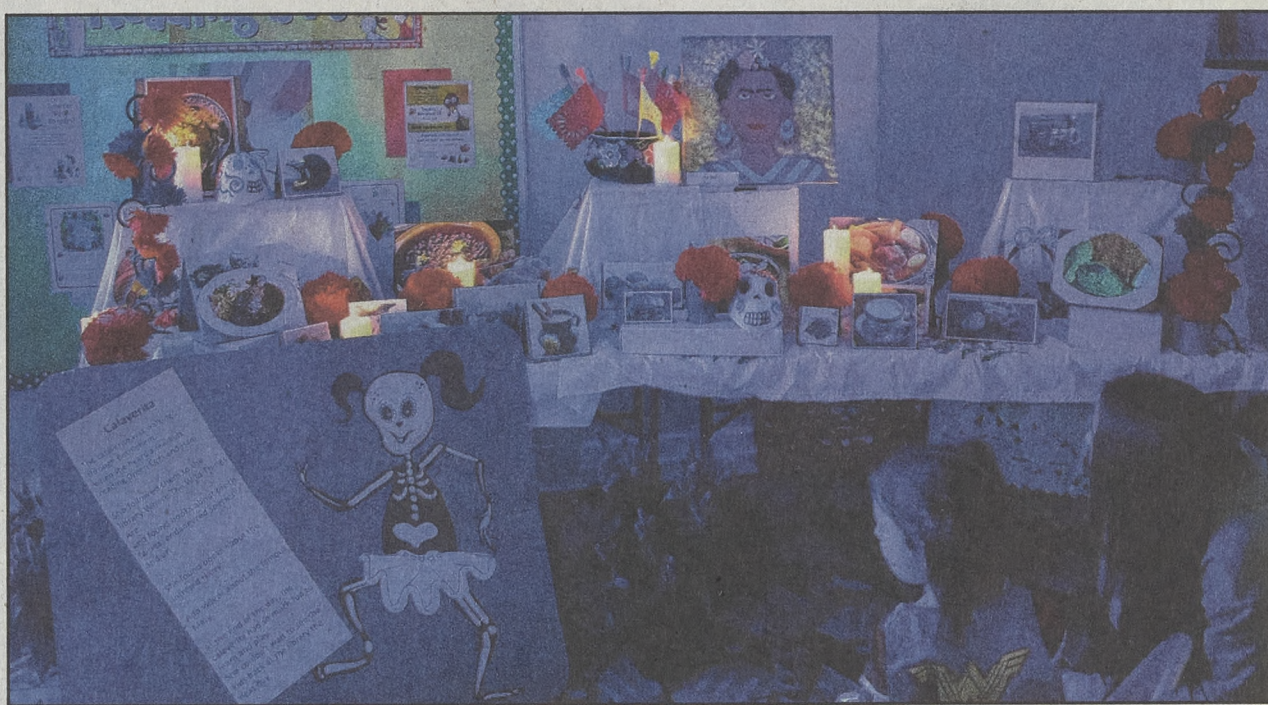

Apart from sports, the coming of autumn also brings much excitement for the arts. Students and staff are looking forward to the Nov. 22 and 23 Coffeehouse, an annual variety show that showcases many acts, such as singing, dancing and instrument playing. Coffeehouse will also feature Moravian's musical groups, including the Jazz Band, Handbells, Chorale, Chamber Singers and Coda Red, the a capella group. Over the past couple of weeks, tech crew and all of the performers have been pulling out all the stops to produce another successful and entertaining show.

Many clubs at Moravian have also been working hard to achieve their goals set out for the year. The Diversity Club attended the 2019 Mid-Atlantic Region Diversity Conference (MARD), a conference at Abington Friends School highlighting issues pertaining to identity (such as race, ethnicity and religion). The International Club and the Jewish Heritage Club hosted Israeli Night, which featured Israeli culture with food, dance and music and making baklava. The Debate Club started the season off strong with several students placing at a regional tournament in Reading and qualifying for the national qualifiers tournament in March. Quiz Bowl successfully answered many trivia questions, placing third at a competition at Delaware Valley.

Moravian Academy has embarked on another promising adventure with many activities on board. The community cherishes the diverse set of opportunities the school has to offer, making Moravian Academy a special place for everyone to persevere through hard work and dedication.

Bethlehem Public Library 'Day of the Dead' comes alive

BY ED COURRIER
Special to the Bethlehem Press

Adriana Santos brought the Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead) traditions of Mexico alive Oct. 31 at the Bethlehem Public Library's Southside Branch. She explained the annual three-day observation has its origins in the blending of the cultures and religions of the indigenous people of the Americas and the Spanish who conquered them.

Santos said the festivities were dedicated to the goddess La Calavera Catrina, also known as "Lady of the Dead." Santos walked through the steps of setting up an altar to honor the deceased. She dedicated her altar to Mexican painter Frida Kahlo (1907-1954).

Along with a portrait of the artist, Santos

Adriana Santos explains that the family of the deceased would place the departed's favorite dishes on the Día de los Muertos altar, in addition to pan de muerto (the bread of the dead).

placed images of favorite traditional Mexican dishes, as well as paper Aztec marigolds, representations of sugar skulls, and other objects that would possibly be considered important to the deceased. She said families would present these ofrendas (offerings) to attract the souls of their ancestors so they could celebrate the holiday together. Festively decorated calaveras (skulls) and skeletons, influenced by Mexican political cartoonist and illustrator José Guadalupe Posada (1852-1913), adorned masks, poems written about the dead and candy.

Following her presentation on the Día de los Muertos traditions, Santos taught attendees how to create their own Day of the Dead masks, paper marigolds and papel picado (perforated paper) from folded tissue paper.

The Día de los Muertos educational project, which was presented at both north and south branches of the Bethlehem Public Library was funded by a 2019-2020 Pennsylvania Partners in the Arts (PPA) grant through the Lehigh Valley Arts Council.

'whose LINE IS IT anyway' returns to State

BY CAMILLE CAPRIGLIONE
 Special to The Press

"Whose Line Is It Anyway?," starring Colin Mochrie and Brad Sherwood, returns at 8 p.m. Nov. 16 to the State Theatre Center for the Arts, Easton.

In the comedy show, part of their "Scared Scriptless" tour, Mochrie and Sherwood combine audience participation and improvisation.

In a recent interview, Sherwood combines interviewer participation and improvisation.

"We make improv look difficult so that more people don't try it," Sherwood quips, adding, "Job security."

 "Whose Line Is It Anyway?," adapted from the British television show of the same name, aired 1998 - 2007 on ABC-TV before moving in 2013 to The CW Network.

The Emmy-nominated series, hosted by Drew Carey, featured Ryan Stiles, Wayne Brady and Colin Mochrie as regular performers, with a fourth guest panelist.

In 1992, Sherwood became a recurring performer on three seasons of the British "Whose Line Is It Anyway?" before starring on the United States version for seven seasons.

characters, scenes and songs on the spot. Topics are based on audience suggestions and prompts from the host, who sets up situations in which the performers improvise.

Sherwood and Mochrie have performed together since 1992.

Sherwood initially teamed up with Mochrie to tour the U.S. and Canada for their two-man improv show, "An Evening With Colin Mochrie and Brad Sherwood."

"We have done our two-man show for 17 years. We have spent almost 28 years together, acting like eight-year-olds," Sherwood says.

The duo developed "Scared Scriptless" about two years ago.

"Consistently funny and occasionally breathtaking," raves the Dallas Morning News of their live show.

Sherwood, a Chicago native, moved with his family to New Mexico when he was a child.

"I was raised [in Chicago] and then moved to Santa Fe when I was 10 because I wanted to chase roadrunners and eat green chilies," he jokes.

Sherwood has performed on Drew Carey's "Improv-A-Ganza" (2011).

The "Lowdown": It's appropriate that Boz Scaggs' latest album is "Out of the Blues" since the blues is what first sparked his five-decade musical career. For the second time, singer-songwriter Boz Scaggs takes the stage, 7:30 p.m. Nov. 19, State Theatre Center for the Arts, Easton. The concert is rescheduled from the June 21 show that was postponed at the State. Tickets for that show are being honored for the Nov. 19 performance. Scaggs began his career as a vocalist and guitarist in the Steve Miller Band in the late 1960s before the success of his 1976 solo album, "Silk Degrees," with the hit singles, "Lowdown," which received a Best R&B Grammy; "Lido Shuffle," and "We're All Alone." In 2015, Scaggs' "A Fool to Care" hit No. 1 on Billboard's Blues Album chart, as did "Out of the Blues." Trio's "Honor": The Laurence Hobgood Trio performs in the "Jazz Upstairs" series 7:30 p.m. Nov. 15, Rodale Community Room, Miller Symphony Hall, Allentown. The trio is Laurence Hobgood, above, piano; Sam Minaie, bass, and Jared Schonig, drums. Grammy recipient and multiple-Grammy nominee Hobgood has enjoyed a 30-year career that has taken him to many of the world's most prestigious venues, including Carnegie Hall, Lincoln Center and John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. The trio's debut CD, "Honor Thy Fathers," is a tribute to Hobgood's father. In his Downbeat magazine review, Howard Mandel wrote, "Overall, the ambience is warm, dark and reflective, which is not to discount Hobgood's stragically big, broad voicings, streaming glissandi and consistently perfect articulation." Some perennials make the cut

Most of the perennials in the garden are finished blooming and it's time to throw in the towel for the growing season.

Some perennials, however, can be left standing and this begs the question, "to cut or not to cut?"

It's easy to make a decision with annuals. After the first frost when they are blackened and looking ugly, pull them out and throw them in the compost bin.

Likewise, clean up plant debris from the vegetable garden.

When asked what to do with perennials, as with many gardening questions, the answer is: "It depends."

against the snow. Allow the seeds of sedum 'Autumn Joy' and Joe Pye weed to display their large, round lacy globes all winter long.

Many birds rely on the seedheads of dried perennials for food. It is common to see goldfinches in a stand of purple coneflower enjoying the seed treats. The seeds of black-eyed Susan and oxeye sunflower are other favorites. In addition, overwintering birds find protection in plant stubs and groundcovers.

Beneficial insects may hide in or near native plants for the winter either as pupae, caterpillars or eggs. The plants provide shelter from their predators such as birds or spiders.

The Lehigh Valley region's native butterfly, the viceroy, rolls itself in a leaf and drops to the ground where it stays until spring, providing a good reason not to rake plant debris from around your perennials.

Don't cut back marginally-hardy perennials like garden mums,

Don't be in a hurry to rush outside and cut plants back. Unless the plant is diseased or infected, wait until several hard frosts have killed back the tops.

anise hyssop, red-hot poker and Montauk daisy. They are more likely to survive the cold of winter if you leave their tops to collect leaves and snow for insulation and moisture.

There is no need to cut back hardy geraniums, heucheras, hellebores and dianthus. Tidy them up in the spring as needed.

You should cut back plants with disease or insect pest problems to reduce the chance of infection the following season. Bee balm and phlox with powdery mildew are examples. Even resistant varieties of bee balm and phlox can become infected in bad weather so cut them all back.

Remember to destroy, not compost, diseased stems and leaves.

It is important to cut back hostas and remove their leaves from the ground as soon as the frost takes them. Dead hosta leaves harbor slug eggs that will hatch and ruin next year's greenery.

Cut back plants with browning or blackened foliage and bare stalks that don't add anything visually to the winter garden: peonies, daylilies and speedwell for example.

Late in the season, some plants, including yarrow, Shasta daisy and globe thistle grow new basal leaves. Cut off the stalks without disturbing this new growth.

When cutting down a plant, leave about two inches above the soil to mark its location. This is especially important for plants that emerge late such as butterfly weed, rose mallow and balloon flower. You will be less likely to dig into them accidentally before they appear in spring if you can see a portion of their stalks.

Don't be in a hurry to rush outside and cut plants back. Unless the plant is diseased or infected, wait until several hard frosts have killed back the tops.

In the spring, the plant sends up energy from its roots to produce beautiful foliage and blooms. Allow the roots time to reclaim that energy from the dying plant, keeping it strong for re-emergence in the spring.

For many perennials, leaving plant tops overwinter is fine and may be preferable.

ABC's "Trust Us With Your Life" (2012) and the 2013 relaunch of "Whose Line Is It Anyway?," which wrapped up its seventh season on The CW and is in its 15th season overall.

Sherwood has hosted VH-1 music television series, including "I Love The 80s," "100 Greatest Rock Ballads" and "Greatest Game Show Moments."

He's been a panelist on TV's "Hollywood Squares," "Chelsea Lately," with Chelsea Handler, and "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno."

Sherwood says the format of "Scared Scriptless" is similar to that of "Whose Line is it Anyway?," "except we don't have TV cameras, a host or producers telling us to wear ugly shirts."

When asked if the live show's content varies from city to city, Sherwood says, "Audiences are like puppies: unpredictable, but trainable with the right snacks."

Mochrie and Sherwood have been called masters of their craft. "We prefer 'grand maestros of mind magic,'" Sherwood quips.

What's the key to keeping their live show's material up-to-date and witty?

"We always try to keep our material fresh and free of GMOs [Genetically Modified Organisms]."

Sherwood adds, "Most of our shows are also gluten-free."

There's that combination of interviewer participation and improvisation again.

Park emotions waiting for parking spot

Dear Jacquelyn,
During the holidays, things get fairly crowded and looking for a parking space is difficult. There are times people appear to be leaving but sit in their cars. Is there a polite way to ask another driver in this situation if they will be leaving the spot?

RESPECTFULLY YOURS
By Jacquelyn Youst

ments are made based on actions.

If you haven't missed the window of opportunity to ask before the person gets out of the car, roll down your window and without having to shout, say something like, "Will you be leaving?"

If you weren't able to ask before the person got in the car, very simply, if you can make eye contact and wave, ask, "Excuse me, will you be leaving?"

If the person replies by letting you know he or she is not leaving yet or that it will be a while, say thank you and drive away. You have just saved yourself some time.

When someone takes a long time to get going, the person could very well be going through a checklist that goes along with today's conveniences.

The person could possibly be getting ready with GPS or connecting the Bluetooth. It can take several minutes for some people to get underway.

In such situations, I would recommend you wait for a while but move away and find another spot in case you're about to cause a traffic block.

It is likely most people who see another car hovering a soon-to-be-vacant space know the deal. There is a good chance the person will be accommodating because of having been in your situation.

Saying "Excuse me" or "Mind if I ask" makes the question more polite. And, as always, say it with a smile.

Respectfully Yours,
Jacquelyn

How easily do you make new friend?

I've been thinking lately about friends — old friends, new friends and future friends I've yet to meet.

I just read that it's harder to make friends when we get older because by then people don't easily accept new people into their social circle. Instead, they tend to stay with the same friends they've had for years.

At first I didn't think this was true until I closely examined my own circle of friends and observed how welcoming others were.

Here in Florida, we frequently talk about how easy it is to make new friends here. That's because most of us are transplants. For the most part we left behind our family support system as well as all our friends from our former state.

When we're younger we have jobs and multiple obligations that limit the time we have to pursue new friendships. Plus, with the time we do have, we often spend it at family functions.

That's especially true when we have a big, closely knit family. When I was raising my children, trying to balance my working hours with family life, when I did have social get-togethers it was mainly with my extended family.

By the time you spend time with your parents, in-laws and other family members, that's pretty much it. At least it was for me.

On any Sunday night when I could manage it, I headed to my Aunt Theresa's where our family liked to congregate. We played a bit of cards and sat around her kitchen table kibitzing and eating some of the homemade cake she always had for us.

There were always interesting stories to hear and there was certainly plenty of laughter.

Looking back on those years I'm so glad I made the time for those Sunday get-togethers, because all too soon my family members passed away and I no longer had a large extended family.

I think I'm typical of many people in that when I no longer had my big extended family, that's when I reached out to friends.

"Reached out" are the key words here. Do you continue to reach out to others?

When we get to retirement age we have more time for friendships and probably more need for those friendships.

The interesting thing is how we make those friendships.

Let me ask you this? How open are you to new friends? Do you actively try to meet new people? Or, do you mainly stay with the same people you know?

Think about the friends you do have. How many are new friendships and how many have been your friends for years?

Here's what I observed. We are all creatures of habit. Many of us hang out with the same people — friends we like and have known for a while.

WARMEST REGARDS

By Pattie Mihalik

When you go to a church event or a social event, do you sit with the same people every time you have a choice?

I think it's an ingrained habit that when we go to an event we immediately head for those we know.

Recently I was appointed director of our Emmaus group. In addition to spiritual growth, an important goal of Emmaus is getting to know other women and drawing closer to them.

I've listened carefully when I hear women say it's tough to get to know other women because they stick with the friends they have and don't reach out to others. Some call this "staying in a clique."

In our women's organization we try to eliminate some of this by forming discussion groups bashed on drawing random numbers.

Truthfully, many of us in Emmaus do make it a point to reach out to newcomers.

What I realized about myself is that when David and go to our weekly dinner dances, we always sit with our same long-time friends. We now try to alternate sitting with friends and sitting at random tables so we can get to know others.

When I go to our community events, I always sit with those I don't know, thinking there are some potential friendships just waiting to be developed.

So far the jury is still out for how successful I am in these endeavors. That's because I discovered many are, indeed, more comfortable being with those they know.

Often, when I sit at a new table so I can get to know new people, the women only talk among themselves. The women at the last table I sat at spent the time talking about their past shopping trips and future events they will do together. They were not welcoming.

From all the years I've spent interviewing people, I'm fairly good at starting and maintaining conversations.

But there are so many times when I strike out big time.

For one dinner dance I asked a woman I knew casually if I could join their group. "No," she said. "We sit with the same friends every time. We've all been friends for decades and we always sit together when we go out."

See — it's not always easy nor practical to "break into a group."

But I equal it to fishing. If a fisherman doesn't catch anything that day, it doesn't mean he stops fishing. It means he tries again at another day.

So I'll keep trying for another day.

Meanwhile, tell me your experiences.

Do you find it easy to make new friends?

Daughter's cell phone photos upset mother

Q. I have a beautiful, awesome 16-year-old daughter. She does well in school and she doesn't get into trouble. This morning I dropped her off for swim team practice and saw that she left her cell phone in the car. A text caught my eye, and I snooped. She has been sending naked pictures of herself over her phone to a couple of boys. What do I do?

an object. That is not healthy."

"It is very typical for 16-year-olds to think only about what they want, and to not think outside their own culture," Continenza said, noting, "The daughter needs to be reminded of the consequences of what she is doing."

Concerning the consequences, Carter said, "Once you take a photo of something and send it online, it can go anywhere. If one of the boys she sent the photo gets mad at her, he could send it to all his friends."

Panelist Chad Stefanyak asked how the mother knows that the photo only was sent to a couple of boys, saying, "The mother needs to ask for details, as well as find out where the daughter met the boys, and what the relationships are."

Another question is whether the daughter's photo was solicited.

"After the discussion, the photos are still out there, and they have a way of getting around the school," panelist Erin Stalsitz said, saying, "Worse, they could wind up on the black market."

"Besides violating social norms, if she is sending an inappropriate picture of herself through the Internet, she is engaging child pornography," panelist Pam Wallace said, adding, "When you talk about the legal ramifications, it becomes an incredibly serious issue."

The panelists discussed options for the parent, including consulting an attorney or asking for advice from one of the ant-sex-trafficking resources, such as the National Human Trafficking Hotline, 1-888-373-7888.

This week's team of parenting experts are: Pam Wallace, program coordinator, Project Child, a program of Valley Youth House; Mike Ramsey, program supervisor, Valley Youth House; Chad Stefanyak, school counselor; Denise Continenza, extension educator; Erin Stalsitz, Lehigh Children & Youth, and Erica Carter, functional family therapy therapist.

Recommended treatments for psoriasis

Q. Is there any cure for psoriasis?

There's no cure for psoriasis, but there are many ways to get relief from the symptoms of this troublesome disease.

HEALTHY GEEZER
By Fred Cicetti

psoriasis types, including:

Plaque. This is the most common type of psoriasis. This produces thick, red patches of skin covered by flaky, silver-white scales.

Erythrodermic. This is the least common type of psoriasis. The skin redness is very intense and can cover your entire body with a red, peeling rash that can itch or burn intensely.

Guttate. This affects people younger than 30 and is usually triggered by a bacterial infection such as strep throat. It's marked by small sores on the trunk, arms, legs and scalp.

Inverse. The symptoms of inverse psoriasis include skin redness and irritation in the armpits, groin, and in between overlapping skin. It's more common in overweight people and is worsened by friction and sweating.

Pustular. This is an uncommon type of psoriasis that can occur in large patches. It generally develops pus-filled blisters after your skin becomes red and tender.

Nail. The nails of fingers and toes become pitted. They can grow abnormally with discoloration. Psoriatic nails may become loose and fall off.

Scalp. Psoriasis on the scalp appears as red, itchy areas with silvery-white scales. If you scratch your scalp, flakes of dead skin fall to your shoulders.

There are three basic methods for treating psoriasis: topical medications, internal medications and phototherapy.

Most cases of psoriasis are treated with medications that are placed directly on the skin. These include: creams and ointments, dandruff shampoos, moisturizers, medicines containing vitamin D or vitamin A.

Severe psoriasis may be treated with medicine to suppress the body's immune response. These include methotrexate or cyclosporine. New drugs called "biologics" are used to specifically target the body's immune response. These include Adalimumab (Humira), Etanercept (Enbrel) and Infliximab (Remicade).

Phototherapy is a medical treatment in which your skin is carefully exposed to ultraviolet light.

Home remedies include oatmeal baths that soothe and loosen scales, moderate sun exposure, and relaxation techniques such as meditation to relieve stress.

St. Margaret's Episcopal Church holds basket social

PRESS PHOTOS BY DEBBIE GALBRAITH
St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, 150 Elm St., Emmaus, held a basket social Nov. 2 and 3. Over 100 baskets and 40 gift card raffles were available. The 50-50 super prize was a weekend getaway to the Poconos. ABOVE: Laurie Beers, of Allentown, puts tickets in one of the baskets Nov. 3.

Members of the basket social committee at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church gather for a photo Nov. 3. All proceeds from the basket social will go toward the mission and ministry of the church.

Allentown Band to present 17th 'Salute Troops' concert

The Allentown Band presents the 17th Annual "Salute the Troops" Concert, 3 p.m. Nov. 17, Auditorium, Northeast Middle School, Bethlehem.

Proceeds from the concert, sponsored by Morning Star Rotary Club, Bethlehem, benefit Victory House of the Lehigh Valley.

The band will be joined on several selections by members of the Northeast Middle School Band and Select Chorus and the Men's Chorale of the Lehigh Valley.

Ronald Demkee is Conductor of the Allentown Band.

Brian Rupnik and Denise Parker are Directors of Northeast Middle School Band and Chorus.

Denise Parker is Director of Lehigh Valley Men's Chorale

The first half of the program is: "Prologue," "Star Spangled Banner," arranged by William Pruyn; "Rifle Regiment," John Philip Sousa; "Liberty Fanfare," John Williams; "Solid Men to the Front," John Philip Sousa; "Duty, Honor, Country," Harold Walters, based on a speech by Cadets at West Point by General Douglas MacArthur, with Emile Guida, Narrator; "Official West Point March," Phillip Egner; "The Homefront: Musical Memories of World War II," arranged by James Christiansen, and "Eagle Squadron," Kenneth Alford, dedicated to American pilots who enlisted in the British Air Force before the United States declared war.

After intermission, the program continues with: "For Our Heroes," Alan Lee Sylva, with the Northeast Middle School Band; "Band of Brothers," Michael Kamen-Brubaker; "Sable and Spurs," John Philip Sousa; "Who Are the Brave," Joseph Martin; "American Sing-Along," arranged by Kenneth Force, with the Lehigh Valley Men's Chorale; "Salute to the Armed Forces," arranged by Bob Lowden, and "Stars and Stripes Forever," by John Philip Sousa, with the Northeast Middle School Select Chorus and Lehigh Valley Men's Chorale.

LV MUSEUM Author to talk

New York Times best-selling author Peter Stark Speaks on "Why Pennsylvania Isn't the End of the Road: Joseph Brant, Christian Post, Tecumseh and the 'Indian Barrier State' That Would Stop the Western Movement in Early America," 1 p.m. Nov. 16, Lehigh Valley Heritage Museum, 432 W. Walnut St., Allentown.

"Few Americans today realize how close Pennsylvania came to being the nation's westernmost state," said Joseph Garrera, Executive Director of the Museum.

In the late 1700s and early 1800s, confederated Native-American tribes, encouraged by British authorities, attempted to create an "Indian Barrier State" to prevent white settlement any farther west than the Appalachian Mountains.

Stark will tell the story of those efforts by Christian Post, Mohawk leader Joseph Brant, and Shawnee leader Tecumseh.

Copies of Stark's books will be available for sale.

St. Luke's University Network to open new pediatric care unit

St. Luke's University Health Network plans to open a new, eight-bed Pediatric Intensive Care Unit (PICU) at St. Luke's University Hospital - Fountain Hill in early 2020.

The new unit is part of an expansion dedicated to improving pediatric health care in the region and providing advanced care to critically-ill children close to home. In addition to adding pediatric critical-care specialists, the expansion includes several new pediatric subspecialists and primary care physicians.

The unit will be equipped with the latest technology and staffed with pediatric critical care specialists (intensivists), available to care for children 24-7. St. Luke's pediatric intensivists and nurses are specially-trained to be sensitive to the needs of children and teenagers who are experiencing critical illness or injuries.

"Last year, the St. Luke's network of 10 emergency departments provided care to over 46,000 children, with over 200 of these children transferred from St. Luke's to other organizations for PICU-level care," said Glenn Stryjewski, MD, PICU medical director.

"When the new PICU is complete, these children and their families will be able to remain in the region and within the St. Luke's network for high quality pediatric critical care," Dr. Stryjewski said.

The St. Luke's PICU will care for patients who require intensive physician and nursing care with continuous multi-system monitoring and advanced technologies such as mechanical ventilation and dialysis. PICU intensivists will collaborate with St. Luke's pediatric specialists to manage care for children suffering from a variety of illnesses such as severe respiratory distress, infections, serious injury and heart disease.

The multidisciplinary unit will have a 2:1 nurse-to-patient ratio. Nursing stations will be positioned outside each patient room to allow for close patient monitoring. The unit will also be supported by social workers, physical therapists and nutritionists.

The opening of the PICU will allow the St. Luke's Network to continue its growth and dedication to pediatric care by attracting new subspecialties to the Network. The department now spans 12 pediatric subspecialties and plans to continue its expansion through the recruitment of pediatric general surgery and pediatric orthopedics.

The new, eight-bed unit will be designed with spacious, private rooms with home-like amenities. Each room will have videogame connectivity, color-changing lights, books and toys for patients. St. Luke's will also provide pet therapy and art therapy.

For parents and families who need to spend extended periods of time with their children in the PICU, rooms will be equipped with TV specifically for parents, access to washers and dryers, extra charging ports, showers and a sofa for an "at home" comfortable feeling.

"The support goes beyond the extra amenities. We understand that caring for a child in the PICU includes caring for the whole family. Parents and family members play an integral role in the care team and we welcome their involvement," Dr. Stryjewski said.

"We are here to support patients and families and when it's time to go home, our social workers will help ensure that patients are comfortable and connected with their primary care physician and any pediatric specialists needed for follow up. We look forward to expanding our services and continuing our tradition of providing high quality care," said Dr. Stryjewski.

Hobgood's 'Jazz Upstairs': expect old-school stylings

BY GEORGE VANDOREN
Special to The Press

Laurence Hobgood brings his trio to the "Jazz Upstairs" series, 7:30 p.m. Nov. 15, Rodale Community Room, Miller Symphony Hall, Allentown.

Hobgood has had a 30-year career as a jazz pianist, composer, arranger and producer. The Grammy recipient has performed at venues throughout the world, including Carnegie Hall, Lincoln Center, John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Tanglewood and the White House.

Hobgood is known for his 20-year collaboration with singer Kurt Elling. He received Grammy nominations for each of Elling's first 10 albums, for which Hobgood wrote virtually all the music.

He partnered with three-time United States Poet Laureate Robert Pinsky in a recording-performance project, "Poemjazz." Their second CD, "House Hour," was released in 2015.

Hobgood's 2015 trio CD, "Honor Thy Fathers," features bassist John Patitucci and drummer Kendrick Scott. The disc includes the standards "Straighten Up And Fly Right," "Give Me The Simple Life," Stevie Wonder's "If It's Magic," and originals by Hobgood. Theatrically, it honors his musical influences.

On Hobgood's latest CD, "tesseterra," his trio joins forces with the string quartet Ethel to produce what he calls the "expanded songbook." The CD features Hobgood arrangements of tunes by artists ranging from Cole Porter, George Gershwin and Hoagy Carmichael to Sting, Joni Mitchell, Michel Legrand, Antonio Carlos Jobim, Crosby, Stills & Nash and Stevie Wonder.

Says Hobgood in a phone interview, "The cool thing about arranging standards is trying to contribute the modernizing of the canon itself. As an arranger there's a certain freedom if the song is recognizable. You can stretch the form. People get engaged but can't quite place the tune. It gives you license to extrapolate from the original."

Rounding out the trio for the "Jazz Upstairs" concert are Sam Minaie, bass, and Jared Schonig, drums. Both bring strong resumes and great jazz sensibilities to the group.

Minaie was born and raised in Reno, Nev. He started on piano but switched to bass at age 14. He received a degree from the University of Nevada, Reno, and gigged around the Reno-Las Vegas area.

He then moved to Los Angeles where he studied with Charlie Haden at the California Institute of the Arts and received a master's degree. He lives in New York.

Minaie has played with Patti Austin, Melody Gardot, Charlie Haden's Liberation Orchestra, Tootie Heath and Donny McCaslin. His quartet released a CD, "Heyo!," in 2017.

Los Angeles native Schonig began playing the drums at age 14. He received seven Downbeat Student Music Awards before graduating from the Eastman School of Music. He's played with Wycliffe Gordon, Fred Hersch, Donny McCaslin, Nicholas Payton, Dr. Lonnie Smith and Ernie Watts. He coleads The Wee Trio and performs in Broadway show pit orchestras.

Of the "Jazz Upstairs" concert, Hobgood says, "I'm kind of old school; I just like recognizable melody. A lot of jazz right now is almost math-based and pattern-oriented. But we'll play a lot of standards, a sort of celebration of song mentality. What I like to convey to audience members is that this show is fun. We're playing at a very high level but it's very engaging."

Doors open at 7 p.m. for a free buffet, included with the ticket price. A cash bar is available.

South Korea tragicomedy leading Oscar contender

"Parasite" is a powerful piece of film-making. It's uncompromising cinema. This is a level of film-making far above most films, and beyond the reach of most film-makers.

The psychological thriller will have you on the edge of your theater seat almost from the beginning to the end of the film.

The acting is flawlessly naturalistic. The cinematography (director of photography Kyung-pyo Hong) is intensely personal. The pacing (film editor Jinmo Yang; production designer Ha-jun Lee) is unexpected. The soundtrack (composer Jaeil Jung) is beautiful.

The film has moments of cynically-derived humor that somewhat leavens the mayhem. Yes, there is mayhem.

"Parasite" will resonate with you long after you depart the movie theater. It will create lots of discussion among your fellow movie-goers.

"Parasite" premiered at the 2019 Cannes Film Festival, winning the top prize, the Palme d'Or, the first Korean film to do so. It's South Korea's entry in the International Feature Film category of the 92nd Academy Awards.

Look for multiple Oscar nominations for "Parasite." As of this review, it's the frontrunner in the foreign feature film category.

The story, set in contemporary South Korea, is about the intersection of two families. Nobody heeds the warning signals, so there's a collision.

One family is impoverished and living in a basement apartment. The family eeks out a meager existence by folding cardboard pizza boxes.

The other family is a wealthy family living in an architect's one-off signature modern home.

The family with no money ingratiate itself with the family with money.

The rich family's father, Park Dong-ik (Lee Sun-kyun), CEO of an IT firm, is married to Park Yeon-kyo (Yeo-jeong Jo).

MOVIE REVIEW

By Paul Willistein
pwillistein@nline.com

The story unfolds with the poor family's son, Kim Ki-woo (Woo-sik Choi), being hired as an English tutor for the rich family's teen daughter, Park Da-hye (Ji-so Jung).

Next, the poor family's daughter, Kim Ki-jung (So-dam Park), becomes art therapist for the rich family's preschool age son, Park Da-song (Hyun-jun Jung).

Then, the poor family's mother, Kim Chung-sook (Hye-jim Jang), becomes the rich family's housekeeper, after ousting the previous housekeeper, Moon-gwang (Jeong-eun Lee).

Finally, the poor family's father, Kim Ki-taek (Song Kang-ho), becomes the rich husband's chauffeur.

This all happens seemingly naturally as far as the wealthy family is concerned, but with great subterfuge on the part of the impoverished family to make it happen.

To reveal how this happens, or what happens after this happens, would spoil your viewing of the movie.

Comparisons might help. "Parasite" has the nail-biting tension of a good Alfred Hitchcock thriller, say, "The Man Who Knew Too Much" (1956); the grinding, long-yardage inevitability of a good Stephen King novel to film adaptation, "Misery" (1990), for example; the tragic familial themes of "Roma" (2018); the hard-edged unpredictability of "Get Out" (2017) and "Us" (2019), and the luxury-items flamboyance, at times, of "Crazy Rich Asians" (2018).

You might call it "Crazy Poor Asians" or "The Joy Unlucky Club." Director Joon-ho Bong ("Snowpiercer," 2013), who co-wrote the screenplay with Han Jin Won (theatrical movie screenplay debut), has created a mix of dark comedy, desperate acquisitiveness and the transitory nature of wealth.

The film symbolically represents the extremes of wealth and poverty, references North Korean and South Korea geopolitics, and the winner-takes-all mentality of those in dire straits.

The themes have to do with the pursuit of materialism and the comfortable life. When the comfortable life clashes with the uncomfortable life, all heck breaks loose.

What does the title, "Parasite," imply? Who are the parasites? Are they the poor family? Are they the wealthy family?

It's almost too easy to say whether the title "Parasite" clearly refers to one family or the other.

One thing seems certain with "Parasite," between the two families, belief systems seem to be absent, save that of a belief in and a pursuit of materialism. Even a symbolic rock, given at the start of the story, seems to only have the purpose of bringing good luck and good fortune.

Luck can only go so far. In "Parasite," as luck would have it, it doesn't go far enough. "Parasite" is a cautionary tale for those who believe only in themselves, or in the luck of the draw, or in taking fate into their own hands.

A parasite, after all, is only as healthy as its host.

3 POTENTIAL INDICATORS OF ENGINE TROUBLE

Many drivers have found themselves stranded on the side of the road at one point or another. Whether the culprit is engine trouble, a flat tire or another issue, finding oneself stranded on the side of the road in need of assistance is an often helpless feeling that no one wants to experience twice.

Even drivers whose automotive clubs or insurance companies provide roadside assistance services want to avoid using such services. One way to do just that is to learn about potential indicators of engine trouble.

- Warning lights - Vehicle warning lights exist for a reason. According to the automotive retailer Pep Boys®, a check engine light typically illuminates when vehicle sensors detect there are issues stemming from a loss of power. This can be dangerous, and Pep Boys® recommends drivers pull over and call for a tow the moment the light comes on. In addition to check engine lights, drivers should heed warning lights referring to oil pressure and oil levels.
- Poor gas mileage - An easy way for drivers to monitor vehicle performance is to keep gas mileage in mind. If a vehicle suddenly feels like it's not getting as much mileage out of a tank of gas as it used to, this might be indicative of engine troubles. A fuel additive such as a fuel injector cleaner might be helpful because it can clean clogged fuel injectors that can affect performance and lead to poor acceleration. However, the automotive retailer Advance Auto Parts® notes that such products are not a one-size-fits-all cure. If vehicles continue to suffer from reduced gas mileage, drivers should bring them to a mechanic for a thorough examination.
- Jerking - Some signs of engine trouble are not as subtle as reduced gas mileage. Vehicles that begin to jerk while they're being driven are likely suffering from some form of engine trouble. Jerking might put a scare in drivers, but it's not necessarily the result of a major problem, even if it is one that should be addressed immediately. A jerking vehicle that stalls puts drivers, their passengers and other motorists at risk of accident, so bring this issue to the attention of your mechanic immediately. Poorly functioning spark plugs may be the culprit behind jerking, and that's a relatively inexpensive and quick fix. However, other issues can cause jerking as well, so don't delay in speaking with your mechanic.

Vehicles may indicate engine troubles in various ways. Drivers should contact their mechanics immediately whenever they suspect engine trouble is affecting their vehicles.
